Belle X

The Belle X series is a mobile medical alert system that includes fall detection. This device can be worn around your neck with a lanyard or on a belt clip that can attach to your pants. This device is lightweight and utilizes two-way communication to provide comfort and peace of mind. The Belle X is rechargeable and lasts up to 6-16 days per charge, depending on its operating mode. This device includes fall detection, GPS, and Wi-Fi location services. It also uses an automated virtual assistant (AVA) which speeds up response times in an emergency; each time the button is pressed AVA directs emergency calls to operators who can locate the user and get help on the way.

This device also connects to an application on your mobile phone. This application enables you to locate the Belle X device on demand, "ring" the device in case of misplacement, and receive notifications in the event the button is pressed or a fall is detected. Having the app also allows you to check battery levels, device history, and if the device is powered off.
