Twentieth Sunday in Ordinary Time

“I have come to set the earth on fire, and how I wish it were already blazing!”

LIGHTER SIDE

“You keep giving and God will take care of you getting!”

Message from Fr. Tony Hesse:

Have you ever wondered why we can celebrate Mass on Saturday evening to fulfill our Sunday obligation or Vigil Masses on the eve of Holy Days (for example, we celebrated Mass this last Thursday in anticipation of Friday's Solemnity of the Assumption of our Blessed Mother)? It has to do with the lunar calendar.

On most lunar calendars, the day begins at sunset. This is because lunar calendars are often tied to the cycles of the moon, and the lunar day is defined by the rising and setting of the moon. Specifically, for many lunar calendars, the day begins at sunset, which is when the moon (or, more accurately, the lunar phase marking the start of the new month) becomes visible.

Unlike a 24-hour solar day, a lunar day is the time it takes for the moon to rotate once relative to a fixed star, which is about 24 hours and 50 minutes. This is due to the Earth's rotation and the moon's orbit around the Earth. In many lunar calendars, the day is considered to begin with the setting of the sun and the rising of the moon, signifying the start of the lunar cycle and the new day. While sunset is a common starting point, some lunisolar calendars, like the Chinese calendar, may start their day at a different time, such as 11 PM. Starting the day at sunset helps synchronize the calendar with the phases of the moon, which is crucial for tracking religious observances and agricultural cycles in many cultures.

The Islamic \(Hijri\) calendar and the Jewish calendar are examples of lunar calendars where the day begins at sunset. And because we come from Jewish roots so-to-speak, the Church follows the Lunar Calendar when it comes to the anticipatory Masses (the Vigil Masses). However, on the day of the solemnity (i.e., the Assumption on the 15th) we then follow the Solar Calendar and celebrate the solemnity until 11:59PM that evening. Which is why we incorporate both the Lunar Calendars beginning the solemnities and the Solar Calendars concluding them. In other words, we can never get enough of our solemnities.

If you ever have questions on any of this, please do not hesitate to ask. I pray that you all had a blessed solemnity and may Our Lady enfold you under the mantle of her love and protect you by the veil of her grace.
