About Us

Camphill Devon is a long-established charity providing supported living, residential care and meaningful community for adults with learning disabilities. Set within a unique rural environment featuring multiple residential houses and a 100-acre working farm, Camphill Devon offers a blend of care, independence, therapeutic activity and community living.

Camphill Devon provides a vibrant and wholesome environment where people can enjoy the freedom of their rural surroundings, access craft, land and community activities, and play a part in the running of where they live. We are committed to providing the necessary support and facilities through which everyone can choose to live their life, their way.

Personalised support and regular reviews ensure that everyone is given the opportunity to develop activities that are important to them. Many arts, craft and land activities are available on site which provide therapeutic, learning and physical opportunities for social engagement and developing new skills.

Activities include Pottery, Textiles, Metalwork and Woodwork as well work on the land and garden. Individuals are supported to create their own weekly structure, which for many includes accessing local leisure and sports facilities, college and voluntary work.

Home Life

People live in comfortable self-contained households of various sizes, sharing the daily routine, and working with each other to make their house a real home. Each person has their own private room as well as the shared living spaces and the facilities and grounds of Hapstead to enjoy.

Social and Cultural Life

People are encouraged to follow their own interests. This might be participating in an evening college course, with interests such as drama, singing and dancing, or computer skills. Other opportunities include sailing and horse riding, walking and cycling. People enjoy regular trips to the cinema, theatre, night clubs and other activities in the area.

We host our own events from Bingo, Movie, Disco and Choir in our small hall and café, and there is the opportunity to take part in music lessons. With Dartmoor and the coast – and Exeter, Plymouth and smaller towns for shopping and sightseeing – there is plenty of choice for days out. Everyone has the opportunity for an annual holiday of their choice including the chance for foreign travel

Supported living

Within our CQC registration we also offer a supported living service, enabling people to live in their own home, or a shared house within the local community. Support is assessed and provided for personal care, and day to day living activities, and a bespoke package is agreed to reflect the number of support hours required. Accommodation is arranged through local housing associations or private landlords.

Spiritual Life

Life at Camphill Devon is in tune with humanistic and Christian ideals, celebrating festivals together throughout the year. We actively welcome people of different faith or persuasion and encourage them to contribute and be involved.

History

The movement was founded in 1940 by Dr Karl Koenig and his co-founders, who developed a mutually-supportive model for community life based on the principles of Dr Rudolf Steiner. Over time the choices of individuals at Camphill Devon about how they want to live their lives have changed and whilst some maintain an interest in the foundations of the Camphill movement and are supported to pursue their religious or cultural beliefs, there are others for whom this plays a lesser part, and we support each individual accordingly.

Governance and Finance

Camphill Devon Community is a registered charity. We are self-governing, responsible for our own running and development and have a board of trustees. Most residents are funded by local authorities through individual service contracts. Finance for improvements and developments rely on donations and fundraising activities.
