Levi is one of Finland's most iconic winter destinations, located in the heart of Finnish Lapland, north of the Arctic Circle. Surrounded by pristine wilderness, snow-covered fells and breathtaking Arctic scenery, Levi offers a truly unforgettable setting for the AE-PCOS Meeting.

In December, Levi is wrapped in the enchanting polar night. While the sun does not rise above the horizon, the landscape is illuminated by the magical blue twilight, creating a unique and serene atmosphere. On clear nights, the sky comes alive with thousands of stars and, if you are lucky, the spectacular Northern Lights dancing overhead. Whilst enjoying them, you can enjoy the cleanest drinking water in the world.

Levi combines authentic Lapland charm with excellent infrastructure. As one of Finland's most popular winter resorts and the annual host of an Alpine Skiing World Cup race, Levi offers high-quality services, cozy accommodation and a vibrant yet compact village where everything is within easy walking distance. A convenient SkiBus operates around the fell, making it effortless to explore the area. The Christmas season in Lapland is filled with wonder, beauty and unforgettable moments – the perfect backdrop for both professional exchange and extraordinary experiences.

Lapland weather in December

The weather in Levi in December is typically freezing, averaging around -7°C during the day and -14°C at night (approx. 19°F during the day, 7°F at night), but temperatures can drop significantly colder, even tens of degrees below zero, and there is often a lot of snow. Later tips on how to dress.

Dressing for Winter in Lapland

December in Levi means true Arctic winter – crisp air, snow-covered landscapes and magical light. With the right clothing, winter in Lapland is not only comfortable but truly enjoyable.

Good news: you do not need special expedition gear. Layered clothing and common winter wear are perfectly sufficient.

We recommend dressing in layers:

- Base layer: thermal underwear (wool or technical material) to keep you warm and dry
- Mid layer: a fleece, wool sweater or light down jacket for insulation
- Outer layer: a warm winter coat and windproof trousers
- Accessories: a warm hat, scarf, gloves or mittens
- Footwear: insulated, waterproof winter boots with good grip

Indoor spaces, including the congress venue, hotels, restaurants and shops, are well heated. Winter clothing can easily be left in cloakrooms or hotel lobbies when indoors.

For outdoor activities such as Northern Lights excursions, husky rides or snowmobile safaris, all necessary thermal equipment is typically provided by the activity organizers, including overalls, boots and gloves.

Local shops in Levi also offer a wide selection of winter clothing and accessories should you wish to purchase or upgrade gear during your stay.

With proper clothing, the Arctic winter becomes a unique and memorable part of the Levi experience – fresh, peaceful and beautifully inspiring.
