Multiple Pets

The pets do not have to be in the same photographs to paint them together.

Pizza

Pizza passed away in 2024 and was our client's favourite cow.

Pizza was a mom and gave birth to four calves, aptly named,

"Pizza Pocket"

"Pizza Bun"

"Pizza Pie"

"Pepperoni"

Can you guess why her name was Pizza?

PetSculptures

The type of clay we use varies between projects.

If the sculpture will be outside, pottery clay is used, cured for several days and kiln fired before finishing.

Ashes can be added to sculptures or into the base. Coco Bear's ashes (below) were added to the bed she sits on, and the base was poured in Artisan Concrete.

Sculptures can also be added to the top of most of our urns.

Sculptures starting at $225

Each sculpture is mounted on stone or wood.

Their beloved Fluffy is 14 years old and they wanted a portrait painted while Fluffy is still by their side.

Happy Clients

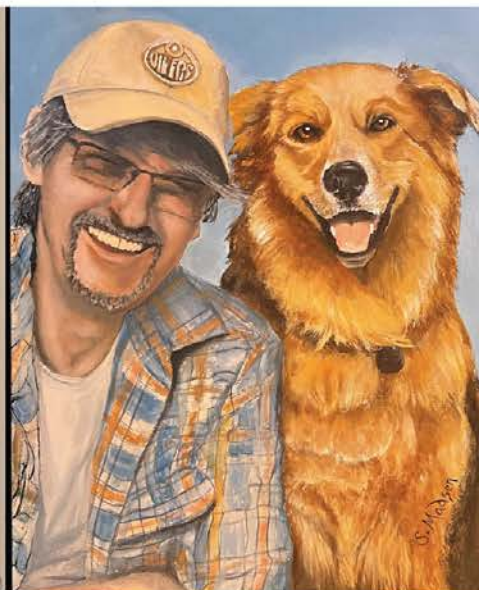

Below: As a gift to her husband, I painted her favourite photo of Jim and Zola. This is the process for each portrait I paint.

Shauna Madsen

Creative Spirit, Animal Lover, and All-Around Maker of Beautiful Things

With four decades of artistic adventure under her belt, Shauna Madsen is a vibrant creative force based in Edmonton, Alberta. Over the years, she's painted murals that brighten up businesses and homes across Alberta, facilitated art programs for kids and adults alike, and continuously rediscovered new ways to express her love for art and community.

Shauna's practice is wildly diverse — from soulful pet portraits that capture their unique spirit, to sculpting in clay, and crafting molds for her signature line of handcrafted pet urns. She pours heart, skill, and a sprinkle of whimsy into every piece. Nature and animals are at the core of her work; whether on canvas, in clay, or within a custom memorial, she reveals more than just a pet's likeness — she uncovers their essence.

Growing up on an acreage, her childhood was filled with a menagerie of companions — cats, dogs, rabbits, horses, and even a charming pet crow named Herby Miller (yes, really!).

Those early adventures continue to inspire her work today.

After three decades helping small businesses with branding and planning, Shauna took a daring leap in 2022 — turning her full focus to her art studio. Since then, she's authored and published her debut book, The Wealthy Peasant, expanded her collection of memorial art, and showcased her work in exhibitions throughout Alberta. Today, her art finds homes and touches hearts across the globe.

Whether wielding a paintbrush, shaping clay, or crafting meaningful words, Shauna's creations celebrate connection, memory, and the joy of honouring the lives we cherish with our beloved animals.
