THE FOUR-WAY TEST

Of the things we think, say, or do

The Four-Way Test is a nonpartisan and nonsectarian ethical guide for Rotarians to use for their personal and professional relationships.

1. Is it the TRUTH?
2. Is it FAIR to all concerned?
3. Will it build GOODWILL and BETTER FRIENDSHIPS?
4. Will it be BENEFICIAL to all concerned?

THE OBJECT OF ROTARY

MADE SIMPLE

*We all think we choose what path we take in life, who we socialize and mix with, what views we hold.
But those decisions are actually shaped by networks of people - David Brooks.*

The Object of Rotary is to encourage and foster the ideal of service as a basis of worthy enterprise and, in particular, to encourage and foster:

FIRST: The Development of acquaintance as an opportunity for service.

Rotarians have the opportunity to create relationships with many business, professional, and community leaders.

SECOND - High ethical standards in business and professions; the recognition of the worthiness of all useful occupations, and the dignifying of each Rotarian's occupation as an opportunity to serve society.

Being a Rotarian authenticates the person and their business or profession.

THIRD - The application of the ideal of service in each Rotarian's personal, business, and community life.

Rotarians nurture this personal characteristic; the cornerstone of building and sustaining relationships.

FOURTH - The advancement of international understanding, goodwill, and peace through a world fellowship of business and professional persons united in the ideal of service.

Rotarians become better world citizens and often build lasting international relationships.

ROTARIANS INFLUENCED BY THE OBJECT OF ROTARY HAVE MADE THEIR FAMILIES, BUSINESSES, COMMUNITIES AND THE WORLD BETTER. WHAT THEY DID IS A BY-PRODUCT OF WHO THEY ARE AND THE IMPACT THE OBJECT OF ROTARY HAD ON THEM PERSONALLY.

A DREAM MADE REAL

A MEMBER'S INTRO TO ROTARY DIDN'T GO AS HOPED. LATER HE BECAME A DISTRICT GOVERNOR BY NAT READE

Even though it was a two-and-a-half-hour drive, Lloyd Campbell was excited about going to his first Rotary district meeting in 2012. A retired consultant with an MBA from the University of Chicago, Campbell and his family had moved in 2011 from Tennessee to Glenwood, Minnesota, where his obstetrician-gynecologist wife would head up her own practice. Cheerful, 67, and with an Arkansas lilt, Campbell says that he and his family are the only African Americans in Glenwood, a population of about 2,600. Soon after the family had settled in, a Rotarian invited Campbell to lunch and suggested that he join the local Rotary club.

"I researched Rotary," Campbell says. "The organization believes in Service Above Self, it has been a longtime partner of the United Nations, and it has worked tirelessly to eradicate polio worldwide. It was a beautiful vision that excited me."

"Paul Harris had a vision of an organization that was diverse," says Lloyd Campbell, governor-elect of District 5950, "and it's up to us to implement that."

A few months later, Campbell attended a district meeting to see, as he puts it, "what this Rotary thing was all about." He hoped that the gathering would connect him with the kind of youth, vigor, and diversity that he'd seen on Rotary.org.

At the general session, Campbell was seated at a table with members of various clubs. When he introduced himself, the last Rotarian to whom he extended his hand looked Campbell in the eye and said, "You would not be allowed membership in my club."

"It didn't really shock me," Campbell says and laughs. "I'm from Arkansas; worse things have been said to me. But Rotary has diversity written into its core values. And the remarkable thing is that there was no shock on the other faces at the table. Not one of them had the courage to speak up and say, 'That is not Rotary.'" Campbell thought, "Wow. Maybe Rotary is not what I thought it would be."

Now, 10 years later, Lloyd Campbell will be sworn in as governor of District 5950 in July. What happened? "I never thought of walking out," Campbell explains. "The way my brain works, I like to solve problems." Shortly after that awkward moment when he'd been rebuffed at the district meeting, a group of Rotarians two tables away approached him and welcomed him warmly; many of them are now his close friends. He could see that "most of the people there were probably inclusive, but I happened to have sat at the table that was not." And everyone in that room was there because, he says, "they wanted to do good. Well, when you see that potential you try to make it a reality. You try to turn it into something for the community." And he has. Campbell built his club a website, restored its Rotary Youth Exchange program, and served as its president. He earned a Rotarian of the Year award from his club, an Outstanding Volunteer award from the Glenwood Lakes Area Chamber of Commerce, and two Service Above Self awards.
