GINA

Everything's impossible until it's not.

KEITH

But you're a scientist.

GINA

That's coded language. Like, 'you look tired.'

KEITH

Wait, I look sad and tired?

GINA

Science is all about the impossible.

KEITH

Do you at least believe in the Big Bang?

GINA

As much as I believe I need to end this conversation.

KEITH

Wait, let's not part this way.

GINA

We never paired.

KEITH

Didn't we?

GINA

Why don't we ask your fiancée when she returns.

KEITH

There's a lot I need to talk to her about. For a while now. (beat) I've overshared.

GINA

If it makes you feel better, I'll delete this entire conversation from my Playback tonight.

KEITH

Then you might forget me, too.

GINA
Some things I remember on my own.

KEITH
Wonder what it was like when our only option was to remember memories.

GINA
Ironic that no one remembers anymore.

KEITH
I think that's why we miss-out on so much of our lives.

GINA
All the things we never get to miss, too.

KEITH
Like some other moment is more important than this one. Right now.

GINA
And just what is your life missing?

He thinks, then laughs.

GINA
Laughter?

KEITH
Joy.

GINA
That's what I feel when making dinner reservations.

KEITH
You scientists really know how to have a good time.

GINA
Once I started booking tables under my name...my chosen one. Hearing them call out, 'Gina, your table is ready.' Such a simple thing.

KEITH
And beautiful.

GINA
I thought so, too...not everyone. Too busy grieving who they thought they lost.

KEITH
More coded language.

GINA
I never shared that with a stranger.

KEITH
Guess it means I’m not.
