

Wahine Toa Tradeswoman Award

This category celebrates achievement made by qualified tradeswomen working in the construction, building or infrastructure industries.

The award aims to acknowledge the exceptional contributions of qualified tradeswomen, and how they are an inspiring role model for others to follow. These talented nominees excel in achieving high quality standards in their trade, demonstrate excellent safety work practices, mentor and train others, and encourage other women into the construction, building or infrastructure industries.

We would like to hear what else the nominee does? Do they actively participate in their wider community, volunteer for organisations, attend school career visits or pursue sports or team events.

Please provide proof of New Zealand trade qualification/registration.

Judging Criteria

1. Describe the nominee's role and level of responsibility, and how they deliver excellence.
2. Explain how they promote a high level of health and safety awareness amongst other workers, continuously improve workplace practices, including any innovations to improve safety.
3. How has the nominee trained and mentored others and encouraged more women into the industry?
4. Describe their commitment and future aspirations within the construction, building or infrastructure industries.
5. What exceptional qualities sets them apart from others in the workplace?
6. Share any other activities they are involved in with others in the industry and outside the workplace and wider community.
