We are currently in the pre-billing phase.

Clinical units have been used to demonstrate their effectiveness in several clinics.

Excellent results have been achieved in over 80% of treated patients, who require multiple outpatient sessions to achieve stable and lasting results.

This led to the idea of designing a home-based device capable of providing therapy without the time and travel costs associated with traveling to the clinic, significantly reducing the therapeutic process.

This device can be administered conveniently at the patient's home and completely independently.
