

FAQs

Why did we change our name to Market Common Community Church?

We want to make it easy for the Market Common community (and the Myrtle Beach area in general!) to find us in our new spot. We believe our new name will simplify the search for a new church home for locals and tourists alike.

Why are we moving?

Six years ago we started Coastal Life Community Church out of General Robert H. Reed Rec Center with a vision of being a church plant in the Market Common area that could reach people for Jesus! The opportunity to purchase the location came and we made settlement in April of 2025.

What does this move mean for the current congregation?

Our congregation can expect to see a few changes in the coming days as it pertains to updating our new name and logo across platforms. Our mission, values and beliefs as a congregation remain the same as they have always been: Obey the Great Commandment and fulfill the Great Commission by loving God supremely and loving our neighbors fanatically.

Is Market Common Community Church affiliated with the previous congregation of the building we are moving into?

Market Common Community Church has zero ties or relations to the previous tenants of the location.

When will services begin at the new building?

Stay tuned! We will provide updates through our social media on renovations...

How did Market Common Community Church fund the sale for the new building?

Our church started a building fund shortly after our launch in 2019. In the fall of 2023 we began a capital giving campaign that continues to the present day. Along with our campaign, we have a supporter who has assisted several church plants in the area and has helped make this purchase possible for us.
