Sam Katz - Majority Owner, President & CEO

Samuel Katz, a loving husband and father, was born in Rehovot, Israel, before moving to Winnipeg, Manitoba. He graduated from the University of Manitoba with a Bachelor of Arts in Economics and received a Distinguished Alumnus Award in 2003.

As the President and CEO of Showtime Productions, Inc., Katz attracted many notable entertainment acts to the city of Winnipeg, with intentions of doing the same for the community of Ottawa. As President and CEO of the Winnipeg Goldeyes, Katz led the charge to re-establish the Goldeyes, leading to the construction of Blue Cross Park in 1999, which has given a fresh look to downtown Winnipeg.

In 2002, Katz received the Queen's Golden Jubilee Medal, and in 2004, he was awarded the province's highest honour, The Order of Manitoba. Katz was inducted into the Manitoba Baseball Hall of Fame in 2014. Bob Elliott of the Canadian Baseball Hall of Fame ranked Katz the 95th most influential Canadian in baseball in 2020.

On June 22nd, 2004, Katz became the 42nd mayor in Winnipeg's history. He was re-elected in a landslide election on October 25th, 2006, and once again on October 27th, 2010. Voters endorsed Katz's vision of Winnipeg as an up-and-coming city of opportunity. Katz did not seek re-election in 2014 and now focuses on his family and other businesses.

In September 2020, Katz, OSEG, and Jacques J.M. Shore reached a ten-year lease with the city of Ottawa on Ottawa Stadium to place the expansion Ottawa Titans in the Frontier League for the 2022 season.

Regan Katz - Vice President & COO

A loving husband and father of two, Regan was born in Winnipeg, Manitoba but moved to Victoria, British Columbia at a young age. Following graduation, Regan worked for Westfair Foods all over British Columbia.

He then returned to Winnipeg in 1999 to assist his uncle, Sam Katz, with the Winnipeg Goldeyes and the construction of their new home downtown, known as Blue Corss Park.

He has helped grow the team into a leading franchise in all of minor league baseball, all while climbing the internal ladder from account executive, to director of group sales, to assistant GM and finally COO/VP.

Regan's leadership and commitment were integral to getting the Ottawa Titans started and leads the team as the Vice President and COO. His frequent visits to Ottawa and love for the National Capital Region have made it an easy home away from home.

Jacques J.M. Shore, C.M. - Co Owner

Jacques J.M. Shore C.M., is a partner of the international law firm Gowling WLG and is past chair of the firm's Government Affairs Practice. With extensive experience in both the private and public sectors, Mr. Shore is an adviser to numerous Canadian and international companies and governments on legal, regulatory, public policy, and strategic issues. He has also acted as lead negotiator and legal counsel on many business and government-related initiatives, including federal commissions of inquiries.

Active in the Ottawa community, Mr. Shore is a recipient of the Queen Elizabeth II Diamond Jubilee Medal, for dedicated service to Canada, and the Ontario Volunteer Service Award. He has held positions on many not-for-profit corporations, including as Chair of the Board of Governors of Carleton University, where he served as a Board Governor for thirteen years. Mr. Shore was appointed as a Member of the Order of Canada in June 2022, "for his numerous professional and volunteer contributions as a distinguished lawyer and negotiator."

A strong advocate of the importance of preserving, promoting, and enhancing our national heritage and culture, Mr. Shore is a co-founder and current Chair of the Library and Archives Canada Foundation.

Mr. Shore is also a published author and artist. His published works include articles on law and public policy, op-eds, as well as two children's books, and an illustrated book of short stories.

Mr. Shore is married and has three daughters.

A long-time baseball fan, Mr. Shore is delighted to be part of the return of baseball to Ottawa and looks forward to cheering in the stands for the Ottawa Titans Baseball Club! Mr. Shore also serves as the President of the Ottawa Titans Field of Dreams Foundation.

Ottawa Sports & Entertainment Group - Co Owner

The Ottawa Sports and Entertainment Group was founded in 2008 with hopes and dreams to re-establish CFL football in Ottawa. OSEG partnered with the City of Ottawa to revitalize and the 40-acre Lansdowne Park into a live entertainment district and a place for recreation/cultural activities, shopping, and dining.

Construction of the re-birth of the historic Lansdowne property began in 2012 and partially reopened in July of 2014 for the home opener of the Ottawa REDBLACKS.

In the re-construction, OSEG updated state-of-the-art facilities including the 24,000 seat TD Place Stadium and 10,000 seat TD Place Arena. Also, OSEG and Lansdowne funded two condominium towers and townhouses to host up to 280 units, a 36,000 square-foot shopping and dining district, a 18-acre park, and underground parking.

OSEG has landed many major events at Lansdowne and TD Place over its tenure including: Guns N' Roses, AC/DC, the 2017 NHL 100 Classic, the 105th Grey Cup, and many other indoor entertainment shows.

Along with the Titans, OSEG owns and operates the CFL's Ottawa REDBLACKS, OHL's Ottawa 67's, and formerly the Ottawa Fury FC.

The OSEG group is formed by Roger Greenberg, John Ruddy, John Pugh, and William Shenkman.

Martin Boyce - General Manager

A life-long baseball fan, Martin Boyce joined the Titans as General Manager in December 2021.

He has worked for various sport organizations in Ottawa, including the Ottawa Sport Council, Ottawa Champions, and Ottawa Sports Pages newspaper.

Despite growing up outside Toronto, in Georgetown, Ontario, he now considers Ottawa his home and feels connected to the sport community.

Martin came to the nation's capital in 2015 to pursue a Bachelor of Journalism at Carleton University and has since earned an M.S. in Sport Management and an M.S. in Business Analytics from the University of Massachusetts Amherst. He speaks French and Spanish and is (very) slowly working on learning Japanese.

In 2025, Martin was rewarded with the Bob Wolfe Award, presented to the Frontier League's Executive of the Year. The Titans reached nearly 100,000 fans through home games alone, marking a 16% increase in total attendance from the previous season. It was the third consecutive year—every year of the team's existence—with double-digit percentage growth in attendance, underscoring the National Capital Region's growing love for a traditional summer pastime.

Ottawa Titans Field of Dreams Foundation

To support the mission and goals of the Foundation, the leadership of the Ottawa Titans Baseball Club believes it would be important to contribute to the National Capital Community through its charitable arm, that being the Ottawa Titans Field of Dreams Foundation. The Ottawa Titans Field of Dreams Foundation creates new opportunities for children of all ages and all spectrum of abilities to have fun, learn life skills, forge new friendships, grow the love of a game of baseball, and learn what sports offers for everyday life.

The Foundation focuses on raising funds enabling it to offer children opportunities to enjoy baseball, other sports and other community based programs and events. The Foundation partners with like-minded local charities and organizations to further build and enhance upon the Foundation's mission to support programs for children and youth.

The Foundation establishes various fundraising initiatives to achieve its mandate and mission. These include such activities as the sale of 50/50 tickets at the Ottawa Titans baseball park during home games.

Funds raised during the season will be available to registered children's charities within Ottawa and Gatineau by way of an online funding request process.

The Board of Directors for the Field of Dreams Foundation includes: Jacques J.M. Shore, C.M. (President), Sam Katz (Vice President), Jim Durrell, C.M. (Honorary Chair), Eric Macramalla (Member), Steven Gordon (Member), Derick Fage (Member), Lydia Blanchard (Member), Sandra Leslie (Member), Jean-Guy (J.-G.) Forgeron (Member), Jeannine Ritchot (Member), and Regan Katz (Member/Team Liaison).

Ottawa Stadium

Then JetForm Park opened to the Ottawa Lynx of the International League prior to the 1993 season. In its first season, the Lynx sold out 43 games and set an International League attendance record by averaging 9,772 fans per game. The Lynx remain one of 37 minor league markets to welcome over 500,000 fans during the season multiple times. The club accomplished that feat twice in 1993 and 1994. The first game at the ballpark took place on April 17, 1993, when the eventual Governor's Cup champion Charlotte Knights bested the Lynx 4-3.

Following the departure of the Lynx, the City of Ottawa considered other proposals for the site but kept the Stadium as a multi-purpose facility for the following season when Miles Wolff and the Can-Am League came calling.

The Ottawa Rapidz were introduced in December 2007 and began to play in 2008. Despite attracting higher attendance than the Lynx in its final days, the Rapidz declared bankruptcy in September 2009. Another pitch to rebrand the Rapidz to the Ottawa Voyageurs took place, but the team folded after three months.

In January 2010, the Intercounty Baseball League awarded an expansion franchise that would play at the Stadium. The Ottawa Fat Cats, called it home, from 2010 through 2012. The Fat Cats attendance grew each season and seemed to give a re-birth for the love of professional baseball in Ottawa. Over three years, the Fat Cats reached the postseason twice, including a berth in the championship series which they fell to the Brantford Red Sox.

After an attempt to bring an affiliated Double-A baseball franchise to Ottawa, the city signed a ten-year lease with the Miles Wolff and the Ottawa Champions to play out of the Can-Am League from 2015 to 2019.

In September 2020, Titans President Sam Katz, along with the Ottawa Sports and Entertainment Group secured a ten-year lease with the City and were set to join the Frontier League for the 2021 season. With the closure of the Canada/U.S. border, the Titans inaugural season was pushed back until 2022.

Ottawa Stadium has a concourse running around the middle of the seating bowl separating the upper and lower seating fixed seating sections. The concourse includes six fixed concessions, mobile bars, multiple restrooms, a team store, and a kids' play area are located underneath the upper seats down the right field line.

At the time of construction, the Stadium features 10 Third-Floor Suites, 23 Second-Floor Suites, and a full service restaurant on the Third Floor. The Hop Yard, celebrating Ottawa's local craft breweries, was introduced in 2022 - upgrading the existing picnic area located down the left-field line.

In the modern day, the full service restaurant on the Third Floor has been transformed into The Ballpark Gallery, a premium group experience at the next level, accommodating up to 120 guests during games.

The Field has been selected as an award-winning playing surface, having been named the 1999 winner of the "Beam Clay Baseball Diamond of the Year" award, after placing second two years running. The Field also took top International League honours in 1994 and 1995. It also has taken home Can-Am League Playing Surface of the Year four times (2015, 2016, 2018, 2019).

On September 12, 2023, the Titans announced a 10-year plan around Stadium enhancements, along with accepting formal bids for a naming rights partner. The plan revolves around expanding community access and the fan experience – including new patio decks, along with continued renovations on the second and third-floor suites.

Bobby Brown - Manager

Bobby Brown was named Manager of the Ottawa Titans on October 20, 2021. Since taking the helm, he has guided the club to multiple playoff appearances (2022, 2024)—the most by one skipper in the modern era of Ottawa professional baseball.

Brown began his coaching career at Allan Hancock College in 2007 before earning his first managerial position in 2010 with the Las Cruces Vaqueros of the Continental Baseball League.

Following a brief stint in the North American League with the Abilene Prairie Dogs, Brown moved to the American Association, where he spent nearly a decade. He managed the Amarillo Sox (2013–2014), the Amarillo Thunderheads (2015), and the Lincoln Saltdogs (2016–2019). In 2017, he was named American Association Manager of the Year after leading the Saltdogs to a 58–40 record and a Central Division title—their first since 2014.

After four seasons in Lincoln, the San Luis Obispo, California native stepped away from the Saltdogs following the 2019 campaign. He later joined the Frontier League's Gateway Grizzlies as Director of Baseball Operations and Hitting Coach, though the 2020 season was ultimately cancelled due to the pandemic.

In 2021, Brown served as the Hitting Coach for the Missoula PaddleHeads of the Pioneer League. With his support, the PaddleHeads posted a league-best 66–32 record and captured the Pioneer League Championship. Their .673 winning percentage was the highest across all of professional baseball that season.

As a player, Brown starred as an outfielder at the University of Oklahoma, hitting .362 in 1995 and helping lead the Sooners to the College World Series. That same year, he began his professional career with the Frontier League's Springfield Capitals before having his contract purchased by the Kansas City Royals organization.

Brown played professionally from 1998 to 2005, suiting up for seven different teams and finishing his career with a .301 batting average, 368 RBIs, and 623 games played.

He’s no stranger to Canadian baseball, having played for the Northern League’s Winnipeg Goldeyes (2000–2002) and the Canadian Baseball League’s Saskatoon Legends (2003).

In the off-season, Brown resides in Nipomo, California, and is a key contributor to the California Winter League, the Frontier League’s Official Winter League.

Rodrigo Orozco - Hitting Coach

The 30-year-old joins Bobby Brown's staff for his coaching debut following a successful 10-year professional playing career.

The former Toronto Blue Jays and San Diego Padres farmhand was a consistent offensive performer, posting a career .279 batting average across 718 games. His playing career concluded in the Frontier League, including the inaugural 2022 season in Ottawa, where he became the first player signed under manager Bobby Brown.

A native of Panama, Orozco signed with the Toronto Blue Jays in 2012 and advanced to the organization's Advanced-A affiliate, Dunedin, between 2013 and 2018. During his time with the Blue Jays organization, he spent parts of two seasons with the Vancouver Canadians.

Orozco earned a spot on the Blue Jays' Organizational All-Star Team in 2018 after hitting a career-best .304 that season. Following that year, he was traded to the San Diego Padres and went on to appear at the Triple-A level.

In 2022, Orozco brought veteran leadership and steady production to Ottawa's lineup, batting .288 with a career-high 14 doubles, seven home runs, and 41 RBI over 87 games. He spent the final two seasons with the Trois-Rivières Aigles, earning a Frontier League All-Star selection in 2023.

Internationally, Orozco represented his native Panama at the 2023 World Baseball Classic.

He spends his off season in Panama City with his wife and two children.

Brandon Marklund - Pitching Coach

The Canadian right-hander will serve as a player-coach, after joining the Titans' bullpen in 2025. Making 36 outings, he pitched to a 2-0 record with a 4.38 ERA over 39 innings – walking 26 and striking out 34 opposing hitters.

He began the 2024 campaign with the Québec Capitales, pitching to a 3.60 ERA over five innings. After his release, Marklund joined the Welland Jackfish of the Intercounty Baseball League – going 1-1 with a 6.42 ERA in 12 games (six starts, six in relief) over 28 innings. In the postseason, Marklund pitched to a perfect 0.00 ERA with 15 strikeouts and only 3 walks over 8.1 innings of relief.

Hailing from North Vancouver, British Columbia, Marklund was signed by the Kansas City Royals in 2019 following a dominant winter pitching in Australia. Marklund suited up for the Lexington Legends in 2019, the Royals' Class-A affiliate, posting a 0.46 ERA with 44 strikeouts and 19 walks over 39.1 innings of work.

Internationally, Marklund played for the Canadian National Team at the 2019 WBSC Premier12 and twice (2023 & 2025) at the WBSC Americas Pan Am Games Qualifier.

Post-pandemic, Marklund was sidelined for the entirety of the 2021 and 2022 campaigns due to two separate Tommy John surgeries. The 6-foot-2 right-hander returned to pro baseball in 2023 with the Winnipeg Goldeyes of the American Association. In 12 games for the Goldeyes, he registered nine strikeouts across 13.1 innings out of the bullpen.

Marklund pitched two seasons at Bryan College (Dayton, Tennessee) from 2017-2018, going 11-6 with a 4.07 ERA in 42 games (18 starts, 24 in relief) – striking out 124 over 121.2 innings for the Lions.

Eric Marriott - Third Base Coach

Hailing from Niagara, Ontario, Marriott comes to Ottawa after serving four seasons as head coach for the Moose Jaw Miller Express of the Western Canadian Baseball League.

In total, Marriott guided the club to four playoff appearances and two Eastern Conference Championships.

Following each WCBL season, Marriott serves as the Director of Scouting & Player Development with the Welland Jackfish of the Intercounty Baseball League (now Canadian Baseball League).

As a player, Marriott played at Mitchell College (New London, Connecticut), spending two years with the Mariners, recording a .359 average with nine doubles, three triples, seven home runs, and 62 RBI over 83 games played between 2018 and 2019.

In 2018, Marriott was a NECC All-Conference first-team selection while leading the NECC in walks, on-base percentage and ranked among the leaders in runs (2nd), batting average (3rd), hits (3rd), RBI (t-3rd), triples (t-4th), steals (6th) and home runs (t-7th). In 2019, he was a NECC All-Conference first-team selection, led the NECC in runs, steals, hit by pitch, and fielding percentage, and ranked among the leaders in sacrifices (4th), walks (5th), on-base percentage (6th), hits (8th) and homers (9th).

FRONTIER LEAGUE HISTORY

In the winter of 1992-1993, several men got together and decided to start an independent professional baseball league to serve the West Virginia, eastern Kentucky and southeast Ohio areas. They believed they could bring professional baseball to areas that would never have a chance of affiliated professional baseball coming to their communities. The seed was planted and they named their project The Frontier League.

These founders approached business people and interested individuals in many different cities to own and operate the franchises. College players quickly heard of the fledgling league and mostly came from the Midwest and east coast to chase their dreams of playing pro ball. The Lancaster Scouts chose LHP Chris Smithers out of Valdosta State University with the first pick in the inaugural Frontier League Draft. On June 30, 1993, the Frontier League played its first games, with Tri-State hosting West Virginia, Kentucky hosting Ohio Valley, Zanesville hosting Lancaster, and Chillicothe hosting Portsmouth. Two weeks into the inaugural season, Tri-State and West Virginia folded their operations and the remaining six owners fought to keep the League above water. They made it through that first year with six teams and immediately began to make plans for 1994 by adding teams in Newark, Ohio and Erie, Pennsylvania. Portsmouth's Jim Ridenour was the first player to sign with a MLB organization, as the Chicago White Sox picked up the catcher during the Explorers' spring training, while Chillicothe's Buck Wells was the first player to be signed during the season. Chillicothe's VA Memorial Stadium hosted the first All-Star Game, which the West Division won 3-2 on August 2. The Zanesville Greys were the first champion and swept the post-season awards with Kyle Shave as MVP, Tom Crowley as Pitcher of the Year, Tom Venditelli as Manager of the Year and Bob Wolfe as Executive of the Year.

Prior to the 1994 season, the owners of the League made a commitment to move forward and they hired Bill Lee as the first and only Commissioner the League has seen. Lee had been in the professional sports business since 1980 and the owners hoped he could help the League grow and flourish in the future. The League got through the 1994 season with all eight teams intact. Outfielder Kendra Hanes became the first modern woman to play professional baseball, appearing in ten games for the Kentucky Rifles. Ohio Valley's .746 winning percentage (50-17 record) remains the best single-season mark in league history, while the Redcoats' Corey Morris was named Most Valuable Player by putting up one of the most dominant offensive seasons in league history, hitting .394 with 19 home runs, 63 RBI, and 21 stolen bases in 66 games. The Erie Sailors won the League Championship and the future was looking brighter.

During the off-season between the 1994 and 1995 seasons, several changes took place that helped the League gain credibility and recognition. Teams were relocated to Richmond and Evansville, Indiana as well as Johnstown, Pennsylvania. The stadiums were major upgrades to the caliber of fields that were in existence. The markets were larger and as a result, crowds that attended games were larger. The Johnstown Steal won the 1995 title and Evansville's attendance was greater than the entire League attendance in 1993. The moves to Richmond and Evansville ultimately opened the door to the western expansion of the League.

In 1996, two more cities were added to the League by purchasing and relocating existing franchises. They were Springfield, Illinois and Kalamazoo, Michigan. Again, with bigger markets and better stadiums, the League attendance took a major leap forward. The caliber of play got better and the geographics from which players were coming to the League also continued to expand. The Springfield Capitals won the championship in their first season, but it was the third championship in a row for Manager Mal Fichman.

Several major changes took place in the League Rules in 1997 that led to a stronger level of competition in the League. First, the League went to an 80 game schedule. Second, the League allowed older players with more experience to play in the League. It also allowed for players who were popular in their cities to play in the League longer. The Canton Crocodiles, who had replaced the Zanesville Greys franchise, won the League Championship in their inaugural season. The Evansville Otters were the first franchise to draw over 100,000 fans in a season, including their playoff games.

1998 probably saw the greatest level of overall talent of any year in League history. Richmond's Morgan Burkhart established almost every single season hitting record including 36 homers in 80 games. Other great players such as Chillicothe's Gator McBride, Scott Pinoni and Mitch House, Springfield's Joe Ronca and Jason Simontacchi made the League extremely exciting. The Springfield Capitals became the first franchise to win two championships.

In spite of all of the tremendous on field exploits of 1998, it was the winter of 1999 that saw the greatest changes in the League and elevated it to another level. The League expanded by two teams, making a total of ten teams, by adding the River City Rascals and the Cook County Cheetahs. This was important because it took the League into major metropolitan areas (St. Louis and Chicago) and both franchises were building new facilities. These were the first facilities built specifically for Frontier League franchises. The schedule expanded to 84 games and the River City Rascals in O'Fallon, Missouri, led the way in attendance reaching an unparalleled 151,000 fans. During the season, League attendance went to over 711,000 fans, more than ten times what it drew in 1993. The Dubois County Dragons also entered the League in 1999 by purchasing the Ohio Valley Redcoats. This purchase also meant that only the Chillicothe Paints remained from the original eight franchises that began in 1993. Also, the League became international in flavor by moving from Kalamazoo to London, Ontario, Canada. The Werewolves would set numerous team records on their way to becoming the 1999 League Champions.

The year 2000 propelled the League to even greater heights in publicity and notoriety, when in June, former Chillicothe Paint Brian Tollberg was called up to the Major Leagues with the San Diego Padres. Tollberg responded by winning the National League Player of the Week honors in his first week in the big leagues. Six days after Tollberg, Frontier League legend Morgan Burkhart received his call to the Boston Red Sox. Burkhart singled in his first at bat off of Baltimore's Mike Mussina. Other great moments in 2000 included London's Brett Gray striking out a League Record 25 batters on opening night. This almost unheard of feat drew national attention and even saw memorabilia of the event going to the Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown. Gray was signed by the Cincinnati Reds two days later. There were also two no-hitters during the year, one by Chillicothe's Andy Lee and the other by Johnstown's Matt Sheets. The Johnstown Johnnies, who had barely played .500 ball in June, slugged their way to the League Championship. The River City Rascals eclipsed their own League attendance record by attracting in excess of 157,000 fans.

In 2001, the Gateway Grizzlies and Kalamazoo Kings were added to the League. These additions gave the League 12 teams. Gateway is based in Sauget, Illinois, a suburb east of St. Louis. They played their games in a temporary park in 2001, but opened a brand new $6.5 million ballpark in 2002. In Kalamazoo, a group of local businessmen led by automobile dealer Bill Wright brought baseball back in a big way. The Kings drew over 103,000 fans on their way to being named Frontier League Organization of the Year. The League saw its first former manager, Jack Clark of the River City Rascals, advance to the Major Leagues as the Hitting Coach for the Los Angeles Dodgers. A tremendous pennant race that was settled on the last night of the season led to the Richmond Roosters claiming their first FL crown. Attendance reached an all-time high of 719,000 fans.

The League again saw changes for the 2002 season. Rockford, Illinois replaced Springfield. Rockford is the second largest city in Illinois and the RiverHawks had the highest average in professional baseball history in Rockford. Washington, Pennsylvania was also added by purchasing the Canton Crocodiles. The Wild Things opened new Falconi Field with a bang as they established a League Record for wins in a single season and took the powerful East Division crown. Also, Canton native Mark Haidet purchased the London franchise and moved it to Canton and Thurman Munson Stadium. The Richmond Roosters won their second consecutive FL title, the first franchise to do that. The League set a record for attendance by drawing in excess of 950,000 fans to its parks. The League saw five more graduates reach the Major Leagues as Zanesville's Terry Pearson made the Detroit Tigers roster, Ohio Valley's Brendan Donnelly was called up by the Anaheim Angels and eventually gained a World Series win, J.J. Trujillo advanced to the Padres, and the Cardinals called up both Jason Simon-tacchi and Matt Duff. The Frontier League received national publicity in July, when media outlets such as The New York Times, the Washington Post, Fox Sports Radio, and Yahoo News covered the Home Run Derby that was used to break a tie in the All-Star Game at Kalamazoo. Footage of River City's Brody Jackson hitting the winning shot was featured as the Spotlight Segment on ESPN's SportsCenter the following night.

2003 was a record year for the League at the turnstiles. It was the first time in League history that the League attracted more than 1.1 million fans. The Gateway Grizzlies led the League in attendance and also claimed the League Championship en route to garnering the Organization of the Year award. The All-Star Game was a huge success and was televised by Fox Sports Midwest. In 2003, the League entered three new markets. Canton relocated to Columbia, Missouri, Dubois County relocated to Kenosha, Wisconsin and Johnstown ended an eight year run in the League by selling to Florence, Kentucky. The Florence club played their games in Hamilton, Ohio while their new stadium was constructed and ready for play in 2004. Former Ohio Valley Redcoat Brendan Donnelly became the first former Frontier League player selected to the MLB All-Star Game. Donnelly, pitching for the Anaheim Angels, retired all three batters that he faced in the 8th inning and was the winning pitcher in the game.

In 2004, the League again took a dramatic jump in attendance. Nearly 1.3 million fans entered the turnstiles of Frontier League stadiums. The Gateway Grizzlies led the charge, being the first team to draw over 200,000 fans in a single season and average more than 4000 fans per night. The League expanded its schedule to 96 games with the majority of those games as intra-divisional play. Also, the first round of playoffs was expanded to a best-of-5 game series. The Rockford RiverHawks claimed their first League title, sweeping the Evansville Otters 3 games to 0. Rockford's Richard Austin was named the League's MVP. Former Evansville Otters left-hander George Sherrill was the tenth former FL player to advance to the Major Leagues as he pitched for the Seattle Mariners. Plans for new Frontier League stadiums were announced in Rockford, Illinois and Traverse City, Michigan.

In 2005, the League attracted close to 1.2 million fans to its ballparks. The Kalamazoo Kings claimed their first League title in one of the most exciting playoff series in League history, defeating the Chillicothe Paints 3 games to 2. The Washington Wild Things hosted the All-Star Game to a sellout crowd at Falconi Field. Frontier League clubs moved 25 players to MLB clubs, and Kalamazoo's Pete Pirman won the Morgan Burkhardt Award as the League's Most Valuable Player, eclipsing the League RBI record in the process. Following the season, the League suspended operations of the Ohio Valley and Mid-Missouri clubs for 2006. John and Leslye Wuerfel purchased the Richmond Roosters and relocated the club to their home town of Traverse City.

In 2006, the Frontier League drew almost 1.3 million fans to its 10 clubs. This translated to an average attendance of 2,713, the highest per game attendance in League history. The Evansville Otters opened their home schedule on May 27, when they became the first Frontier League team to draw 1,000,000 fans in their history. Much of the attendance increase was due to new facilities in Rockford, Illinois and Traverse City, Michigan. The Frontier League's 14th Annual All-Star Game was played in Evansville's historic Bosse Field and was televised into more than 14 million homes on Fox Sports Net. The West Division won the game in a Home Run Derby tie-breaker when Evansville's Beau Blacken slammed the game winner. Kalamazoo's Ian Church was the MVP of the All-Star Game as well as the League MVP. He was only the second player in League history to hit more than 30 homers in a season. In a battle of the League's two oldest teams, the Evansville Otters defeated the Chillicothe Paints 3 games to 0 to claim their first League championship. Former River City Rascal, Josh Kinney, was the 13th former FL player to play in the Major Leagues. He was an integral part of the St. Louis Cardinals run to the World Series Championship.

In 2007, the Frontier League drew a record 1.5 million fans to its 12 clubs. It was the highest per game average for attendance in League history. Much of the attendance increase was due to the addition of the Southern Illinois Miners that drew more than 5000 fans per game and a League Record total attendance of 259,392 fans to Rent One Park. The League's 15th Annual All-Star Game was played in Florence, Ky., and was the first game ever sold out for the Freedom organization. The South All-Stars won the game, as Florence's Reggie Watson garnered MVP honors. In a tremendous FL Championship Series, the Windy City Thunderbolts came from a 2 game deficit to defeat the Washington Wild Things in one of the greatest Championship Series in League history. It was the first championship for the ThunderBolts in their club history. Chillicothe Paints shortstop Travis Garcia earned the League's Morgan Burkhart Award as the Most Valuable Player.

In 2008, the Frontier League drew 1.46 million fans to its 11 home clubs, as the Midwest team operated as a road team the entire year. The Southern Illinois Miners again paced the League by attracting over 218,000 fans. The League's 16th Annual All-Star Game was played in beautiful Wuerfel Park in Traverse City, Michigan, and saw in excess of 9,000 fans in attendance for two nights of festivities. The East All-Stars won the game, in a tie-breaking All-Star Home Run Derby. Florence's Angel Molina garnered MVP honors. The Kalamazoo Kings were featured prominently in a story-line of the nationally syndicated comic strip Gil Thorp that ran for several weeks in July. In the League Championship Series, Homer Stryker Field in Kalamazoo was flooded with over 3 feet of water due to storms. The entire series was moved to Windy City's Standard Bank Stadium. The ThunderBolts took advantage of the situation and swept the Kings 3 games to 0 to claim their second FL Championship in a row and became only the second team in League history to win back-to-back titles. Windy City First Baseman Phillip Hawke claimed the League's Most Valuable Player Award. Ryan Bird of Southern Illinois was the Most Valuable Pitcher. Kalamazoo Manager Fran Riordan was honored as the Manager of the Year. Three additional Frontier League graduates made their Major League Baseball debuts, as outfielder Justin Christian (River City Rascals, 2003-04) and right-handed pitcher Scott Patterson (Gateway Grizzlies, 2002-05) spent time with the New York Yankees (Patterson later appeared in games for the San Diego Padres, as well) and infielder Mike Cervenak (Chillicothe Paints, 1999-2000) was called up by the Philadelphia Phillies. In addition, former Evansville Otter George Sherrill became the second Frontier League alum to be named an MLB All-Star, as the left-hander tossed 2.1 scoreless innings in the game.

The 2009 season saw the opening of another new ballpark with All Pro Freight Stadium in Avon, Ohio, hosting the Lake Erie Crushers, while the Midwest Sliders set up camp in Ypsilanti, Michigan, to give their players a home for the season and introduce Frontier League baseball to the metro Detroit market. Two major League milestones were set. Rockford outfielder Jason James hit safely in 40 consecutive games from June 2 to July 18 to break the record set by former Johnstown Steal and Richmond Rooster Kevin Holt, while Kalamazoo's Fran Riordan overtook Greg Tagert as the all-time winningest field manager in Frontier League history. Other individual accomplishments included Florence's Preston Vancil tossing a no-hitter in only his second professional appearance, Windy City's Robert Perry tying the League record with a six-hit game, and Traverse City's John Alonso hitting for the cycle. Both the Gateway Grizzlies and Lake Erie Crushers received national television exposure, the Grizzlies on the Travel Channel's Man v. Food for their "Baseball's Best" line-up of concession items while the Crushers had an ESPN crew follow the team to document the story of pitcher Josh Faiola, who spent the season living at the Belvedere of Westlake, an assisted living facility located just down I-90 from the Crushers' ballpark. The East Division captured the All-Star Game, helped by back-to-back home runs from game MVP Ryan Basham of the Florence Freedom and Home Run Derby champion Grant Psomas of the Washington Wild Things. In a playoff race where none of the participants clinched berths until the final weekend of the regular season, the Windy City ThunderBolts became only the third team to qualify in three consecutive seasons while the Kalamazoo Kings repeated as East Division champions. Both were knocked out in the first round, however, as Frontier League Manager of the Year Chad Parker led the River City Rascals against the expansion Crushers in the Championship Series. After dropping the first two games in the best-of-five series, Lake Erie rebounded to win the final three games and join the 1997 Canton Crocodiles as the only expansion team from the last 15 years to win the title. Joey Metropolitous of the Southern Illinois Miners was selected League MVP, with Paul Fagan of the Lake Erie Crushers as the Pitcher of the Year and Windy City's Vinnie Scarduzio the Rookie of the Year. Two more former players made their Major League Baseball debuts, with former Florence Freedom and Ohio Valley Redcoat pitcher Chris Jakubauskas (the first pick in the Frontier League's 2003 draft) making the Opening Day roster for the Seattle Mariners and Clay Zavada getting called up to the Arizona Diamondbacks' bullpen less than one year after suiting up for the Southern Illinois Miners.

The 2010 season saw the opening of another new ballpark (The Corn Crib, home of the Normal CornBelters), two record winning-streaks, and a new Frontier League all-time home run king. Over 5,800 fans were at The Corn Crib on June 1 when professional baseball returned to the Bloomington-Normal area for the first time in 70 years. The Southern Illinois Miners shattered the league record for a consecutive game winning streak, posting 20 consecutive victories from June 9-28. The Miners 39-9 record at the All-Star Break was the best ever in the Frontier League, and Southern Illinois placed a league-record 10 players in the All-Star Game, which they hosted at Rent One Park in Marion. In the East Division, the Oakland County Cruisers won 29 of 37 games, despite playing all but six on the road, to give first year field manager Gera Alvarez the All-Star nod. The extensive travel for the Cruisers, who played 78 games on the road, combined by a league-record 20 home game winning streak for the Windy City ThunderBolts from July 22-August 25, gave Windy City their third division title in four seasons. The ThunderBolts joined the 1997-2000 Evansville Otters and the 2002-2007 Washington Wild Things as the only teams to make the playoffs in at least four consecutive seasons. While Southern Illinois maintained their lead in the West the entire season, both wild card races came down to the season's final weekend with River City edging out Gateway in the West and Traverse City reaching the playoffs for the first time in their five seasons in the East. The Divisional Series matchups both featured comebacks, as the Beach Bums dropped game 1 to Windy City before taking the next three and Southern Illinois took the first two games from River City before the Rascals rebounded to game the final three games, including a 10-inning victory in the deciding game. In the Championship Series, Traverse City took the opening game with River City winning the next three for their first title. Championship Series MVP Josh Lowey threw a complete game in game 3, which was spread out over two days due to rain, including retiring all 15 batters that he faced after the game restarted. Gateway's Charlie Lisk won the regular season MVP award in a year that saw him break the career home run record. Joe Augustine from Southern Illinois was the Pitcher of the Year, while Windy City's Dustin Williams won Rookie of the Year. Between the regular season and the playoffs, over 1.52 million fans saw Frontier League baseball in 2010, setting a new record.

2011 brought another new market to the Frontier League with the expansion Joliet Slammers and saw the return of the Rockford RiverHawks under new ownership led by Frontier League founder Dr. Chris Hanners. The River City Rascals used a stretch of 12 wins in 13 games in late June to jump to the top of the West Division where they would remain for the remainder of the season. River City's 68 victories tied them with the 2007 Windy City ThunderBolts for the most in one season. The Slammers played .660 baseball from July 1 through the end of August to become the first expansion team to win their division. Southern Illinois comfortably won the West wild card, while the East wild card came down to the final series with Lake Erie and Traverse City facing each other for the right to advance to the playoffs. After the teams split the first two games, it took ten innings on the final day of regular season for the Crushers to notch a 3-1 victory. Joliet and River City both advanced in the Divisional round leading to a Championship Series between the two division winners. After the Rascals took game 1 in River City, Joliet rebounded to win the next three games to bring the Frontier League Cup to the City of Champions.

2011 saw several on-field achievements highlighted by Joliet's Andrew Moss tossing the 15th no-hitter in Frontier League history against the Lake Erie Crushers. Moss' gem came just a few hours after the Cleveland Indians were no-hit by the Los Angeles Angels of Anaheim 20 miles to the east of All Pro Freight Stadium and resulted in national coverage of two professional games featuring no-hitters by the visiting clubs on the same day in the same metropolitan area. Joliet's Ryan Quigley recorded 28 saves to set a new record while Windy City's Dustin Williams set a new mark by striking out 157 batters. River City swept the MVP and Pitcher of the Year awards with Stephen Holdren finishing in the top 5 in home runs, RBI, and batting average while Josh Lowey was in the top 5 in victories, strikeouts, and ERA. Joliet's Erik Lis had a triple and drove in two runs to lead the East Division to an All-Star Game victory in front of the largest crowd in All Pro Freight Stadium history. Two more Frontier League alumni made their MLB debuts in 2011 as former Washington Wild Thing Tom Cochran was called up by the Cincinnati Reds for a nationally televised game in late May and former Windy City Thunder-Bolt Dylan Axelrod made four appearances (three starts) for the Chicago White Sox in September, finishing with a 1-0 record, 2.89 ERA, and 19 strikeouts in 18.2 innings.

The Frontier League added to their presence in the Chicago area in 2012 with the debut of the Schaumburg Boomers. The Boomers brought an outstanding operation to the Frontier League both on and off the field, starting with over 6,000 fans to watch their inaugural home game. In his first managerial job, the Boomers' Jamie Bennett, who spent time in Dubois County, Kenosha, and Springfield/Ozark during his playing career, managed the West Division in the All-Star Game where he battled Traverse City's Gregg Langbehn, who set a record by having 10 of his players selected for the game. Over 5,000 fans attended the game at The Corn Crib in Normal where London's Joash Brodin was named MVP. Going into the final weekend of the regular season, only Traverse City had clinched a playoff berth, with Florence, Gateway, Lake Erie, Schaumburg, Southern Illinois, and Windy City all in the running for the three remaining spots. The Gateway Grizzlies won 16 out of 20 games in late July to jump into the race and finished with nine victories in their final 12 games to take the West Division title. The Florence Freedom won 13 of their final 14 games to take the top Wild Card spot while the Southern Illinois Miners qualified for the playoffs for the fourth time in the past five seasons. The Miners swept the Beach Bums in the first round while the Freedom defeated the Grizzlies in a series that went the full five games, setting up a Championship Series featuring two first-time participants. Southern Illinois captured their first title behind an 8-for-16 hitting performance from Championship Series MVP Cannon Lester. Seven of the 14 teams had a former Frontier League player as their field manager.

Individual achievements included a no-hitter by Windy City's Tyson Corley, Gateway's Jonathan Johnson reaching base safely in 65 consecutive games, Rockford's Javier Herrera hitting for the cycle, Traverse City's Ryan Still becoming the first player to walk 100 times in a season, and Darian Sanford setting the stolen base record with 71 for Southern Illinois and Washington. League MVP Jose Vargas tied the single-season mark with 100 RBI for Traverse City while Windy City's Mike Recchia broke the records for strikeouts (177) and shutouts (5) in a season in being voted Pitcher of the Year. Former Evansville and Windy City pitcher Andrew Werner made his Major League debut with the San Diego Padres, becoming the 23rd player to advance to the big leagues. Following the season, former Zanesville Grey and Springfield Capital Darren Bush was named Bullpen Coach for the Oakland Athletics, becoming the first former Frontier League player to be part of a Major League coaching staff.

Following the 2012 season, Rockford announced a rebranding of the team with Aviators selected following a name-the-team contest.

The 2013 season was one of the most competitive in Frontier League history. For the first time since 2009 no club won 60 games while nine clubs reached the 50 victory plateau. Entering the final three games of the regular season, only the Schaumburg Boomers had clinched a playoff berth while six clubs were in the running for the final four spots, and two different scenarios would have resulted in a four-way tie. The Boomers won 26 of their final 35 regular season games to take the West Division title while in the East the battle came down to a head-to-head series between Lake Erie and Traverse City to end the season. The Crushers won the first two games to clinch their first division crown after a run of 19-2 to begin August launched them into the playoff race. Schaumburg won the title, becoming the first club in the ten seasons that the Frontier League has used a best-of-five format for both playoff rounds to sweep both series. More impressively, the Boomers were either tied or trailing at some point after the start of the 7th inning in all six games. Mike Giovenco was named Championship Series MVP, pitching in all three games and winning two while not allowing any runs.

For individual accomplishments, Traverse City's Scott Dunn became the first pitcher in league history to win his first 14 decisions of the season, including a stretch of victories in nine consecutive starts, to run away with the Pitcher of the Year award. The Most Valuable Player vote was once of the closest in history, with league RBI leader Jacob Tanis of Florence winning the balloting. River City catcher Danny Canela led the Frontier League with a .360 batting average and was voted Rookie of the Year. Gateway's Landon Hernandez hit three home runs in a game on August 3, Joliet's Niko Vasquez hit for the cycle on September 4, and the Grizzlies' Tim Brown tossed a no-hitter on July 20. On August 31, Chase Doremus, Lucas Goodgion, Jason Sullivan, Corey Kimes, Matt Dillon, and Brett Zawacki of the Slammers combined to toss a 10-inning no-hitter. It is believed that this game was the first time in professional baseball history that six pitchers combined to hold another club hitless. Florence's Junior Arrojo broke his own single-season record by getting hit by 38 pitches while Evansville's Eric Massingham set the career mark for saves. In a game that was suspended due to rain the previous night, Washington and Windy City battled for 5:53 and 19-innings on June 1-2 for what turned out to be the first game of a double-header to mark the longest Frontier League contest by both innings and time.

Two more Frontier League alumni made their Major League debuts in 2013. Former Washington Wild Thing Vidal Nuno won the James P. Dawson Award as the best rookie in New York Yankees' spring training and pitched in five games (three starts) with a 1-2 record and 2.25 ERA during the regular season. Former Southern Illinois Miner Tanner Roark saw action in 14 games (five starts) for the Washington Nationals, winning his first seven decisions as part of a 7-1 record and 1.51 ERA. Steve Delabar of the Toronto Blue Jays, who spent part of the 2008 season with the Florence Freedom, became the third former Frontier League player to be selected a MLB All-Star when he won the fan's Final Vote contest for the American League. Delabar struck out the only batter whom he faced, Buster Posey of the San Francisco Giants, in the game.

In the press box, Robert Ford (Houston Astros) and Aaron Goldsmith (Seattle Mariners) became the first two former Frontier League broadcasters to become full-time MLB play-by-play voices. Both Robert and Aaron began their professional careers in the Frontier League, Robert with the 2003-04 Kalamazoo Kings and Aaron with the 2007 Gateway Grizzlies.

The 2014 season was a banner one for the Frontier League. With the playoff field expanding from four teams to six, a tight playoff race ensued. The West Division race ended with both the River City Rascals and Schaumburg Boomers holding 61-35 records, with the Rascals taking the division title and advancing to the divisional play-off round by virtue of a head to head advantage. The East Division sent four teams to the playoffs, the Southern Illinois Miners (60-36), Evansville Otters (57-37), Washington Wild Things (57-39) and Lake Erie Crushers (52-43). Evansville reached the postseason for the first time since 2006, while Washington's postseason appearance was their first since 2007. In the Wild Card matchups, the Boomers knocked off the Crushers while the Wild Things beat the Otters. The divisional round saw the Rascals beat the Wild Things and the Boomers beat the Miners, setting up an all West Division championship series, with Schaumburg looking to repeat as Frontier League Champions. The championship series began in O'Fallon with a 5-1 victory for the home team. In game 2 Schaumburg found success as shortstop Gerard Hall homered for the second straight game and Justin Erasmus went 5.2 strong innings, leading the Boomers to a 6-2 win and a split in O'Fallon before heading home for games 3 and 4. Game 3 saw an offensive explosion for the Boomers, who hung 11 runs on Rascals pitching and took a commanding 2 games to 1 lead with an 11-2 victory. Game 4 ended triumphantly for the Boomers as well, as they won 6-2 and made the Boomers the third team in the league's history to win consecutive championships. Hall was selected as the Championship Series MVP.

The 2014 season also saw numerous historic individual performances in the Frontier League. Reliever Patrick Crider of the Rascals broke his own record by appearing in 65 games and Washington closer Jonathan Kountis set a new league record with 32 saves. Southern Illinois' Chris Burke tied a Frontier League record with 9 RBI in a July 30 game that saw him also hit for the cycle and Gateway's Richard Seigel (June 28) and Ryan Cavan of Southern Illinois (August 19) both tied a league record with 6 hits in games. Frank Florio of the Frontier Greys had a big day on July 30 as well, joining Burke in hitting for the cycle. Windy City's Mike Torres became the Frontier League's Iron Man when he appeared in his 287th consecutive game on May 25. Torres' streak, which began on June 1, 2011, eventually ended on July 29 at 339 games. Entering the last couple of weeks of the season, four no-hitters had taken place. Rick Teasley of Southern Illinois threw a 7 inning no hitter on June 5, Travis Tingle of Windy City threw a pair of no-hitters on June 19 (5 innings) and August 20 (7 innings) and Evansville's Chad James threw a 7 inning no-no on August 20. Matt Sergey of Washington, however, took impressive pitching performances to another level on August 24 against Gateway, throwing the first perfect game in Frontier League history in a full 9 inning game. Shayne Houck of the Otters was named the season's MVP, while Southern Illinois' Matt Bywater won Pitcher of the Year and Rockford Aviators' Tanner Witt won the Rookie of the Year award.

A historic number of Frontier League players were picked up by MLB organizations, as over 50 players got the call to affiliated baseball since the beginning of the 2014 season. Drew Rucinski, who played for the Rockford RiverHawks and Aviators, made his big league debut for the Angels, becoming the 26th former Frontier League player to reach the show. Also representing the Frontier League in the big leagues in 2014 were Dylan Axelrod (Reds), Steve Delabar (Blue Jays), Vidal Nuno (Yankees and Diamondbacks), Tanner Roark (Nationals) and Joe Thatcher (Diamondbacks and Angels). Prior to the 2014 season, former Traverse City Beach Bums manager Gregg Langbehn was hired by the Cleveland Indians as their first MLB Replay Coordinator, followed just days later by former Windy City ThunderBolts manager Mike Kashirsky, who was hired to the same position by the Chicago White Sox. Following the season alumnae Darren Bush was promoted by the Oakland Athletics to hitting coach.

The 2014 season saw the initial class of Frontier League hall of famers inducted at All-Star week, hosted by the Gateway Grizzlies. Players Morgan Burkhardt, Aaron Ledbetter, Scott Pinoni, Fran Riordan and Kirk Taylor were selected for induction, as were special contributor Dr. W. Chris Hanners and the special moment of Brett Gray's 25 strikeout game for the London Werewolves.

2015 featured playoff races that were not decided until the final day of the regular season and another MLB debut. Brandon Cunniff, who played for River City and Southern Illinois, spent the bulk of 2015 in the Atlanta Braves' bullpen, setting a Braves' rookie record for the most games pitched at the start of a MLB career without allowing a hit. The Normal CornBelts made the playoffs for the first time by winning the West Division, while the Southern Illinois Miners defended their East Division title. The Rockford Aviators and Florence Freedom edged out Evansville for the final two playoff spots. The River City Rascals defeated Florence then Southern Illinois to return to the Championship Series for the fifth time in the last seven seasons. The Rascals' Josh Silver hit two grand slams in the deciding game over the Miners, becoming the first player in either regular or post-season history to achieve this feat. The finals were a rematch of the 2010 season, with a Traverse City sweep giving the Beach Bums their first title. River City's Taylor Ard led the league in both home runs (30) and RBI (83) to capture the MVP award while Southern Illinois' Adam Lopez was voted Pitcher of the Year and Brandon Tierney of the Frontier Greys selected Rookie of the Year. Normal's Patrick McKenna posted one of the best single games in league history on August 2 with three home runs and nine RBI, both tying league records. A league-record crowd of 6,572 saw the West Division top the East in the All-Star Game in Schaumburg, with Rockford's Michael Hur selected as game MVP.

The Greys received national attention through a feature story in Maxim Magazine, and six members of their pitching staff went on to be signed by MLB organizations. The Washington Wild Things also received national publicity, as a story on Pete Rose featured pictures of the Hit King wearing a Wild Things uniform during an appearance at CONSOL Energy Park. Former Grey Balbino Fuenmayor became the first FL alum to be selected for the MLB Futures Game, and following the season former Rockford Aviators Jose Martinez (Royals) and Josh Smoker (Mets) were added to their club's 40-man MLB roster. The Chicago White Sox hired Jason Bennett, who broke in as the radio broadcaster for Windy City in 2006, as their TV announcer for home games. The second Frontier League Hall of Fame Class was inducted as part of the All-Star festivities, with former players

Mike Breyman, Bobby Chandler, Stephen Holdren, Jason James, and Chris Sidick inducted along with special contributor Bob Wolfe. The 2002 All-Star Game Home Run Derby, the highlights of which were featured as the Spotlight Segment on ESPN's SportsCenter, was honored as the significant moment in league history.

The 2016 season was the tightest since the Frontier League schedule expanded to 96 games, as with three weeks left in the regular season all 12 clubs were within 2.5 games of a playoff berth. Southern Illinois used a 20-3 run from June 4-July 1 to vault to the top of the West Division where they remained for the rest of the season to claim their third consecutive division title. In the East, Joliet used a streak of 12 wins in 15 games in early June and spent the bulk of the season in first place to qualify for the playoffs for the first time since 2011. Evansville won 10 of their final 14 games to claim the top Wild Card spot, while River City's victory on the final day of the regular season edged them past Lake Erie for the remaining position. The Rascals advanced to their sixth championship series in the past eight seasons to face the Otters, who advanced for the first time since their 2006 Championship. The series went the maximum five games for the first time since the 2009 season, with the Otters pulling out a 1-0 victory in front of the home Bosse Field crowd in what was described as the tightest deciding game in Frontier League history.

On-field excitement began early as Kramer Champlin celebrated receiving his 2015 Championship ring at Traverse City's home opener by tossing the first no-hitter in Beach Bums' history. Gateway's Brandon Thomas hit a grand slam on August 21 against Joliet with the ball leaving the stadium and crashing through the front windshield of Thomas's own pickup. Video of the shot and resulting damage received national publicity, and Thomas was interviewed live on ESPN from GCS Ballpark the following evening. Evansville's long-time Flag Chairman Marvin Gray, a fixture at Bosse Field and sporting events throughout Indiana for over 60 years, passed away on July 27. Four more players made their Major League debuts in 2017, starting with Josh Smoker, the 2nd overall pick in the 2014 Frontier League draft, who was called up to be the 26th player for the New York Mets' double-header on July 26. Smoker did not appear that day, but was recalled on August 19 and saw action in 20 games with a 3-0 record. Former London Ripper and Florence Freedom outfielder Stephen Cardullo was promoted by the Colorado Rockies on August 26, and celebrated his 29th birthday five days later by hitting home runs in both games of a double-header, including a grand slam. Jose Martinez from the 2014 Rockford Aviators got the call from St. Louis on September 6 and hit .438 over 12 games for the Cardinals. Chris Smith, who came out of the 2010 Frontier League draft and saw action with the Lake Erie Crushers, Traverse City Beach Bums, and Washington Wild Things, was promoted by the Toronto Blue Jays as bullpen support for the last week of the regular season. Off the field, Jason Benetti, who began his broadcasting career as the voice of the Windy City ThunderBolts in 2005, became the first former Frontier League broadcaster to be named the television voice of a Major League team when he was hired by the Chicago White Sox for the 2016 season.

The Florence Freedom hosted the All-Star Game for the second time in their history, with the host West Division posting a 11-4 victory aided by game MVP Nik Balog's 3-run home run. The All-Star events also saw the induction of Richard Austin, Willie Edwards, Charlie Lisk, Joey Metropoulos, and Matt Schweitzer along with recognition of long-time umpire Max McLeary as a Special Contributor and acknowledgement of Brian Tollberg becoming the first former Frontier League player to advance to the Major Leagues as the Significant Moment.

The 2017 off-season started with former Frontier Grey Ariel Hernandez being added to the Cincinnati Reds' 40-man roster. 12 former Frontier League players were part of World Baseball Classic rosters, including Tanner Roark, who made his professional debut with the Southern Illinois Miners in 2008 and became the first former FL player to play for Team USA. Roark, whose 16 wins in 2016 for the Washington Nationals tied him for fifth in the National League, started the WBC semi-final game against Japan and tossed four scoreless innings.

The 2017 Frontier League season began with early excitement as Evansville's Shane Weedman tossed only the second no-hitter in the Otters' 22-season history on May 13, striking out 11 Southern Illinois Miners in the process. The Florence Freedom won their first eight games of the season to jump to the top of the West Division, a spot that they held for the bulk of the season in winning their first division title. The Schaumburg Boomers also started the season hot, winning 24 of their first 32 games. The Boomers rebounded from a league-worst 41-55 record in 2016 to a 66-30 mark, the third most wins in Frontier League history. While the two division winners were set with more than a week remaining in the regular season, five clubs entered the final series of the year within reach of a wild card spot. Washington won seven of their final eight games to claim only the Wild Things' second playoff berth in the past ten seasons while the defending champion Evansville Otters used an 8-2 streak at the end of August to get the second wild card. Schaumburg and Florence both won 3-1 first round series to create a Championship Series featuring the two All-Star Game managers. Schaumburg's Jamie Bennett and Florence's Dennis Pelfrey were teammates in the Frontier League from 2002-04, making 2017 the first time that former teammates managed against each other in either the All-Star Game and the Championship Series. Jamie (pitcher) and Dennis (catcher) both made the 2003 All-Star Game while with the Kenosha Mammoths. Schaumburg prevailed in the finals to give the Boomers their third title in the past five seasons.

Key individual achievements included Traverse City's Will Kengor tying the record with three home runs on July 9 while both David Harris of Schaumburg (June 22) and L.J. Kalawaia from Lake Erie (July 22) hit for the cycle. On the pitching side, River City's Nick Kennedy became the career leader for games pitched with 255 outings over his six seasons with the Rascals. Southern Illinois set a new record for runs scored in an inning with 15 in the 4th at Normal on June 4, a mark that Evansville tied on July 25 against Traverse City (also the 4th inning). Harris had a quality all-around season by hitting .344 with 13 home runs, 65 RBI, and 13 stolen bases to become the first Boomer named Most Valuable Player. Evansville's Max Duval won Pitcher of the Year after leading the league in ERA by a quarter of a run and had the most strikeouts when the Miami Marlins purchased his contract. Kyano Cummings, also of Evansville, became the second player in three years out of the California Winter League to claim Rookie of the Year honors while Washington's All-Star outfielder Rashad Brown earned the Citizenship Award.

The Cincinnati Reds promoted Ariel Hernandez of the 2015 Frontier Greys on April 23, making the first from the Greys teams and the 32nd overall to advance. Hernandez made his MLB debut the following night, retiring all eight batters that he faced, five by strikeout. Hernandez was one of nine former Frontier League players to appear in Major League games in 2017, which included former Florence Freedom hurler Aaron Wilkerson whose debut with the Milwaukee Brewers included holding the St. Louis Cardinals to only two hits and one run in seven innings. The path to MLB continued at the beginning of the 2018 season as Trevor Richards, who made his professional debut with Gateway in 2015, continued the work that had him named Minor League Pitcher of the Year for the Miami Marlins by making their starting rotation.

Several former Frontier League personal received significant achievements in MLB as well. Robert Ford, the Broadcaster of the Year in 2003 and 2004 with the Kalamazoo Kings, was able to call the final out of the 2017 World Series as the Houston Astros' radio play-by-play man. Former Dubois County hitting coach and Windy City manager Andy Haines was promoted to the Chicago Cubs' Major League staff for 2018 as their assistant hitting coach. Jeff Albert from the 2002 Washington Wild Things was named to the same role for the Houston Astros. Fran Riordan, a former All-Star player and the Frontier League's winningest manager, was promoted to manage Oakland's Triple-A club, the Nashville Sounds. Former Schaumburg Boomer and two-time Frontier League champion Frank Pfister was named Mental Skills Coach for the Cincinnati Reds. Two former FL pitching coaches, Mark Dewey (Washington) and Chris Hook (Florence) were named co-pitching coordinators for the Milwaukee Brewers while former Evansville pitcher and long-time FL pitching coach Brendan Sagara was hired as the Chicago Cubs' pitching coordinator. Jason Simontacchi, the 1998 Pitcher of the Year while with the Springfield Capitals, was hired for the same role with Kansas City while his former Springfield teammate Steve Barningham was promoted to Global Crosschecker by the New York Mets.

The 2018 season featured a new all-time hit leader, two more Major League debuts, a record number of alumni in the Majors, and the closest championship series since the best-of-five format was introduced for the 2000 season. Normal's Santiago Chirino lined a single to left-center in his first at bat at Gateway on June 24 to tie former Washington Wild Thing Chris Sidick. After walking in his next two at bats, Chirino drove a single to right field in the sixth inning to earn the record. Chirino led the league with a .367 average and finished his six-season Frontier League career with 726 hits. Other individual milestones included Washington's James Harris hitting for the cycle on May 17; Windy City's Tyler Straub tying the single-game hit record with six on July 6; Evansville's Ty Hensley and Matt Chavarria combining for a no-hitter on August 11; and Lake Erie's Alex Romero setting a record with 38.1 scoreless innings (from August 1 to August 31).

The publicity highlight from 2018 occurred on June 21, when former Indianapolis Colts' Pro Bowl punter Pat McAfee started in right field for the Washington Wild Things. McAfee, a native of nearby Plum High School and West Virginia University, brought the national audience from his Barstool Sports show to Wild Things Park. The game, which was billed as "Dingers Only Night", was used to benefit the "It's About the Warrior Foundation." The It's About the Warrior Foundation is a post-9/11 veteran's organization that assists and empowers all tri-state area post-9/11 veterans and their families with its various programs.

August began with no team no more than three games out of a playoff spot, and the tight races continued to the final weekend. Washington used a 21-9 streak starting on July 27 to finish with the same record as Joliet, where the Wild Things' 7-5 head-to-head mark gave them their first division title since 2007. River City won 11 of their final 14 contests to hold off Evansville for the West title. After Washington swept Evansville and Joliet knock off the Rascals in five games in the divisional series, the Slammers took a decisive game 5 of the Championship Series giving manager Jeff Isom his first professional title in his 19-year managerial career. The five games were decided by a total of eight runs, with no game featuring more than a 2-run differential.

Former Windy City ThunderBolt Ryan Bollinger became the 35th former Frontier League player to get the call to MLB when the New York Yankees promoted him on May 23. Along with Bollinger, Robert Stock, the top pick in the 2015 Frontier League draft by the Normal CornBelters, made his MLB debut, appearing in 32 games for San Diego and posting a 2.50 ERA. A total of ten former Frontier League players saw MLB time in 2018, the most in any single season.

During the off-season several former Frontier League players and coaches were promoted in their MLB organizations. Andy Haines, who started his professional career as hitting coach for Dubois County in 2002 and later managed the 2007 Windy City ThunderBolts to their first championship, was hired as hitting coach by the Milwaukee Brewers. Joining Andy on the Brewers' MLB staff is pitching coach Chris Hook, who served in the same role for the Florence Freedom for their first five seasons. Guillermo Martinez from the 2009-10 Windy City ThunderBolts was promoted to hitting coach by the Toronto Blue Jays and Jeff Albert was named hitting coach for the St. Louis Cardinals. Former ThunderBolts and Gateway Grizzlies third baseman Donnie Ecker was named assistant MLB hitting coach for Cincinnati as well.

The 2019 season began with another MLB debut, as former Rockford Aviator and Frontier Greys hurler Nick Anderson retired the only batter he faced in the Miami Marlins' opening game. Anderson became the 22nd player who began his career in the Frontier League to advance to the Majors.

Nick was traded to Tampa Bay along with former Gateway Grizzlie Trevor Richards at the MLB trade deadline on July 31 and both helped lead the Rays to a Wild Card berth. Nick was named the relief pitcher on Baseball America's All-Rookie Team following the season.

On the same date as the Anderson/Richards trade the Seattle Mariners promoted former Washington Wild Things' to their MLB roster. Grotz saw action in 14 games for the Mariners, recording a 1-0 record and 4.15

ERA while striking out 18 batters in 17.1 innings.

Inside the Frontier League, Most Valuable Player Ryan Long led the Evansville Otters to their first division title in 20 years. The Otters used a 17-5 stretch in August to catch Florence and claimed first place due to their 7-5 head-to-head record over the Freedom. Florence used a stretch of 13 wins in 14 games during late June to earn their second playoff spot in the past three seasons. The Lake Erie Crushers won their first division title in six seasons, while the River City Rascals claimed the final playoff spot. 2019 marked the eight time in eleven seasons that the Rascals' advanced to the playoffs. Sweeps in the Divisional Series put Florence and River City in the Championship Series. River City took a 2-1 series lead when Tanner Murphy and Nick Anderson hit back-to-back solo home runs in the bottom of the 9th to tie then win the game. A Florence victory in game 4 shifted the action back to UC Health Stadium, making the third time in the past four years that the Championship Series went the maximum five games. The Rascals scored six times in the top of the 7th inning to take the lead and hold on for the title, giving manager a title in his final season as River City manager to go along with the one from his inaugural season in 2010.

Schaumburg first baseman Quincy Nieporte posted the top single-game performance of 2019 on August 12 at Gateway. Nieporte came to the plate in each of the first three innings, producing a three-run home run in the first, a bases-clearing double in the second, and a grand slam in the third. The ten RBI set a new league single-game record. 24 players were sold to MLB organizations during the regular season, led by Evansville's five and four each from Florence and River City. Another nine players had their contracts purchased following the season.

The media highlight came when Florence's "Dad Bod" replica jerseys worn on Father's Day were subsequently featured on MLB Network.

The biggest event of 2019 came when the Frontier League traveled to Rockland County, New York, to face the Can-Am League in the All-Star Game. Game MVP J.J. Fernandez and his Washington teammate Hector Roa combined to go five-for-eight with a double, home run, four runs scored, and four RBI while ten pitchers combined to strike out 13 Can-Am batters while walking only two and surrendering only six hits in the 7-0 victory.

The All-Star festivities were just a precursor to the biggest announcement in the Frontier League's 27-year history. A press conference on October 17 streamed on-line and viewed by over 500 media outlets announced that the New Jersey Jackals, Quebec Capitales, Rockland Boulders, Sussex County Miners, and Trois-Rivieres Aigles from the Can-Am League would be merging into the Frontier League. The additional clubs make the Frontier League the largest independent league while stretching the borders from the Mississippi River to the Atlantic Ocean and from the Ohio River to the Saint Lawrence Seaway.

Changes continued to occur leading up the 2020 season. Rebranding efforts led to the newly named Florence Y'all and New York Boulders. Playoff managers Dennis Pelfrey (San Francisco Giants) and Cam Roth (Detroit Tigers) were hired to manage affiliated teams. Former Windy City pitcher Dylan Axelrod was named assistant pitching coordinator for the Los Angeles Angels while his former ThunderBolt teammates Donnie Ecker was named hitting coach for San Francisco and Ricky Meinhold was promoted to pitching coordinator for the New York Mets. Former Chillicothe and Lake Erie infielder Drew Saylor was hired as hitting coordinator for the Kansas City Royals and former Kalamazoo infielder and manager Chris Newell was hired to manage in the New York Mets' system.

Following a cancelled 2020 season due to the COVID-19 pandemic, the Frontier League announced a partner league with Major League Baseball. They also announced the expansion to the city of Ottawa, Ontario, Canada. Professional baseball in Ottawa dates back 1951 when the National League's New York Giants had their International League affiliate play out of Canada's capital. Following a name-the-team contest, the ownership group headlined by former Winnipeg Mayor and current Goldeyes owner, Sam Katz, Ottawa lawyer Jacques J.M. Shore and the Ottawa Sports & Entertainment Group settled on 'Titans' as the teams identity. In January 2021, Major League Baseball announced it would be trimming their minor league program to 120 teams. Of the teams who cut ties with MiLB, the Tri-City ValleyCats were welcomed as the league's 16th franchise, playing out of Troy, New York. The ValleyCats served as the short season-A affiliate of the Houston Astros since 2002 and earned two-New York Penn League championships in their 18 seasons. Notable former ValleyCats include: George Springer (Toronto Blue Jays), Jose Altuve (Houston Astros), Dallas Keuchel (Chicago White Sox), Kike Hernandez (Boston Red Sox), and J.D Martinez (Boston Red Sox). The continued closure of the Canada-United States border unfortunately results in pushing the Titans' first game to the 2022 season. Ottawa, Quebec, and Trois-Rivieres were replaced on the 2021 schedule by Équipe Québec. Équipe Québec used the Canadian players from the Capitales, Aigles, and Titans to craft the base of their roster and spent the first half of the season on the road, before returning to Canada in late July. Équipe Québec split home games between Stade Canac in Quebec City and Stade Quillorama in Trois-Rivieres. Équipe Québec visited all 13 United States ballparks in 2021, allowing fans throughout the league to cheer the French-Canadian club. The club won the Atlantic Division on the final day of the season, but fell in the Eastern semi-final to Washington in five games.

The 2022 season was the second season for the Frontier League as a Professional Partner League of Major League Baseball, and featured the debut of their partnership with FloBaseball and FloSports that allowed fans to watch every Frontier League game live, and follow their teams both at home and on the road. The season also saw the debut of the new "Sudden Death" rule, which determined the outcome of games if still tied after one extra inning of play. In total, there were six games decided this way in 2022.

Several milestones were reached during the 2022 season. The New York Boulders broke the record for team home runs in a game with nine, defeating Tri-City 23-8 on July 12. Chase Dawson of the Schaumburg Boomers broke the record for most triples in a season with 24. Jorge Tavarez of the New Jersey Jackals threw the lone no-hitter of the year, eliminating Sussex County from the playoff race on September 2. Santiago Chirino of the New Jersey Jackals, already the Frontier League's all-time leader in games played and hits, set new league records for runs scored (440) and doubles (140). Also, the Washington Wild Things got their 1,000th win as a club in 2022, and became the fastest team to 1,000 wins in Frontier League history.

The marketing highlight involved the Tri-City signing of right-handed pitcher Kumar Rocker in June. Rocker made five starts for the ValleyCats, posting a 1.35 ERA and striking out 32 batters over 20 innings, as he prepared for the MLB Draft. The Texas Rangers selected Rocker with the 3rd overall pick, while the Pittsburgh Pirates selected Josh Loeschorn from the New York Boulders later in the draft.

Led by Frontier League Manager of the Year, Tom Vaeth, the Washington Wild Things were the first team to clinch a playoff spot, winning the West Division title. They spent much of the regular season at the top of the division, and stayed there for good after the All-Star Break. In the East division, the Québec Capitales owned a 12-game winning streak in the first half, dominating the division while staying in first place for the entirety of the season.

In the playoffs, Schaumburg faced off against Evansville and New York battled Ottawa in the West and East Division Wild Card Games. The Boomers defeated the Otters 5-1, while Ottawa rolled over the Boulders 8-2. In the East Division Series, the Capitales would have a tough fight with the Titans, but ultimately advanced in the do-or-die Game 3. Meanwhile, in the West Division Series, Schaumburg swept the Wild Things in the best-of-three set.

In the Frontier League Championship Series, the Boomers and Capitales split the first two games in Schaumburg, with Québec taking the first game 6-3 and Schaumburg taking game two 9-1. The series then shifted to Québec, where the Capitales proceeded to take the next two games, winning the third game of the series 4-3 in walk-off fashion on a two-run double with two outs in ninth by Ruben Castro. Castro would remain the hero in the next game by hitting a walk-off sacrifice fly which allowed the Capitales to take game 4 and win the championship.

The 2023 baseball season began early for several Frontier League players, as 20 players represented nine different countries in the World Baseball Classic.

The New Jersey Jackals returned professional baseball to historic Hinchliffe Stadium in Paterson for the first time since the 1940s when they opened their season. One of the few former Negro League ballparks still standing, Hinchliffe Stadium received a $108 million makeover to allow it to reopen after 26 years.

On the field, May 12 marked the first game in Frontier League history where both starting pitchers had MLB experience, as Gateway's Josh Lucas faced off against Florence's Mike Kickham. Schaumburg's Chase Dawson set a record with three triples in the Boomers' game on June 24 while Florence's Zade Richardson tied the single-game mark with six hits on July 28.

Schaumburg's Jackson Hickert, Antonio Frias, and Dylan Stutsman combined for the season's only no-hitter on June 8. Single-season records were set by league MVP James Nelson from New Jersey, who scored 111 runs, while Ottawa's Zac Westcott tied the league mark with 22 games started.

The Québec Capitales won 17 of their final 25 games to repeat as East Division champions, while New Jersey and Sussex County earned their first playoff berths since joining the Frontier League. In the West, the Gateway Grizzlies won 12 of 13 games in late May/early June to vault to the top of the division, where they remained for the rest of the season and earned their first playoff berth since 2012. Schaumburg and Evansville also repeated as Wild Card qualifiers.

A league-record 17,066 fans witnessed a tremendous Championship Series between two of the longest-tenured teams in Partner League baseball. The Evansville Otters made their seventh appearance, while Québec advanced to a league final for the 12th time. The Capitales trailed entering the bottom of the ninth inning in games 1 and 2 before winning both times on walk-off home runs. With the series shifting to Bosse Field, Evansville rebounded by winning the next two games and forcing a winner-take-all game 5 for the fourth time in the past five seasons. Québec prevailed to become the first back-to-back champion since the 2013-14 Schaumburg Boomers.

The Frontier League began preparations for the 2024 season immediately following the playoffs by announcing that professional baseball was returning to Campanelli Stadium in Brockton, Massachusetts for the first time since 2011. The New England Knockouts add metro Boston to Chicago, Cincinnati, Cleveland, New York, Pittsburgh, and St. Louis as Major League markets with Frontier League clubs.

33 players were signed to MLB organizations in 2022. There were also a few former Frontier League players that made their Major League debut. Adam Oller (Windy City, 2019) and Tyler Danish (Sussex County, 2021) make the opening day rosters for Oakland and Boston, respectively. Jared Koenig, a Lake Erie Crusher in 2019, made his debut with the Oakland Athletics. Fernando Cruz, who played with the New Jersey Jackals from 2016-2018 in the Can-Am League, also made his MLB debut with the Cincinnati Reds. Former Traverse City Beach Bum Luke Barker (2016) was called up by the Milwaukee Brewers, while 2019 Frontier League draft pick Nick Duron (Southern Illinois, 2019) was promoted by Philadelphia to the big leagues.

2024 was a year highlighted by spectacular growth and record-setting achievements within the Frontier League. The season began with professional baseball returning to Campanelli Stadium in Brockton, Massachusetts for the first time since 2011 in the form of the New England Knockouts. The Knockouts secured their first-ever victory on May 11 over the Ottawa Titans by a final score of 6-4.

Washington's Andrew Czech carried over an on-base streak from the previous season, seeing the mark hit 60 games (just nine shy of the league record) before ultimately coming to an end on June 12. The Frontier League also saw more than its fair share of dominant pitching performances, including a combined no-hitter from Quebec's Ryo Kohigashi, Ryan Sandberg and Austin Marozas on May 18. Another no-hitter came from Lake Erie's Jack Eisenbarger on June 18.

Eisenbarger will also forever be noted as one of the starting pitchers for the first-ever scoreless game in the history of baseball. On August 10, the Schaumburg Boomers and the Lake Erie Crushers were amid a late-season divisional battle with possible playoff implications on the line. Eisenbarger battled Schaumburg's Cole Cook on a hot summer evening at Crushers Stadium, with neither pitcher giving up a run through the first eight innings. Both starters then turned the game over to their respective bullpens, who carried on the scoreless bout. As the game entered sudden death, Lake Erie chose to play defense. They kept the Boomers off the board, securing the victory. The game became the first game in to end scoreless with a decided victor. The event was covered in both local media in the Cleveland area as well as by Major League Baseball.

Other highlights from the regular season included Joliet Slammer Zac Westcott breaking the Frontier League career strikeout record on July 19; his total after the 2024 season stands at 613. Gateway right-hander Deylen Miley set multiple strikeout records against the Windy City ThunderBolts on August 17. Miley struck out a league-record 10 consecutive batters and ended the day with 16 total punchouts, the most in a single game in Gateway history. Schaumburg's Chase Dawson also hit for the cycle on August 18.

2024 also marked the third consecutive season of the Frontier League breaking its own attendance record. The league hosted more than 1.7 million fans, shattering the 2023 record by an excess of 100,000.

The Québec Capitales repeated as East Division champions for the third consecutive year, while the Washington Wild Things set a franchise record with 67 wins in their capturing of the West Division. The other teams to emerge from the East included the Tri-City ValleyCats and the Ottawa Titans. The Grizzlies and the Crushers joined the Wild Things in the West playoff race as Wild Card contenders.

Nearly 13,000 fans came out to the Championship Series between Québec and Washington. The Wild Things handed the defending back-to-back champion Capitales a 5-2 loss in the series opener, but Québec stormed back in game two to even the series headed back to Stade Canac. The Capitales' offense was outstanding in the final three games of the series, scoring a combined 26 runs. The series was capped by a championship-winning, walk-off three run home run by Anthony Quirion in game four, making Québec the first team in league history to "three-peat" at champions.

Plans for the 2025 season began rolling out shortly following the conclusion of the play-offs as the league announced expansion teams in Pearl, Mississippi and Kinston, South Carolina. The Mississippi Mud Monsters and the Down East Bird Dawgs give the Frontier League a new presence in the southern United States. With the expansion, the league also reorganized itself into a two-conference, four-division format. The West Division was dissolved and formed into the new Midwest Conference, comprising of the West and Central Divisions. The East Division reformed into the Atlantic Conference, consisting of the East and North Divisions. The East and Central Divisions will each hold four teams while the North and West Divisions will each hold five.

The 2025 season marked a new era for the Frontier League, with more teams, more records set, and more fans reached.

For the first time in its history, the Frontier League consisted of 18 teams, with the addition of two new organizations: the Down East Bird Dawgs in Kinston, North Carolina, and the Mississippi Mud Monsters in Pearl, Mississippi. The Mud Monsters made their presence in the league known quickly, capping off their inaugural home opener against the Florence Y'alls with a runaway victory of 13-2. The Bird Dawgs captured their first organization victory on the road at New Jersey, with an 8-2 win. Across the league, there has been a continued investment in our facilities. Washington and Gateway unveiled new naming rights partners, with the Wild Things playing at EQT Park and the Grizzlies now calling Arsenal BG Ballpark home.

Right outside of Boston, the team previously known as the New England Knockouts revived the beloved and historic moniker Brockton Rox. Brockton baseball returned to their well-known identity, embracing the heritage of the City of Champions.

When it came to the action on the field, 2025 was a year to remember.

Washington's Andrew Czech was once again a name to remember. On July 30, Czech hit his fourth grand slam homerun of the 2025 season, breaking the Frontier League Single Season record in front of the home Wild Things crowd. He would go on to tally 25 home runs, finishing the regular season at the top of the leaderboard. Throughout the season, everyone had their eyes on a Schaumburg player who established a torrid pace from the start — Anthony Calarco. A powerhouse of a hitter, Calarco was one of the league's batting leaders with a .347 batting average, 24 home runs, as well as topping the league in doubles with 38. Perhaps most impressively, Calarco spent the 2025 season chasing both the Schaumburg and the Frontier League single season RBI record. On August 14, Calarco hit his 101st RBI in front of a Sussex County crowd, becoming the new Frontier League RBI king. Calarco finished the season setting with 116 RBIs and was named the 2025 Frontier League Most Valuable Player.

Mathieu Vallée, of the Trois-Rivières Aigles, had pitchers looking over their shoulders all season long. When Vallée snagged his 76th stolen bag at home against the Ottawa Titans on August 19, he secured a new league single season stolen base record. Vallée finished the season with 83 stolen bases, earning himself the honor of a spot on the 2025 All-Frontier League Team.

The Québec Capitales once again found themselves at the top of the standings, securing their playoff spot early in August, and eventually grabbing the North Division title. The Sussex County Miners punched their playoff ticket and East Division championship on the same day, with the Tri-City ValleyCats and New York Boulders rounding out the Atlantic Conference playoff bracket. The Midwest Conference playoff picture began to form once the Schaumburg Boomers clinched their playoff spot, followed by the West Division title. Although the competitors of the Midwest Conference playoff bracket were confirmed with the clinching of the Lake Erie Crushers and the Gateway Grizzlies, it was not until the final day of the regular season did the Washington Wild Things, looking to redeem their previous championship loss, claimed the title of Central Division Champions.

The Championship Series returned to Stade Canac for the fourth consecutive year, serving as the opening stage for the final showdown between the Québec Capitales and the Schaumburg Boomers. The Boomers captured the first game of the series with a 7-1 win, but the defending champions came back to win game 2, sending the series to Wintrust Field all tied up. After back-to-back high scoring games with both Schaumburg and Québec wins, it all came down to game 5 on September 21st at Wintrust.

After a season defined by dominance on both sides, the final game was — fittingly — evenly matched. With the score tied 5-5 in the top of the 9th inning, Justin Gideon stepped up to the plate, hitting a triple that would send Kyle Cowl home, securing the Québec Capitales their fourth consecutive Championship. The five-game series drew over 22,000 fans, setting a new Frontier League Championship Series attendance record.

The Frontier League continued its historic growth in 2025, setting a fourth consecutive attendance record with more than 1.9 million fans — more than 200,000 more than the 2024 total. On July 4, the league set a new single-day attendance record, highlighted by individual single-game records in Sussex County and Schaumburg. That momentum extended well beyond the ballpark, as the league made a significant impact digitally. Throughout the 2025 season, Frontier League social platforms generated 10.5 million views, while the inaugural year of the Frontier League TV Network powered by HTN attracted an additional 1.2 million views.

The league's impact extended beyond attendance. The Frontier League led all MLB Partner Leagues by transferring 24 players to MLB organizations during the regular season. Additionally, Carson McCusker (Tri-City 2021-22, 2023) and Alex Carrillo (New York 2021, Washington 2024) achieved their lifelong goals by making their Major League Baseball debuts in 2025.

But a year defined by growth is also marked by loss. After leading the Windy City ThunderBolts in 2024, field manager and 2005 World Series Champion Bobby Jenks announced that he would be taking a medical leave of absence before the 2025 season. On July 4th, Jenks passed away from his battle with stomach cancer. In honor of Jenks, the Windy City ThunderBolts retired Jenks' number, 45, two weeks after his passing. Not only did the baseball world lose a legendary pitcher, the ThunderBolts and the Frontier League lost a coach, a mentor, and a friend. The Frontier League enters 2026 looking to continue the positive momentum.

The off-season got off to a strong start with the Lake Erie Crushers announcing a new naming rights partner, ForeFront Technology. The Mississippi Mud Monsters were awarded the HBCU Power Series, bringing six top programs to Trustmark Park to open the college baseball season. The event was the first MLB-sanctioned event to be held in the state of Mississippi.

The Ottawa Titans announced their intention to break the Frontier League's single game attendance record, and the fans of Canada's National Capital Region responded by purchasing over 10,250 tickets to the Titans' home opener.

The Joliet Slammers, in conjunction with the Route 66 Centennial Commission and the Joliet Area Historical Museum, announced plans to return baseball to the Old Joliet Prison as a kickoff event for the 100th anniversary of Route 66. O n the field, 12 current and former Frontier League players appeared in the World Baseball Classic, while more than 25 former players saw action in MLB spring training contests.

OTTAWA PROFESSIONAL BASEBALL HISTORY

Ottawa's baseball history dates as far back as 1898, when the Eastern League's Ottawa Wanderers took the field in the nation's capital, just 29 years after the British North American Act was adopted in 1867, creating the Dominion of Canada with 4 provinces; Quebec, Ontario, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia.

The Wanderers transferred to Ottawa in the middle of the 1898 season from Rochester, NY. Their time in Ottawa was very brief as the team folded at the end of the season, but it opened the door for future clubs to find their way into Ottawa.

It took 14 years for baseball to find its way back into Ottawa, this time in the form of the Ottawa Senators. The Senators became Ottawa's traditional baseball brand for many years, lasting in different forms from 1912-1948. In each of their first 4 seasons, the Senators won the Canadian League championship, beating out the likes of the Brantford Red Sox and London Tecumsehs to do so. After their Canadian League days finished, the Senators returned for separate stints with various amateur leagues in 1922, 1936, 1939 and 1948-1949.

Modern professional baseball made its' brief debut just a few years after the departure of the Senators. The International League's Ottawa Giants/Athletics franchise made their home at Lansdowne Park from 1951 to 1954, never posting a record above .500. Their only multi-season manager was Frank Skaff, who went on to become the manager of the MLB's Detroit Tigers. Interestingly, the franchise still exists today – after multiple relocations and affiliation switches, the franchise currently lingers as the Scranton/Wilkes-Barre RailRiders, AAA affiliate of the New York Yankees. After the departure of the Ottawa A's, baseball disappeared from Ottawa at the professional level for nearly 50 years.

That was until 1991, when an Ottawa group was granted another International League franchise, it was set that baseball would return to the nation's capital in grand fashion. A state-of-the-art 10,000 seat ballpark was built and dubbed Ottawa Stadium, later JetForm Park and Lynx Stadium, that at the time was regarded as one of the nicest minor league parks in North America. Today, Ottawa Stadium remains Canada's largest minor league ballpark.

The Lynx first season went down as one for the history books, as Lynx fans packed Ottawa Stadium. Baseball was at peak popularity in Canada, with Blue Jays fresh off of back-to-back World Series titles and the Expos embarking on a successful season. The Lynx took full advantage of that, pulling in a record full-season attendance of 693,043. The total went down as a single season attendance record in the International League, surpassing a mark set by the minor league version of the Baltimore Orioles 47 years earlier. With the NHL's Senators arriving the fall prior to the Lynx, the sports craze had hit Ottawa hard.

Ottawa won their first and only International League championship in 1995, when they handed the Norfolk Tides a 4-0 shutout in the final game of the championship series on a rainy day in September. The championship acts as the proudest moment in Lynx history. After the 1995 season, however, attendance for the Lynx began a fast descent, resulting in the team eventually relocating. In 2006, the Lynx were purchased by a Pennsylvania group and were slated to relocate to Allentown, PA after the 2007 season. The Lynx played out the year in 2007, finishing with a 55-88 record and last place in the International League. As a final send off, Lynx fans came by the thousands to watch the Lynx play their final game in Ottawa, losing 8-3 to the Syracuse SkyChiefs. Lynx Stadium was packed with 7,368 fans on the final game day, leaving baseball executives wondering if Lynx Stadium had really seen its final pitch.

That answer came at the end of 2007, when the Can-Am League announced a deal had been made with the City of Ottawa – the Ottawa Rapids were on their way to the Ottawa baseball scene. Shortly before the season began, the Rapids were bought by local ownership and renamed the “Rapidz” to coincide with their new parent company, Zip.ca.

The Rapidz represented Ottawa’s introduction to the independent baseball scene. While the Rapidz did not fare well on the field, posting a record of 31-63, they did somewhat rejuvenate baseball in Ottawa, boosting the attendance up from the 2007 Lynx average to 2,150. Local players such as Tanner Watson, a former Seattle Mariners draft pick, Danny DescLOUDs and Mike Kusiewicz populated the Rapidz roster and the mood was good after the 2008 season. However, at the end of the season, ownership declared bankruptcy and the Ottawa Can-Am franchise was never able to live up to its potential, as they did not return for a 2009 season.

The abrupt ending to the Rapidz era left baseball’s future in doubt. The City of Ottawa left Ottawa Stadium vacant in 2009, which marked the first season that no team would play at the stadium since its opening 17 years earlier. However, as a quick fix to this problem, the city sold off the lease of the ballpark to the Intercounty Baseball League, a semi-professional league based mostly in southern Ontario which includes teams with a long history such as the Toronto Maple Leafs and the Brantford Red Sox. The team was announced as the Ottawa Fat Cats.

While the Fat Cats were intended to be a quick fix, with a year-by-year lease on the stadium, they experienced a rapid surge in 2011. After a modest 16-18 regular season record, the Fat Cats ripped through their first two play-off opponents, embarking on a miraculous run to the championship series against the powerhouse Brantford Red Sox – a storied franchise almost 100 years old. The underdog story gave Ottawa a ball team to love again, as fans packed Ottawa stadium to near capacity in the playoffs, a feat that hadn’t been seen for years prior to the arrival of the Fat Cats. While the Fat Cats lost the championship series to the Red Sox, the spirit of the Lynx had been found again in the form of a semi-pro team. The 2012 season saw the Fat Cats return to impressive crowds and drove up the interest in the market from professional leagues.

In 2014, Miles Wolff returned to the Ottawa market in news of the Can-Am League willing to expand from four to six teams for the 2015 season. Ottawa native, David Gourlay began the Champions for Ottawa Baseball foundation to bring awareness for a baseball team that would give back to special needs children, by constructing an accessible field with the Miracle League of Ottawa. Gourlay and Wolff partnered to bring the Ottawa Champions to life for the 2015 season. The Champions became champions in just their second season after coming from behind in the league championship series to win in five games over the Rockland Boulders. A few weeks later, the CFL's Ottawa Redblacks were crowned Grey Cup champions and for the time being, Ottawa was touted Canada's "City of Champions."

Following the 2019 season, the Can-Am League merged with the Frontier League, but left the Champions off the schedule for the then cancelled 2020 season after the team and the city failed to come to terms on a new stadium lease.

In September 2020, the ownership group led by former Winnipeg Mayor and the Owner of the American Association's Winnipeg Goldeyes, Sam Katz along with the Ottawa Sports and Entertainment Group and local lawyer Jacques J.M. Shore struck a deal with the city of Ottawa to bring the Frontier League, and Titans to Ottawa for the 2021 season.

In December of 2020, following a name-the-team contest that saw over 1,200 entries and 700 unique names, the Ottawa Titans were born.

After intending to hit the field for the inaugural season in 2021, the Frontier League announced that the Titans (along with the Trois-Rivières Aigles) would not compete in the 2021 season due to the prolonged closure of the Canada–United States border as a result of the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic. A full reset was done by the front office to immediately shift focus to the 2022 season.

A winning record, historic achievements, postseason baseball, and a long-awaited debut highlighted the inaugural Ottawa Titans' 2022 season.

The wait lasted 598 days before professional baseball in Canada's Capital returned with a Titans decisive 10-6 road victory over the Joliet Slammers on May 13.

With a season-high nine games on the road out of the way to begin the season, the team returned home for their much-anticipated home opener on May 24.

Led by local standout Evan Grills' eight innings of scoreless baseball, the Titans put a bow on the opening day festivities with a 2-0 victory. Grills also posted a single-season high 15 strikeouts in the win.

The Titans surged up the standings in the first half of the season, winning 23 of their first 30 games. Over that stretch, the club won a season-best nine straight.

Dartmouth's Jake Sanford quickly emerged as a star on the expansion Titans by tying a league record with 10 RBI on June 11 in a 13-0 win over the Empire State Greys. A key contributor, Sanford led the 2022 edition of the Titans with 22 home runs and 73 RBI.

At the all-star break, the Titans had cooled off a bit, but posted a respectable 35-23 record. The team sent an East Division-high five representatives to contribute to an 8-1 East win over the West all-stars at the mid-summer classic on July 17 in Washington, Pennsylvania. Jake Sanford, AJ Wright, Zac Westcott, Kevin Escorcia, and Evan Grills all represented the Titans proudly with the nomination.

Some tough stretches saw the Titans drop out of a playoff spot early in the month of August, but the 9-1 finish to the season managed to put the squad over the top.

Over the final home stand of the season, fans came out in droves to cheer on the Titans in a playoff push. With the energy, the Titans won seven of nine during their final home stand to finish the season 56-39.

The Titans qualified for the postseason with a 4-1 victory over the Quebec Capitales on September 2, guaranteeing themselves a berth in the Wild Card round. On the road, the Titans slugged their way to a decisive 8-2 victory to advance to the Division Series.

Despite Tyler Jandron's complete game shutout in game one at home, the Titans bowed out of the postseason in a winner-take-all third game to the eventual champions from la belle province.

After an entertaining inaugural season, the Ottawa Titans returned the fun in front of record crowds during a successful second campaign.

Opening day brought a record 3,500+ on hand for a thrilling 17-7 victory, seeing new faces and returning veterans start the season on a high note. The lopsided affair saw fan-favourite Jackie Urbaez belt the club's first grand slam in franchise history apart of a nine-run fourth inning.

Newcomer Jamey Smart made his presence felt in the capital and around the league, setting multiple career highs in his return to professional baseball. Smart slugged a team-best .334, ranking fifth in the Frontier League in the process. The San Ramon, California product registered 37 multi-hit performances, clubbed a personal high of eight homers, and brought home a franchise record 83 RBI.

All seemed to have tapered off for the Titans after winning their series over Empire State on opening weekend as the team then lost 15 of their next 21 games to be on the outside looking in from the get-go of the season.

Following a trade in early June, Sicnarf Loopstok helped the Titans get back in the playoff hunt belting a walk-off grand slam in his debut on June 2 against the club's fierce rivals in the Quebec Capitales. Loopstok went on to post a .298 average on the season with eight homers and 41 RBI, suiting up in North America for the first time since 2019.

The Titans entered the all-star break five games back of a playoff spot by posting a 25-26 record, in large part by winning five of their final eight games to end the first half of the season. Sicnarf Loopstok, Jason Dicochea, and Grant Larson all had the honour of representing the Titans at the mid-summer classic in Windy City. After being one of the more feared arms out of the bullpen in 2022, Larson made the jump to the rotation following several key losses, going 8-8 in 18 starts, and posting a 4.29 ERA in 121.2 innings. As for Dicochea, the utility player posted a team-best 16 home runs and drove in 63 over 92 contests. The Redondo Beach, California native had himself an all-star game to remember belting a home run and recording three RBI.

Following the break, the Titans played some of their best baseball but unfortunately missed out on the Frontier League postseason.

Damon Casetta-Stubbs blossomed into one of the top starters in the league, posting a career-high 109 strikeouts, ranking third overall in that department. The 24-year-old tossed to an ERA of just over 2.90 in his final 14 starts of the year.

Although missing out on the playoffs, the Titans grew their attendance by over 30% from the inaugural season. The club put a wrap on 2023 with a new record of 4,600+ on hand for Fan Appreciation Day, helping the team win a franchise-best 32 home games.

Back to the promise land, more records, and a summer of fun paved the way for a successful third season of Ottawa Titans baseball in the capital.

On the heels of a great year business-wise and a strong ending on the field - The campaign was off to a shaky 8-10 start.

The team rallied in June by winning 18 of a possible 25 contests to put themselves back in the playoff picture – not looking back after that. Over that stretch, the Titans won a franchise-best nine consecutive home games and swept back-to-back opponents on two separate occasions.

An original Titan, AJ Wright led the way by appearing in 93 games, registering a .304 average with 18 doubles, tied for tenth in the league with 13 homers, and 52 RBI. He was one of 17 players in the league with over 100 hits, an accomplishment achieved for the second straight season. Wright is the franchise's all-time leader in games played (277), runs scored (220), hits (295), walks (166), doubles (62), home runs (39), and RBI (163) over three seasons in the capital. The mid-season all-star recorded a team-best 24 multi-hit performances – earning Frontier League Player of the Week honours May 21-26.

Under the guidance of skipper Bobby Brown, the club has been just one of just six teams in the league to qualify for playoffs multiple times since 2022 – but have been only one of two teams to accomplish the feat playing in the East Division. Early in the offseason, the Titans and the 50-year-old manager announced a multi-year contract extension.

Once again, pitching dominated down the stretch for the Titans – as the starting rotation tossed to a 2.08 ERA over 28 games in August. Left-handers Grant Larson, Bryan Peña, Tyler Jandron, and CJ Blowers, along with right-hander Shane Gray led the Titans to be a force to be reckoned with in the pennant chase. 2024 saw a franchise-record three complete-game shutouts – as Grant Larson and Shane Gray each posted 9-inning shutouts in June, while Bryan Peña, who fanned a team-high 99, hurled a 7-inning goose egg in mid-August.

Out of the bullpen, Erasmo Piñales recorded a franchise-best 23 saves over his 38 outings in his second season in the capital. Meanwhile, the Titans bolstered the ‘pen right before the start of the regular season with the acquisitions of Matt Dallas and McLain Harris, who played pivotal roles in high-leverage situations. As a nice complimentary piece added late in the year, rookie left-hander Jake Dixon recorded a win and a save in three playoff games.

The squad spent the final 63 contests of the year in a playoff spot – eventually beating the Tri-City ValleyCats to win the Wild Card Round before dropping a decisive third game to the eventual champion Québec Capitales in the Division Series.

By the regular season’s end, the Titans received two post-season awards given out by the Frontier League. Third baseman AJ Wright was mentioned as part of the league’s all-star team – while team broadcaster Davide Disipio received the Robert Ford Award, given annually to the Broadcaster of the Year.

For a second consecutive year, the Titans increased their attendance by nearly 30%, eclipsing an average of roughly 2,000 per game. The club saw crowds of 4,000 or more on hand on several different occasions – shaping up for a strong milestone to enter the 2025 summer.

A run for the ages, record-breaking performances both on and off the field, and a summer filled with excitement highlighted a successful fourth season of Ottawa Titans baseball in Canada’s Capital.

In 2025, the Titans reached nearly 100,000 fans through home games alone, marking a 16% increase in total attendance from the previous season. It was the third consecutive year—every year of the team’s existence—with double-digit percentage growth in attendance, underscoring the National Capital Region’s growing love for a traditional summer pastime.

A major milestone came on August 9, when the club welcomed its 300,000th fan to the ballpark since its inception. The momentum didn’t stop there. The Titans went on to set back-to-back weekend attendance records, drawing 10,000+ fans during both the August 22–24 and August 29–31 homestands, averaging approximately 3,500 fans per game over those six dates.

In the community, the Titans continued to make a significant impact. Through the Ottawa Titans Field of Dreams Foundation, the organization raised and distributed over $38,000 in 2024 to 22 registered children’s charities across the National Capital Region—bringing total contributions to more than $100,000 in just three years. These funds support programs that help youth of all abilities experience the game of baseball, develop life skills, and build stronger community connections.

On the field, the team came just one win short of the League Championship Series the previous year, seeing the Titans enter 2025 with high expectations with a 2-0 sweep on Opening Weekend in North Carolina.

However, momentum quickly shifted, as the club endured its most challenging stretch in franchise history, dropping 15 of the next 35 games.

Midseason changes proved pivotal. Strategic acquisitions helped Manager Bobby Brown's squad catch fire, surging into playoff contention with a 15-5 run heading into the All-Star break.

Leading the charge offensively was Winnipeg native Victor Cerny, who turned in a career year. Cerny hit .309 across 79 games, setting personal bests in doubles (19), triples (2), home runs (6), and RBI (53), earning a well-deserved spot on the Atlantic Conference All-Star Team.

Joining him at the mid-summer classic was rookie right-hander Billy Duby, who emerged as a dominant setup man out of the bullpen. Duby held opponents scoreless in 14 of his 19 appearances and recorded an 11-inning scoreless streak from May 15 to June 8. He finished the season with a 1.21 WHIP. Pitching Coach David Peterson was also recognized for his work, earning a selection to the All-Star Coaching Staff.

The Titans continued their resurgence in the second half, putting together an impressive 12-series unbeaten streak from late June through early August.

Veterans stepped up in a big way. Jackie Urbacz, known for his infectious energy and leadership, matched a career-high with 18 doubles and set a personal best with 52 RBI. He also broke the Frontier League single-season hit-by-pitch record (40) and claimed the league's career HBP mark in late June.

Offensively, the lineup featured breakout performances from Justin Fogel, who hit .338 over 56 games, and Nolan McCarthy, who added pop in the heart of the order. Fan favourite Jake Sanford also returned, giving the offense a late-season boost.

On the mound, Alfredo Villa delivered one of the best pitching campaigns in franchise history. He became just the second Titan to record 10 wins in a season and was the first to post back-to-back double-digit strikeout performances. Kaleb Hill, a late addition via waivers, impressed in both starting and relief roles with a 3.60 ERA across 29 appearances. Meanwhile, Shane Gray emerged as one of the league's top relievers, posting a 2.34 ERA and 12 saves in 20 outings.

Despite a strong 40-21 finish over the final 61 games, the Titans narrowly missed the playoffs—falling short by just half a game.

The club's efforts didn't go unnoticed. General Manager Martin Boyce was awarded the prestigious Bob Wolfe Executive of the Year Award, marking the second consecutive season the organization received league-wide recognition.

Backed by a passionate fan base and a playoff-caliber roster, the Titans are primed to take the next step in 2026.

FRONTIER LEAGUE ROSTER RULES

During the off-season, teams may have no more than thirty-four (34) players on their active roster. There is no classification limit for the off-season roster. Players signed out of the California Winter League or selected in the Frontier League Draft are exempt from the 34-player limit.

The Sunday prior to Opening Day, teams must be down to 28 players.

Regular season and playoff rosters will be composed of a minimum of 22 active players and a maximum of 25 active players.

FRONTIER LEAGUE ROSTER PARAMETERS

Regular season and playoff rosters will be composed of the following players:

- A. A minimum of 10 players of Professional-1 or Professional-2 classification
- B. A minimum of 6 players of Experienced-1 classification (adjusted down if more than 10 Professionals are on the roster)
- C. A maximum of 8 players of Experienced-2 or Veteran classification
- D. Up to two of these 8 players may be Veteran classification

Players without prior affiliated baseball (MiLB) experience must be at least 18 years old to play in the Frontier League.

- A. Players who complete a season at 24 years old or younger will be Professional-1 classifications
- B. Players who complete a season at 25 years old will be no more than a Professional-2 classification
- C. Players who complete a season at 26 years old will be no more than an Experienced-1 classification
- D. Players who complete a season at ages 27-29 will be an Experienced-2 classification
- E. Players who complete a season at 30 years old or higher will be a Veteran classification
- F. For all classification levels, a the player's age as of September 30 will be used to determine the age portion of their classification.

Minimum Appearance Exception: A player must have accrued more than 75 at bats, 15 games pitched, or 30 innings pitched in a season for that season to count toward the classifications.

21-year Old Exemption: Any player who is twenty-one (21) years of age or younger on or after October 1st of any season and is entering his first year in the Frontier League, regardless of any prior professional baseball experience, will be considered no higher than a Professional-2 by Frontier League Rules. For the 2026 season, a birthdate of October 1, 2005 will be the cutoff to qualify under this provision.

Military Exemption: Players who have served on active military duty will receive an exemption to the age limit to avoid the Veteran classification of one year for each year of active duty that was served.

Position Change Exemption: Starting with the 2016 season, position players who are switching to pitching and pitchers who are switching to playing a position will have their classifications reset to Rookie-2 provided that they do not appear in any games at their previous position (batting/running or pitching, depending on the switch).

The California Winter League is the official winter league of the Frontier League.

The Frontier League is proud to have extended our agreement with the California Winter League for a seventh season and to make the California Winter League the Official Winter/Showcase League of the Frontier League.

FRONTIER LEAGUE PLAYOFF FORMAT

SECTION 1 – Qualification: The teams with the highest winning percentage (when calculated to three decimal places) in each respective division at the end of the Championship Season will qualify for the playoffs and receive the top two seeds in their conference, regardless of final record.

The next two best records in each conference as determined by winning percentage (calculated to three (3) decimal places) will also qualify for the playoffs as Wild Card teams.

If there is a tie for a playoff berth, the tiebreaker system described in Section 2 will be implemented.

SECTION 2 – Tie-Breaker Procedure: In the event of a tie for first place in any division at the end of a Championship Season, the Division Winner shall be determined by:

(1) best head-to-head record (winning percentage) between the two (2) Teams; if still tied,

(2) best head-to-head record (winning percentage) against each Team in the division in descending order of Championship Season finish will determine the winner; if still tied,

(3) a one (1) game playoff held the day after the Championship Season ends between the two (2) Teams with the home Team determined by a coin toss by the Commissioner. In the event of a three-way or four-way tie for first place in any division at the end of the Championship Season, the Division Winner shall be determined by:

(1) best head-to-head record (winning percentage) against the other tied Teams; if still tied,

(2) best head-to-head record (winning percentage) against non-playoff teams, individually, in descending order of Championship Season finish will determine the winner.

A tie for a Wild Card spot will be broken in the order using conference results as opposed to division.

WILD CARD AND DIVISION PLAYOFF FORMAT: The Wild Card teams will play the Division Winners in a best-of-three series, with the top seeded Division Winner playing the lowest seeded Wild Card qualifier. The Wild Card qualifier will host game 1, with the Division Winners hosting games 2 and 3.

The winner of these series will play each other in a best-of-five Divisional Series. The highest seeded advancing team will host games 3, 4, and 5.

CHAMPIONSHIP PLAYOFF FORMAT: The Championship Series playoffs shall be scheduled to begin on the second day following the scheduled completion of the Conference Finals. The Championship Series will be a best-three-out-of-five games series and will be between the winners from each Conference Finals series.

In all odd-numbered years, the winner of the Atlantic Conference Finals Series will host Games 1 and 2 of the Championship Series, and the winner of the Midwest Conference Finals Series will host game 3 and games 4 and 5 (if necessary).

FRONTIER LEAGUE EXTRA INNINGS

For any regular season game tied at the end of regulation (nine innings for a traditional game and seven innings for a double-header game), and remaining tied following one inning of play using International Tiebreaker (ITB) rules, a sudden death inning will determine the winner.

Field managers will meet with umpires with the home manager choosing offense or defense. For the team on offense, the player on the lineup card immediately preceding the batter due up will start on first base. The defensive team will have three outs to prevent the offense from scoring. If the team on offense scores they will win the game, while if the defensive team retires the side without scoring a run, they will win. As with the ITB runner, if the runner placed on first base scores, the run will be unearned. The sudden death rule guarantees that no game will be played beyond 10.5 innings or beyond 8.5 innings for a double-header game.

The rule was first proposed by former Florence field manager Dennis Pelfrey, who currently manages in the San Francisco Giants' organization. It was refined by a committee of Frontier League managers and administrators, including managers Andy McCauley of Evansville, Quebec's Pat Scalabrini, and Ottawa's Bobby Brown.

Erasmus Pinales earned the first Sudden Death victory for the Ottawa Titans at Tri-City on June 24, 2023. Previously, the Titans were previously 0-4 all-time in the league's extra innings tie-breaker.

While non-Canadian players signed by the Titans and the Aigles were subject to a dispersal draft among the 13 U.S.-based teams.

Tucker Zdunich	High River, Alberta	2025

North Vancouver, British Columbia's Taylor Wright homers against the Tri-City ValleyCats on July 28, 2024. Entering 2026, Wright has played 270 games with the Titans, the most of anyone hailing from Canada.

Whitby, Ontario's Evan Grills fires a pitch in the inaugural home opener against the Evansville Otters on May 24, 2022. Grills would go 8 innings, striking out a franchise record 15 in the win. Grills was named an all-star that year before retiring and returning in 2025.

Frontier League Post-Season All-Stars

2024 AJ Wright, 3B

Two original members of the Titans franchise, infielder AJ Wright (left) and left-handed pitcher Grant Larson (right) are the only members of the franchise to be named to two all-star games.

THE CAPTAIN...

Unlike other sports, captains aren't incredibly common in baseball, as teams hold the honour for the perfect fit. Some of the greatest players to ever play the game have been named the captain of their clubs.

On their first road trip of the 2024 season, Manager Bobby Brown called in Jason Dicochea to meet him in his hotel room, and without knowing what was coming, the Santa Clara University alum obliged. As it turns out, the meeting with the skipper was one of the more positive experiences in Dicochea's young career. That was to be the first captain in franchise history.

In parts of three years in Ottawa from 2022-2024, Dicochea hit .290 with a .359 on-base percentage, 51 doubles, 26 home runs, 126 RBI, and 130 runs scored over 215 games.

Jason Dicochea was named the first team captain in franchise history in 2024. Although retiring to pursue a position as an Assistant Coach at Santa Clara University in June of that year, Dicochea's impact on the original core group of players will forever be remembered. The 2023 all-star will be remembered for hitting the club's first home run in Joliet on opening day in 2022.

On September 21, 2023, the Frontier League announced the expansion to Brockton, Massachusetts, where the club branded themselves as the New England Chowdahheads following a name-the-team contest that garnered over 3,100 votes and submissions. The name however was short-lived, as the club changed the name to Knockouts just a month later. Knockouts pays homage the City of Champions, and its history of producing two of boxing's greatest talents.

On January 29, 2025, the Knockouts were sold to a new ownership group, led by Bill and Rob Janetschek and New York Boulders co-founder Shawn Reilly. Boston Red Sox Hall of Famer Jim Rice will also join the Rox as an owner/ambassador. 2025 will be labeled as the Rox's "Revival Season".

Massachusetts native Jerod Edmondson was hired as the inaugural manager on December 1, 2023. Edmondson previously served as head baseball coach for Saint Anselm College from 2020 through fall 2023, where his 2022 team set a record for home runs at 57, surpassing a record that had remained unbroken since the 2001 season. As a player, Edmondson competed in the Can-Am League from 2007 through 2014. He is tied for the league record with 166 doubles and ranks second all-time in league history with 751 hits and 445 runs scored. He also ranks third all-time with 398 runs batted in and fifth in career stolen bases with 125.

The original Brockton Rox began play in the 2002 season as members of the East Division of the Northern League. Former Ottawa Rapidz skipper Ed Nottle was the first field manager in franchise history. In 2003, the Eastern ball clubs split off from the rest of the Northern League and became the Northeast League, where the Rox played in 2003 and 2004. In 2005, the Northeast League was re-branded as the Can-Am League where they stayed until 2011 before moving to the Futures Collegiate League. The Rox won their first and only title in 2003, a squad that featured current Titans Manager Bobby Brown.

Announced as an expansion club in September 2024, the Down East Bird Dawgs expanded the Frontier League's footprint to North Carolina and to the 18-team setup.

Cameron McRae, a business owner from North Carolina, will serve as the new team's primary owner. McRae has been a part of Kinston baseball for over three decades, including being the original owner and primary investor of the Kinston Indians in 1994. His other business ventures include ownership and operation of 72 Bojangles' Famous Chicken restaurants, a golf course, a convenience store, and many different management companies.

Grainger Stadium will serve as the home of the Bird Dawgs. First opened in 1949, Grainger Stadium has hosted professional and collegiate baseball for over 75 years and remains one of the oldest and most historic ballparks in professional baseball - most recently, the Down East Wood Ducks of the Carolina League called it home as the Texas Rangers' A-ball affiliate from 2017-2024. The stadium also hosts the annual Freedom Classic series between Navy and Air Force.

The Otters have reached the playoffs in 11 seasons, including six Frontier League Championship series with wins in 2006 and 2016. The first Evansville Otters game was played on June 15, 1995. The Otters were awarded the Frontier League Organization of the Year Award in 1997, and the Commissioner's Award of Excellence in 2004.

They earned their 689th win, a league record, on August 18, 2011. The team hosted the largest crowd ever at Bosse Field on July 24, 2013, with 8,253 fans in attendance. The Otters have promoted over 50 of their players to Major League Baseball franchises. Two Otters have gone on to careers at the major league level including George Sherrill, a 2008 MLB All-Star and former San Diego Padre and Oakland Athletic pitcher Andrew Werner who later suited up for the Ottawa Champions of the Can-Am League in 2015.

On May 27, 2014, the Otters became the first team in the Frontier League to reach 800 wins.

The 2019 Evansville Otters were eliminated in the opening round by the eventual Frontier League champion, River City Rascals. They have qualified for the playoffs in four of the last five seasons.

Prior to the 2021 season, the Otters unveiled a set of new logos. The main logo introduced a new typography, showcasing an emphasis on "Evansville" in the visual to signify the dedication to community and local team pride. Plus, the word-marks present a contemporary, custom script that pays homage to baseball's classic typeface.

The Otters franchise is coming off the 25th anniversary in 2019, Historic Bosse Field's renovations in 2020, and were all driving factors to a new branding heading into the Otters' return to the field in 2021.

The Y'alls franchise began in 1994, playing as the Erie Sailors before moving to Johnstown, Pennsylvania, in 1995, where it was first known as the Johnstown Steal then changed to the Johnstown Johnnies in 1998. The team won two Frontier League championships in their time in Johnstown, one in 1995 and one in 2000.

The team was sold after the 2002 season and moved to Florence, where it became known as the "Freedom".

The team was sold in November 2004 to a new ownership group led by Clint Brown and hired former Rockland Boulders Manager Jamie Keefe, who lead the Freedom to their first winning season in 2005. Three Freedom players hit more than 20 home runs during the 2005 season, while closer Ted Rowe was tied for the league lead in saves with 17.

The Freedom were named host of the 2007 Frontier League All-Star Game. The East Division came out victorious by a score of 11-3, with the Freedom's Reggie Watson notching three RBI's and being named the game's MVP. Champion Window Field set a new record by drawing 4,483 to the mid summer classic.

The 2019 Florence Freedom were eliminated in the championship series by former Titans Manager Steve Brook and the River City Rascals. They have qualified for the playoffs in three of the last five seasons.

A group of local investors finalized the purchase of the Freedom in July of 2019, and in October it was announced that a rebranding of the team would take place for the 2020 season. The Florence Y'alls were born and named in honour of the local Florence Y'all Water Tower.

June 12, 2001 marked the beginning of an era in Southwestern Illinois. After more than two years of questions, and three different “homes,” the Gateway Grizzlies took to the home field for the first time, in front of what was then a franchise record crowd of 1,480, at Sauget Field, which was meant to hold just over 1,000 people.

In 2003, the Grizzlies were crowned the Frontier League’s Organization of the Year. First-year General Manager Tony Funderburg was honoured as the league’s Executive of the Year. On August 14, 2003, Adam Jahnsen turned in the single-greatest pitching performance in Gateway Grizzlies history. Jahnsen, a rookie, struck out a career-high and franchise-best 13 en route to the first no-hitter in Grizzlies history, and the 10th in league history, a 4-0 victory over Kenosha.

On the field, first-year manager Danny Cox guided the Grizzlies to a franchise-best 50 wins during the regular season and the team’s first-ever West Division Championship. The division title turned out to be just a precursor to an unprecedented playoff run, as the Grizzlies became the first team since the Championship Series expanded to a best-of-five format in 2000, to sweep through the entire playoffs. The Grizzlies defeated the Washington WildThings in two games, then the Evansville Otters in three games to claim the ultimate prize, the Frontier League Championship.

In 2004 the Grizzlies made Frontier League history, becoming the first team in league history to draw more than 200,000 fans for a single season. The lineup combined for 113 home runs to set a new Frontier League record.

The Grizzlies were honoured with their second Frontier League Organization of the Year in 2006 and also welcomed their one millionth fan to the ballpark.

In 2012, Jonathan Johnson recorded a 65 game on base streak, setting a league record.

The Grizzlies had failed to make the playoffs in each of the last eight seasons before winning the West Division with an impressive 59-37 record under Frontier League Manager of the Year Steve Brook.

The Slammers replaced the Joliet JackHammers of the Northern League for the 2011 season. The “Slammers” name refers to the famous prisons of Joliet and Will County as well as a common baseball term. In September, the Slammers were named Frontier League champions after defeating the River City Rascals, taking the best-of-five Frontier League championship series three games to one. Following the 2012 season, the Slammers were purchased on October 15, 2012, by Nick Semaca and Joliet Community Baseball & Entertainment, LLC. The Slammers were once again crowned Frontier League champions in 2018 after taking down the Washington WildThings in five games.

On January 8, 2024, the Nick Semaca and Joliet Community Baseball & Entertainment, LLC. entered an agreement to sell a majority stake of the club to Mike and Night Train Veeck and actor Bill Murray. The Veeck family started in baseball nearly a century ago when Veeck’s grandfather was president of the Chicago Cubs. Veeck’s father, Bill, is a member of the Baseball Hall of Fame in recognition of his time as the owner of the St. Louis Browns, Cleveland Indians, Chicago White Sox, and the then-minor league Milwaukee Brewers. Murray has been involved in minority ownership of the Minor League Baseball Charleston RiverDogs and St. Paul Saints alongside Mike Veeck. Prior to being invited to join the affiliated ranks for the 2021 season, the Saints were considered the premier independent baseball team in the country.

The Slammers announced their new manager on January 16, 2024. The Frontier League’s winningest skipper, Mike Pinto, was hired to guide the club in replace of former big leaguer Daniel Schlereth, who resigned after two seasons. Pinto began his coaching career in 2002 with the Joliet JackHammers before becoming a staple with the Southern Illinois Miners from 2007 until the club folded in 2021. Entering the 2024 season, Pinto posted the Miners to 13 winning seasons, seven play-off appearances, four division titles, and one Frontier League Championship. His teams produced 5 Pitchers of the Year, an MVP, and Rookie of the Year.

The “Crushers” name was chosen from over 800 entries submitted in a “Name the Team” contest prior to the 2009 season.

In their inaugural season in 2009, the Lake Erie Crushers won the Frontier League championship after a 57-38 regular season. They rallied to eliminate the Kalamazoo Kings in five games in the opening round, before erasing a 2-0 series deficit to defeat the River City Rascals in the Frontier League Championship Series.

The Crushers also reached the Frontier League postseason in 2011, 2013, 2014 and 2019. They’ve reached the Frontier League Championship Series once during that span, being swept by the Schaumburg Boomers in 2013.

The Crushers were moved to the Can-Am division following the Frontier League and Can-Am League merge in 2019, but were realligned to the Midwestern division for the 2021 season when the Tri-City ValleyCats joined the Frontier League.

In September of 2024, the Frontier League announced the expansion to Pearl, Mississippi, where the club branded themselves as the Mississippi Mud Monsters following a name-the-team contest. Fans of the new team were given three choices for names; the “Mud Monsters,” “Grits,” and “Soul Shakers.” On September 27, “Mud Monsters” was the winning choice with over 5,600 votes. The logo was revealed on October 10.

The Mud Monsters play at Trustmark Park, the former home of the Mississippi Braves. The opportunity for expansion came into play when the M-Braves, who served as the double-A minor league affiliate of the Atlanta Braves, announced that they would be relocating to Columbus, Georgia after the 2024 season. They had been in Pearl since 2005.

The team is owned by Joseph Eng, who also owns the Gary SouthShore RailCats of the American Association. Eng is an experienced technology executive and member of the executive team at Billtrust, where he is responsible for product and technology for the business. He has held similar roles at TravelClick, a travel hospitality data and software provider, Jet-Blue Airways, and SWIFT, the worldwide messaging network for the financial industry. The Jackals were founded in 1998 and played out of the Northeast League. They finished the regular season with 53 wins, most in the league, and won the first half championship, which ensured a place in the Northeast League playoffs. The Jackals swept the Diamond Dogs to win their first league championship.

The Jackals became members of the Northern League for the 1999 season after the league decided to absorb the Northeast League. The Jackals received the honour of hosting the Northern League All-Star Game in 2000.

In a five-game series, New Jersey emerged victorious and advanced to the Northern League Championship Series against the Winnipeg Goldeyes, whom they defeated to win their second league championship.

Jeremy Callier threw a no-hitter on August 28, 2002 against the Berkshire Black Bears, requiring a walk off home run by Ryan Kane in the bottom of the ninth inning to make it official. The Jackals set a team record for victories, finishing with 62 to lead the league. The Jackals capped off their record season with their second straight Northern League championship, as they defeated the Winnipeg Goldeyes yet again in four games.

In 2005 the Jackals joined the 8-team Canadian American Association of Professional Baseball League but failed to make the playoffs for the first time since 2000.

Aaron Myers threw the second no-hitter in team history in 2006, where the Jackals suffered only their second losing season.

The Jackals won the Can-Am League First Half Championship in 2007 with a 31–15 record, guaranteeing them a spot in the playoffs, where they were knocked out by the Nashua Pride.

The Jackals set Can-Am League record with a 14-game winning streak en route to a First Half Championship in 2009 with a 28–19 record. It also marked the second-best record in franchise history.

Nick Giarraputo was named the Can-Am League's 2012 Player of the Year. while the team as a whole set Can-Am Team records with 1,012 hits & 1,557 total bases in a season.

New Jersey sets a Can-Am Team record with 46 triples in a season in 2016, but fell to the eventual league champion, the Ottawa Champions in the opening round of the playoffs.

Eduar Lopez tossed the 3rd no-hitter in franchise history as the Jackals defeated the Ottawa Champions, 5–0 in 2018.

Jackals OF Alfredo Marte was named the Can-Am League's 2019 Player of the Year, while Conrad Gregor had 49 stolen bases & 82 Walks during the 2019 season, both new team records, on route to the Jackals winning the Can-Am League for their fifth title in franchise history, across three different leagues.

On August 22, 2013, Boulder's pitcher Charlie Law pitched a complete game no-hitter defeating the New Jersey Jackals. It stands as the first and only no-hitter in franchise history.

On July 7, 2014, Outfielder Jerod Edmondson singled off Ryan Bollinger of the Trois-Rivieres Aigles, breaking the all-time Can-Am League record for career hits. His 700 career hits broke the then previously held by former Toronto Blue Jay Chris Colabello. The record went on to be broken by former Ottawa Champions outfielder and now Ottawa Titans assistant GM Sebastien Boucher in 2016.

On August 25, 2014, the Boulders beat the Trois-Rivères Aigles and clinched the playoffs for the first time in the franchise's history. The Boulders went onto win their first title in franchise history, defeating the New Jersey Jackals in six games.

The Rockland Boulders set the Can-Am League record for doubles in a season (211) runs scored in a season (622), runs scored in a game (23), Home Runs in a season (147), Joe Maloney's 35 Home Runs in a season, RBI in a season (573), walks in a season (463), and most pitching appearances (Nick Kennedy - 58 in 2019).

The Boulders would go onto play in the league championship two times during their time in the Can-Am League, falling in five games to the Ottawa Champions in 2016 and getting swept by the Quebec Capitales in 2017.

Following the Can-Am League and Frontier League merge during the fall of 2019, the Boulders announced a name change to the New York Boulders.

Prior to the Capitales, the Québec Athletics played in the Québec Provincial League during the 1940 season, and in the Canadian-American League for two seasons.

Later, the Québec Alouettes lasted two seasons (1946-1948) and played out of the Canadian-American League. The Québec Braves spent two seasons in Québec's capital in the Canadian-American League (1949-1950), but then changed to the Provincial League (1950-1951) before ceasing operations. The Québec Indians joined in the Provincial League, this time lasting a little longer. The Indians enjoyed 12 seasons between 1958 to 1970. Québec took a crack at affiliated baseball with the Carnivals from 1971-1975. They were the Eastern League double-A affiliate of the Montreal Expos. In 1976, the team changed its name to the Québec Métros, which only stood for two seasons.

In 1999, the Northern League welcomed the Capitales as an expansion team. The Capitales later moved to the Can-Am League, where they are the most successful team on and off the field, having won the more championships (7) than any other team. This is highlighted by a five-peat between 2009-2013. Since 2000, the Capitales have made the playoffs 16 times. The Capitales held the Can-Am League record for most wins in a season with 66, during the 2012 campaign.

In the 2024 season, the Capitales hosted the All-Star Game - marking the first time the mid-summer classic was held on Canadian soil. They won another division title and made it to the FLCS for the third consecutive year. They went on to win their record breaking 10th league championship, becoming the first team in league history to win three titles in a row.

Manager Patrick Scalabrini has led the Capitales to 11 winning seasons through 14 seasons at the helm. During his time, the Capitales have nine league titles (five Can-Am, four Frontier).

Notable Capitales alumni include: Ottawa's Sebastien Boucher, 2003 NL Cy Young award winner Eric Gagné, Canadian lefty Andrew Albers, Matthew Rusch, former Detroit Tiger Dustin Molleken, and former Toronto Blue Jay Scott Richmond.

The “Boomers” nickname comes from a common nickname for males of the greater prairie chicken species, a bird which was once abundant in the Midwest but is now a vulnerable species. That bird’s nickname comes from the dance these males do in order to attract females for mating purposes. The Boomers carry on the mascot’s tradition by performing a reenactment of the prairie chicken’s dance in between innings during games.

More than 125,000 fans attended Boomers games in the inaugural season. That placed the Boomers 4th in the Frontier League for overall attendance.

In the very next year, 2013, the Boomers captured Schaumburg’s first-ever Frontier League Championship. In addition to that magnificent accomplishment, they also earned another accolade that year. With attendance up 20% from 2012, the Boomers ranked the 8th-fastest-growing professional baseball franchise in the country—at any level.

The 2014 season was full of highlights. The Boomers set a league record for home victories that year, and were ranked #1 for attendance. The team capped off the year by winning a second consecutive Frontier League Championship.

In 2017, the Boomers earned their third Frontier League Championship. The Boomers are the first team in Frontier League history to have won the league Championship more than twice. They also brought home the 2017 Organization of the Year, which is the third time the team has won that award.

The 2018 season was ushered in with the acquisition of General Manager Michael Larson, formerly of the Idaho Falls Chukars and Fargo-Moorhead RedHawks organizations. With his arrival, a new level of engagement is evident across the organization. Honours earned by the Boomers in 2018 included the Frontier League’s Clint Brown Excellence in Marketing Award, a nomination as a Schaumburg Business Association (SBA) Business of the Year, and Larson’s recognition by the SBA as the association’s Rookie of the Year.

Due to the global pandemic, the 2020 the Boomers were selected to be the Training Site for the Chicago White Sox Taxi Squad for the MLB season.

Pro baseball in Augusta, NJ dates back to 1994 when the New Jersey Cardinals, the St. Louis Cardinals' New York-Penn League affiliate played at Skylands Stadium from 1994-2005. Following the season, the Cardinals announced they were relocating their New York-Penn League affiliate to University Park, Pennsylvania, where it became known as the State College Spikes.

The Can-Am League announced shortly after that they would be expanding for the 2006 season and adding a team in Sussex County. Owned by the same ownership group as the New Jersey Jackals, the Sussex Skyhawks were born after a name-the-team-contest.

The Skyhawks won the league championship in 2008 under former Winnipeg Goldeyes and Ottawa Champions Manager Hal Lanier but folded in 2010.

The Can-Am League returned to Augusta for the 2015 when the Sussex County Miners came to town. Headlined by Winnipeg Gold-eyes standout Reggie Abercrombie, the Miners failed to reach the playoffs in their first two seasons of existence.

During the 2016 campaign, the Miners hired 2004 World Series champion Bobby Jones to be their next manager. Over Jones' tenure, the Miners reached the postseason three times.

In 2017, the Miners qualified for the playoffs for the first time in franchise history. However, they got swept in the opening round by the eventual champion Quebec Capitales.

In 2018, the Miners won their first regular season league title, going 63-38. They got their revenge, dethroning the reigning champion, Quebec Capitales in four games to win their first league championship.

In 2023, former Montreal Expo, longtime big leaguer, and former MiLB Manager of the Year Chris Widger took over for Bobby Jones as the club's skipper and guided the club to their first postseason appearance in the Frontier League.

The ValleyCats join the Frontier League after 18 seasons as the short season-A affiliate of the Houston Astros. The ValleyCats earned their first division title since 2004 where they won 50 games, a franchise record to that point. After defeating the Brooklyn Cyclones in the opening round, the ValleyCats were bested by the Mahoning Valley Scrappers in the championship series.

Canadian Stubby Clapp (Windsor, ON), lead the ValleyCats to their best finish in 2012, going 51-25. The division title kicked off four straight Stedler Division titles for the ValleyCats (2012-2015). After a sweep of the Auburn DoubleDays in the semi-finals, the ValleyCats were upset by the Hudson Valley Renegades in three games in the championship series. In 2013, the ValleyCats returned to the league championship series for the third time in four years. The State College Spikes took down the 'Cats, winning in three games.

After a defeats in the semi-final (2015) and the NYPL championship series (2014), the ValleyCats played average baseball in 2016 and 2017, finishing right around the .500 mark.

In 2018, the ValleyCats locked up yet another division title and capped off one more championship, defeating the Hudson Valley Renegades in two games.

Notable former ValleyCats: George Springer, Kike Hernandez, Dallas Keuchel, J.D Martinez, Ben Zobrist, and Jose Altuve.

Since joining the Frontier League, the ValleyCats have posted three-consecutive winning seasons under Pete Incaviglia, but have failed to reach the postseason. The ValleyCats amassed a 159-127 record under Incaviglia before the two parted ways after the 2023 season.

The club tabbed Greg Tagert as the twelfth skipper in team history on December 11, 2023. Tagert has guided Winnipeg and Gary SouthShore of the American Association, the Giants' rookie affiliate, and in the Frontier League in 1995, and from 1997-2004.

The Aigles joined the Can-Am League for the 2013 season. They recieved their name to honour the previous Trois-Rivières Aigles, which called Stade Quillorama home from 1971-1977 as a member of the Eastern League as the double-A affiliate of the Cincinnati Reds.

After various attempts to bring pro baseball back to Trois-Rivières, the Can-Am League finally announced the Aigles' as an expansion team in October of 2012. Notable co-owners include 2003 National League Cy Young Award winner Éric Gagné, former owner of the Ottawa Rapids and Ottawa Champions Miles Wolff, and former NHL defenceman Marc-André Bergeron.

A month later, the Aigles announced Gatineau native and former major leaguer, Pierre-Luc Laforest as the Aigles' first manager.

In 2015, the Aigles qualified for the playoffs for the first time in the franchise's history. The Aigles beat the Rockland Boulders in the opening round, to face the New Jersey Jackals in the finals. The Aigles defeated the Jackals in five games to win the 2015 Can-Am League championship in only their second year of existence.

The Aigles matched up with the same New Jersey Jackals in the opening round of the 2019 playoffs but were bested in five games. The Jackals went onto win the Can-Am League championship.

Following the season, TJ Stanton, who was the reigning Can-Am League Manager of the Year, resigned to join the New York Boulders. Matthew Rusch was named the teams newest skipper prior to the 2021 season.

Notable former Aigles: 2003 National League Cy Young Award winner Éric Gagné, former Ottawa Champion Steve Brown, and Taylor Brennan.

The Washington Wild Things were founded in December 2001 when a group of local business men and women decided to purchase a team to play at the new ballpark being constructed just off I-70 in Washington County.

The group began negotiations with the owners of the Canton Crocodiles in the early fall of 2001. They completed the deal in early December and opened for business at a store front at the Washington Crown Center while the ballpark was under construction.

In 2002, the Washington WildThings completed the regular season as league leaders in wins with 56 victories. The team was crowned the Eastern Division Champions, but they fell short in the Championship Round of the Playoffs, falling to the Richmond Roosters. Manager Jeff Isom was awarded the Roger Hanners Manager of the Year Award, and pitcher Jared Howton was honored with the Bryan Tollberg Most Valuable Pitcher Award. The WildThings also were named Fortnier League Organisation of the Year.

In 2003, Wild Things catcher and outfielder Josh Loggins received the Morgan Burkhart Award for Most Valuable Player from the Frontier League.

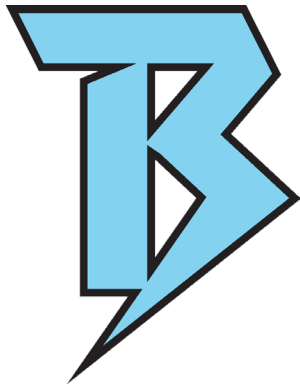

In 2004, Manager John Masarelli received the Roger Hanners Award for Manager of the Year after leading his club to a first-place finish in the East Division and establishing a league record for wins in a season. In addition, Wild Things general manager Ross Vecchio was named Executive of the Year and the team was once again named Organization of the Year by the Frontier League.

In 2005, the Wild Things made Frontier League history by winning a league-record 63 games, besting their own previous mark from the 2004 season. For the fourth straight season, the team advanced to the playoffs, losing in five games to the Chillicothe Paints. In July, the Frontier League played its annual All-Star game at Falconi Field. The WildThings also took home their third Fortnier League Organisation of the Year award.

In 2006, Manager John Massarelli received the Roger Hanners Manager of the Year Award for the second time, making him the only Frontier League Manager to ever repeat or win the award more than once in the 13 year history of the league.

In 2014, Matt Sergey threw Frontier League's first perfect game in a full 9 inning contest against Gateway on August 24th at home.

In 2018 the Wild Things won their East Division Championship for the first time in over 10 years. The Wild Things swept the Evansville Otters in the first round to ultimately fall short in the finals to the Joliet Slammers. OF James Harris was named the Frontier League Most Valuable Player behind a remarkable season which included the first cycle hit in franchise history. LHP Thomas Dorminy took home Pitcher of the Year in the Frontier League.

The Windy City ThunderBolts franchise began as the North Central League's Will County Claws in 1995. The North Central League folded 18 games into its second season and later joined the new four-team Heartland League. Following a rebrand, the team changed its name to the Cook County Cheetahs.

The Heartland League started the 1998 season with the Cheetahs, now known as the Cook County Cheetahs, winning the last ever Heartland League championship. Following three seasons, the league ceased operations.

In 1999, the Cheetahs joined the Frontier League. New ownership changed the team name to the Windy City ThunderBolts.

In 2007, the ThunderBolts defeated the Washington Wild Things to win the Frontier League championship in five games.

In 2008, they repeated as Frontier League champions, defeating the Kalamazoo Kings. They became only the second Frontier League team to win back-to-back titles, joining the 2001–02 Richmond Roosters.

Following three seasons of former major leaguers, Richie Sexson (2023), Bobby Jenks (2024-2025), and Toby Hall (2025; interim) at the helm, the ThunderBolts hired longtime Ottawa Titans assistant Tom Carcione as the club's skipper prior to the 2026 season.

Each Titans game begins with a 15 minute pregame show taking you through all Titans information and news around the Frontier League.

Player and coach interviews will air during the pregame show to go along with a standings update and the starting lineups. Following the game, the postgame show will recap the all the action.

Mikael Lafleur returns for his fourth season and will take you through the action every Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday on the French side. Along with hosting "Dans Le Vestiare" weekly, Mikael can be heard live from the rink fulfilling duties with the Gatineau Interpide u18 AAA on FloSports and a voice of Ottawa Senators broadcasts.

All games can be video streamed on the Frontier League's new, official video streaming platform: HomeTeam Network.

Select telecasts can also be watched live and on-demand in the National Capital Region through Rogers TV, channel 22 in English and channel 23 in French. All selected home games are broadcasted on-demand the following day, while the selected away games will be carried live.
