

Join Our Team

Why I Made the Move

When I heard about the opportunity to work within a successful consultancy that was growing in Scotland, I knew this was the type of place I wanted to work. On top of that, I wanted to be surrounded by technically skilled people; Envireau Water boasts an impressive array of expertise. Being surrounded by people with such a range and depth of skill allows me to develop my own skills and learn from others. Also, there is a prominent culture of sharing knowledge and supporting one another to succeed, which is inspiring.

Over the last six months, I have had the space to forge my pathway within the company and develop my professional interests and expertise in water resource projects. Being part of a smaller consultancy means that I now have the opportunity to develop strong relationships with clients and make a name for myself in the industry, which is so rewarding.

Shona Symon

Senior Hydrogeologist

Member of the International Association of Hydrogeologists

Working towards chartership with The Geological Society of London

MSc Hydrogeology (Distinction)