Marquis Who's Who Honors Nichole L. Moore for Expertise in Local Government

Nichole L. Moore excels as a leader in the government sector as an executive director and transportation planner

CENTERVILLE, IA, July 23, 2025, Nichole L. Moore has been selected for inclusion in Marquis Who's Who. As in all Marquis Who's Who biographical volumes, individuals profiled are selected on the basis of current reference value. Factors such as position, noteworthy accomplishments, visibility, and prominence in a field are all taken into account during the selection process.

Ms. Moore has dedicated her career to enhancing the quality of life in her community through her role as the executive director of the Chariton Valley Planning & Development Council of Governments in Centerville, Iowa. Since 2006, she has been instrumental in managing and administering programs for city and county governments, serving as a crucial link between local, state and federal funding programs. Ms. Moore's work spans across Appanoose, Lucas, Monroe and Wayne counties, where she provides administration, planning, program management, grant writing and various other governmental services. Additionally, she serves as the transportation planner for the CVTPA-RPA17 region, which includes several counties and the City of Centerville. Her efforts have led to the establishment of a housing trust for the region and the development of multiple programs aimed at enhancing recreational areas.

While serving in this capacity for the Chariton Valley Planning & Development Council of Governments, Ms. Moore briefly worked for Monroe County, Iowa, from 2018 to 2020 as a planning and zoning administrator. During this time, she honed her skills in urban planning and zoning regulations, which have been invaluable in her subsequent endeavors.

Ms. Moore's educational background laid a strong foundation for her career achievements. She earned an associate degree from Indian Hills Community College in Centerville, Iowa, and a bachelor's degree in elementary education and teaching from Graceland University in Des Moines, Iowa, in 2003. Ms. Moore's academic pursuits equipped her with essential skills that have been pivotal in navigating the complexities of her work.

Beyond her professional responsibilities, Ms. Moore's civic engagement includes serving as the chair of the Iowa Association of Regional Councils since 2023 and as a member of the board of directors for the National Association of Development Organizations since 2024. She also contributes to her community through involvement with the Appanoose County Girls Softball League. Previously, Ms. Moore dedicated her free time to the board of a local animal rescue.

Ms. Moore's commitment to community development has been exemplified by her involvement in transportation planning initiatives. She recently collaborated with a local transit agency to create a nonprofit organization dedicated to providing transit services for veterans. Among other professional achievements, Ms. Moore was instrumental in establishing a housing trust for the region and in developing multiple programs aimed at enhancing recreational areas in one of their communities.

Ms. Moore's strong work ethic is deeply rooted in the values instilled by her mother and grandmother, emphasizing the importance of hard work and perseverance. Her unwavering dedication to community development has left an indelible mark on the region she serves. Her ability to achieve success with limited resources underscores her commitment to making a substantial impact on every project she undertakes.

Looking ahead, Ms. Moore plans to continue her efforts to support cities and counties by increasing awareness of the services available in her area. She also aims to maintain outreach initiatives and secure funding processes that support new infrastructure projects. Furthermore, Ms. Moore's vision includes expanding existing programs to meet future needs while ensuring a seamless transition when she eventually retires.
