Monument Selection Guide

Choosing a headstone is one of the most meaningful steps in honoring the life of someone you love. Some families plan ahead of time. Others decide after a loss. However you come to it, take your time. There's no need to rush. A headstone is more than stone. It's a lasting way to remember someone.

As you think about the design, here are some things families often reflect on:

- Faith – Scripture, symbols, or spiritual values that were important to them.
- Hobbies and Interests – The things they loved to do, and what brought them joy.
- Accomplishments – School, career, military service, or other milestones they were proud of.
- Character – The qualities people will always remember them for, like kindness, humor, or strength.
- Community – The ways they served others or made a difference around them.
- Work – Their career, their trade, or the land, craft, or service that gave their life purpose.
- A Favorite Saying or Recipe – A phrase they always said, or a recipe that reminds you of them.

Thinking through these can help you design a headstone that tells their story, one that family and friends can visit and remember for years to come.

We are here to walk with you through this process. Please don't hesitate to reach out with questions. We would be honored to help you create a tribute as special as the life it honors.
