Twenty-Fifth Sunday in Ordinary Time

Hello Friends,

"You will never be happy if your happiness depends on getting solely what you want. Change the focus. Get a new center. Will what God wills, and your joy no one shall take from you."

"Someday we shall thank God not only for what God gave us, but also for that which God refused us."

"Sometimes the only way the good Lord can get into some hearts is to break them."

These quotes comes from the wisdom of a man who will be beatified this Thursday, Sept 24th in St. Louis, MO, Archbishop Fulton Sheen (1895-1979).

As time goes on, most people do not have the memories of how impactful Fulton Sheen was. But he was one of America's greatest Catholic leaders. At a time when people were just beginning to move from radios to televisions for news and for entertainment, it was this gifted priest from Illinois, whose erudition, presentation, knowledge, humor and even charisma and compassion, brought the Catholic Church into the household of millions. He helped paved the way for a greater integration of Catholic culture into mainstream American life. He knew so much; he taught so well; he dressed so differently. (Sometimes in lace and in the regalia of a pre-Vatican II priest. And later, as a bishop, he could wear the magenta zucchetto; and of course, he'd wear the pectoral cross and episcopal ring.) His original tv show was called Life is Worth Living. It began in early 1950s and it would continue in different formats into the late 60s. By then, Catholicism went from being a misunderstood and "foreign" religion to an accepted part of American culture. (Times changed so drastically, America even elected our first Catholic president, John F. Kennedy!) Fulton Sheen was also a strong anti-communist crusader. He was a very big deal at the time and he paved the way for the Catholic Church's present standing in America.

But his last years were hard. He hardly ever talked about it. He took it as God "humbling" him. We found out that his Cardinal Archbishop of New York City chose to marginalize him for likely personal reasons. (Workplace politics can be everywhere! Including the Church! We are all human!) Bishop Sheen was sent to Rochester, NY, exiled to the dying hinterlands and by all accounts it was an intentional miserable match. He was set up for failure. Sheen was always more of an evangelist and an intellectual rather than a diocesan administrator. At a meeting about a parish closing, people threw small stones at his vehicle as he was leaving. And then, people even stopped coming to his talks. He retired as early as he could. He felt like a relic from the past. But the seminaries still welcomed him because of his spiritual life. He gave talks to seminarians and priests. (We priests still read his book The Priest is Not his Own.) He knew so much from his studies, and through prayer, and in his last years, suffering.

He made the news again towards the end of his life by being the oldest person in America (at the time) to have open-heart surgery. He was proud of his scar, for it was in the shape of a cross and he said, "My savior will recognize me." Yet, when the hospital was worried that he was depressed they made the great man get counseling. In his final major public appearance, old, weak, feeling perhaps that he had failed at something, at St. Patrick's Cathedral in NYC, at a special ceremony for the newly elected pope, John Paul II sought him out and gave him a big embrace. Archbishop Fulton Sheen was nearly sobbing. "You spoke so well of the Savior", said the pope. "And you helped teach me English! Thank you!" Shortly after this, Fulton Sheen died, doing what else, but praying in his chapel. This week this remarkable man of our Catholic history will be beatified. Through the success and the failures, he kept the faith and taught us how to persevere and to love our Savior. —Fr. George Mahas—

Help Keep Our Parish Festival Tradition Alive!

Our Annual Immaculate Conception Parish Festival is a beloved tradition that brings our parish family and community together. We are looking for new co-chairs to help lead and continue this wonderful tradition!

This is a temporary leadership commitment, likely a 3-year term, with plenty of support along the way. New co-chairs will work alongside our current leaders, receive training and guidance, and have access to a detailed festival "playbook" to help make the process easier.

If you enjoy working with others and would like to share your time and talents with our parish, please prayerfully consider this opportunity!

Interested? Please contact the Parish Office for more information.
