The Credit Score

What is a Credit Score?

The credit score helps the lenders assess your chances of paying back the loan based on the information in your credit report.

Credit Scores Determine:

- ✓ Credit limit
- ✓ Approval decision
- ✓ Interest rates

What is a Good Credit Score?

Most credit scores range from 300-850. The higher your score is, the more likely you will get approved for credit.

Vantage Credit Score Ranges:

- ✓ 300 – 600: is considered poor
- ✓ 601 – 660: is considered fair
- ✓ 661 – 780: Good to Excellent

How is my score calculated?

While there are different credit score models out there, there are a number of factors that affect your credit score. Here are the elements:

Credit Score Factors:

- ✓ Payment history
- ✓ Amount you owe
- ✓ Length of credit
- ✓ Mixture of credit
- ✓ New credit

Save Money with a Better Credit Score

Buying a New Car with a Low Credit Score

If your credit score is below 600, you could see car loan rates around 13%–16%. But once your credit score moves above 660, those rates usually fall to about 6.5%–10%. That gap makes a big difference in your monthly payment.

Higher Credit Score Benefits:

- ✓ Lower down payment
- ✓ Lower interest
- ✓ Lower monthly payment

Buying a New House with a Low Credit Score

If your credit score is below 660, home loan rates are usually higher and approval may be harder. If your credit score is above 660, rates often fall around 7.2%–7.6%. For scores 700 and above, rates can move closer to 7.0%–7.3%, which lowers the monthly payment and supports a stronger approval outcome.

Higher Credit Score Benefits:

- ✓ Lower monthly payment
- ✓ Pay less for the duration of the loan
- ✓ Better approval rate

Applying for a Credit Card with a Low Credit Score

A credit score of 700 and above can get you access to stronger credit cards with better rewards, higher limits, and more purchasing power. However, scores below 650 may face fewer options, tighter limits, or even denials.

Higher Credit Score Benefits:

- ✓ Better approval chances
- ✓ Higher available credit
- ✓ No annual fees
