My Personal Connection

Opportunity to lead CSE Crosscom international

- Opportunity to be CEO of CSE Crosscom US and UK Operations was a compelling growth opportunity.
- Enjoyed 10+ years getting comfortable with CSE Crosscom CEO, Roy Rowe.
- Confronted prospect of leaving a 31-year career at Motorola Solutions.
- Started Motorola in 1992 as a Regional Business Manager in newly formed Motorola 2-way radio channel.
- Prospect of retiring from Motorola Solutions
 - Where I met my wife
 - Three siblings worked there
 - Oldest daughter worked there
- I chose to retire from Motorola Solutions and pursue this terrific opportunity!

Mike O'Connor
Chief Executive Officer
CSE Crosscom USA Inc.

I enjoyed a successful 31-year career at Motorola Solutions, where I led the North American channel. You can trust in me and CSE Crosscom.

CSE Acquisition Model

Over 30 successful acquisitions by following a clear set of guidelines

Acquire companies we understand.

Acquire companies that fit with our core business skills and customer base.

Don't change what is working.

Don't change the customer experience.

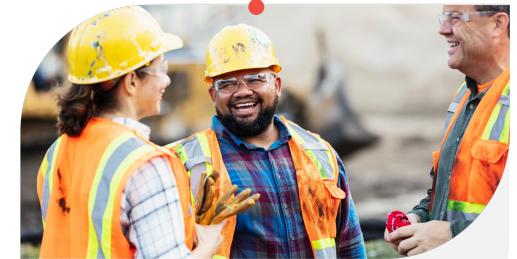

Understand what is needed and have the capacity to grow the business.

Value our people and provide training and development opportunities.

Don't change the management or customer-facing team.

Listen to customers and find out what they need to help their business succeed.

Questions

At CSE Crosscom we're building a safer, more productive world through the integration of leading voice, video and data analytic solutions.

Our technologies enhance business processes and are essential to critical communications, safety and security.

"I met my wife at Motorola Solutions. My three siblings worked there, as did my oldest daughter. I've dedicated more than three decades of my life and time and passion to this company.

But I chose to move on for the right reasons. You can trust me, ask me anything and put your faith in CSE Crosscom."

— Mike
