

THE ROAD OF EXCESS LEADS TO THE PALACE OF WISDOM
AT EAT ME

A

R

T

THE ROAD OF EXCESS

In his exhibition, The Road Of Excess Leads To The Palace Of Wisdom, Richard Skeene has managed to convey a clear picture of the contentment and debauchery of Thai society in what can only be described as a study of the Yins and Yangs that are presented to us every day. Using a range of mediums from graphic design to video, and an inspiring piece of philosophy from poet William Blake, Skeene delivers an unforgettable touch of reality, spirituality with a keen eye for the contradiction between the teachings of Buddhism and self-indulgence.

The Road of Excess leads to the Palace of Wisdom can be seen at Eat Me Restaurant and Gallery (20 metres off Convent Road in Soi Pipat 2; 08-6533-0402; eatmerestaurant.com) until August 30.