The 82-year-old Henk Dekker from Deurne in The Netherlands always has been an avid collector of antique radios. Some are over a hundred years old. He recently celebrated his 45th anniversary as a member of the Dutch Association for the History of Radio.

The antique radios always have been part of his life for sixty years now. In the 1970s, he went to many radio and antique fairs throughout Europe every weekend to hunt for his next showpiece. „Early Saturday morning we left for Metz and then on to Lyon. And then you came home late on Sunday evening.” Henk always collected the radio’s with lots of passion.

Most radios that Henk owns and has had, come from the years between 1920 and 1940. “Really the oldest stuff,” Henk says. It also includes rare radio’s of Lemouzy, Pericaud, Philips, SFR, Burndep, Loewe, B&O and Alterna. Also pre-war tube radio’s and amplifiers, telephones, gramophones and lots of other additional items are part of this collection. We are honoured that Henk Dekker has chosen Dutch Auction Company to bring this collection to the market.

Tuner Mark IV & Receiver Mark IV made by Burndept Ltd. London, United Kingdom, ca. 1923. The set has been tested and is in working condition. The Tuner Mark IV has slated wooden tabletop case with 3 visible honeycomb coils and the Receiver Mark IV has slated wooden tabletop case with 4 visible tubes. Burndept Receiver is the active part of the complete set, it has no tuning parts, wave change is achieved by wirelessly plugging in the coils in the companion Burndept Tuner which doesn't require it's own power. Another optional unit is the Burndept Power Amplifier (not present in this set) which can be attached to the other side of the Receiver by wirelessly plugging in the coils. This unique connection method led to the name Burndept Wireless Ltd. when the company became a publicly traded company in 1925.

MASSIVE COMPTON 9 RANK CINEMA/THEATER ORGAN CA. 1934

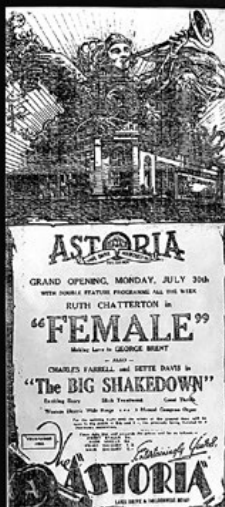

VIDEO LINK

Completely restored Compton 9 rank cinema/theater organ ca. 1934, United Kingdom. In the early 20th century custom design pipe organs were used to accompany silent movies, and later as feature entertainment during the era of "talkies". While The Rudolph Wurlitzer company is legendary in this respect, The John Compton Organ Company supplied many of the fine instruments to cinemas throughout the British Isles. This particular organ, one of the finest of its size, was supplied in 1934 to the Astoria Cinema in Kingston, Hull, a brand new state of the art cinema at that time. Seating over 1500 people, the organ had to be powerful enough to fill the large auditorium with sound. It performed for many years until it fell into disrepair in the 1970's. In the early 80's, the Compton was removed from the Astoria and reinstalled in a theme park, but when this venture failed in 1989, the York Museum of Mechanical Music was able to purchase it. Still in entirely original condition, the organ was purchased into a collection in 1999 and completely rebuilt. Over € 100.000,00 was spend. Now the organ can be played manually or via computer. This instrument is complete, from keyboard to compressor. The illuminated surround can be set to give a fixed colour or to change slowly through the colours of the rainbow. Everything is here to redeploy a piece of music history into your venue. Comes with original archive photo's of James Swift at the organ console who opened in the Astoria Cinema in 1934. PLEASE NOTE: The new owner will be responsible for removing the organ and shipment to the new location. Condition: Very Good.

Location: The Netherlands.
