

Haiti - House #220 the Agee Family

Jameson Agee is 36 years old. He and his wife, Genise Antoine, have been living with their two children in the pitiful shanty you see in the “Before” picture. Jameson is one of our longtime HMI's construction workers. He entered the group as a helper and now has become a chief cement mason. Gentle and quite shy, he has always been a devoted and reliable worker. His wife does a little selling of vegetables and fruits they grow at a roadside stand and helps taking care of the household as best she can. They come to church when they can, always asking God to help in whatever way possible to help them improve their somewhat desperate situation. Following the HMI's selection committee's policy to grant a house to our dear workers whenever possible, we think it is time now for this family to move to a decent house. They send their grateful and prayerful appreciation to all who helped in any way to make this dream a reality. Jameson also sends his commitment to continue to do his very best to make sure the HMI homes are built to the best standards that can be achieved under the challenging circumstances they find themselves in which to work.
