

Haiti House #381 Arnold Victor

Arnold Victor is a mason and his wife, Wazemene Michel, has a small stand where she trades food supplies. They have four children and though they live in something that can hardly be called a house, they are known for extending hospitality to others in need. Since their roof does not keep out the rain, you can imagine their joy when they were able to move into their new home! They thank God and Haiti Mission donors for giving them a decent place to live and raise their family.
