Case Summary:

2025 Zagrah (GB) was presented to Momentum Equine Hospital on September 8th, 2026 for upper airway endoscopy and microchip placement. Upon presentation the patient was bright and alert with all vitals within normal parameters. Upper airway endoscopy demonstrated full abduction of the corniculate process of the arytenoid cartilages. Mild follicular hyperplasia was noted but this is a normal finding in young horses. Blood was submitted for a Coggins test (EIA) and under standing sedation, a microchip was placed in the maxillary gum. The mare recovered well from sedation and was discharged into the care of the owner.

Aftercare Instructions:

No further follow up is required.
