

My Bible Reading for October

In ZEC^HARIAH, the people of Israel are back home from exile, but home to what? They are bankrupt spiritually, financially, and politically; but the prophet delivers a stirring message of hope for their temple and their future.

MALACHI is about frauds and freeloaders in God's house. It is the last message ringing in the ears of the people through 400 years until Jesus is born.

MATTHEW, the most Jewish gospel, was written to convince the Jews that Jesus is the Messiah. Reading it is as close as we can get to the feel of sitting on a green, grassy Galilean hillside with the multitudes while Jesus teaches as if we, alone, are with Him.

MARK is the most action-packed story of Jesus—working miracles, facing opposition, silencing demons, feeding thousands, calming storms, walking on water, dying, and living again.

LUKE contains some of the best-loved stories of the Bible—Jesus' birth, the prodigal son, the good Samaritan, and more.
