

Maintain Your Independence

Facility staff are dedicated to promoting independence and assisting the residents to function at their highest possible potential. Cheney Assisted Living will do this by focusing on "providing assistance" to the resident, rather than "doing" for the resident regardless of race, color, age, creed, national origin, sex, or area of residence.

Is it time to talk to your loved one about Assisted Living?

Moving to assisted living is a huge, difficult, and often heart-wrenching decision for caregivers. Because there are so many emotions involved, it can be tough to know when a move is really needed – especially when you're trying to put off having to make that tough decision for as long as possible.
