Good Morning,

Rained a little over night the way the porch looks. Our rooster in a tree right outside our bedroom window is already doing his morning wake up call. Its a little annoying when he crows at two o'clock in the mornings.

Todays plans are digging out dahlia tubers, hopefully I'll get all of them dug before the cold weather sets in. We are enjoying these beautiful fall days with leaves staying nice longer as we did not get high winds like some years. Its my favorite season. Farmers are busy doing fall work taking advantage of the good weather. They had time to take crops off, bale corn fodder, do the last cutting hay and now prepare soil for next season.

I'll share a little about our trip to Alaska was an interesting trip. It took us eleven, eight hour days from home to Soldotna Alaska. We had a few overnight stays visiting family and friends on our way. One of those days we took a train ride at Skagway up into White Pass mountain 2,888 feet elevation. Beautiful scenery.

We had no plans on fishing when we started but ended up hearing local guys talk about the big fishing days that are just starting. So renting gear and waders from a relative of ours and a good river about 15 miles from our house. The men and grandsons spent many hours by Kenai River trying their luck salmon fishing. The other fishermen by river kept on saying come back tomorrow. Waters were still cold, keeping the spawning fish from coming up stream. Well they ended up with five nice sized salmon, which four of them we froze and brought back home. They thought they could go fishing the next day yet, but it was time to move on towards home. We missed fishing by three days. Fish count was up to two hundred thousand per day coming up Kenai River. While we were there count was around six to twelve thousand per day.

While we were there we also took a boat ride out at Whittier Prince William Sound waters to see second largest glacier in Alaska. The glacier is 400 feet above water and 600 feet below water, two and a half miles wide and twenty-six miles up into the mountains. While we were there ice pieces were breaking off (called calving) ice pieces were floating. When large pieces fell in water the waves actually rocked our boat, worth while seeing.

We seen many mountains and scenery. One of our favorite areas was Northern British Columbia with cattle grazing, mountains in the background and also some farming; very scenic.

Our 50th Wedding Anniversary is coming up December 2nd. I well remember when my parents had their 50th and I thought they were really old people. Where did time get to? Plans are to all get together, children and grandchildren, sometime in December and have our wedding meal. Our wedding menu was, well I'll start at the beginning. We got twelve baby turkey chicks and were told to put colorful beads in with their feed to get them started. Well eight out of the twelve survived. Those we smoked in the old smokehouse on the farm. I wanted white corn, so that is what I planted, when it was about half grown, the cows broke out of the pasture and had a feast in my white sweet corn patch! Thanks to a sister who came to my rescue with yellow sweet corn, it was good but it wasn't white! We had mashed potatoes, dressing, cranberry sauce, cubed cheese and pretzels. Dessert was spanish cream, some of the grandchildren have no idea what that is, fruit salad, Prince of Whales cake and after dinner mints.

We had wedding on my parents farm in an old brick house. A very cold snowy December day, every room down stairs had its own coal stove. Three of them were Heat-A-Rola with a regulator, we could set to a certain tempature. But coal and ashes had to be taken care of. We kept all five stoves going a whole week before so the walls and upstairs would get warm. We had approximately 170 people the day of wedding. Next morning started our wedding trip to the barn milking cows. We lived there and milked cows for three years till my younger brother got married and took over. That was then when we moved to Ohio, spring of 1981. Then 50 years later we took a wedding trip to Alaska.

If you have flower vases in your way, and not sure what to do with them, you can drop them off at Country Fabrics, and we will put them to good use.

"Before you complain about the darkness of the tunnel, remember that its a short cut through the mountain."

Grilled Salmon

INGREDIENTS

1 cup brown sugar
¾ cup oil
¾ cup water
¾ cup soy sauce
½ tsp salt
½ tsp pepper

DIRECTIONS

Mix together and pour over salmon and marinate for 4-5 hours. Grill at 350° until internal temperature of 135°, doesn't take long at all!

Also we like to sprinkle lemon pepper on top while grilling.
