THE JOURNEY SO FAR

Mary and Marie are a formidable pair in the workplace culture development space. With decades of industry experience under their belt, they shared a strong professional interest in the concept of culture when they launched Culture by Design more than five years ago.

Both agreed there wasn't enough dedicated focus on workplace culture in the professional development space and were determined to create a niche workplace culture improvement experience unlike anything else available in the market.

Marie and Mary each bring their own unique perspectives to Culture by Design, creating a well-balanced leadership team united by a common passion for improving workplace culture. They believe in the design and implementation of lasting, bespoke solutions that build organisational resilience and foster improved productivity.

Over the last five years, Marie and Mary have worked to create the first ever Culture Excellence Framework, complete with toolkits and resources specific to the development and improvement of workplace culture. Their one-of-a-kind copywrite system, Acentia has been thoughtfully designed to respond to the diverse needs of workplaces large and small.

Now, business is booming as the dynamic duo continue to bring their revolutionary workplace culture approach to boardrooms and organisations across the country. With the demand for workplace culture development higher than ever, Marie and Mary are ready to share their success with professional HR and organisational development specialists ready to enter the niche speciality of cultural improvement.

WHAT A TYPICAL DAY IS LIKE FOR A FRANCHISEE

No two days are ever the same for a Culture by Design Franchisee, who will spend time through the week focusing on the delivery of client projects, meeting new clients and networking within their local area.

A typical day might include sitting down for consultations with board members and CEOs before putting together and following through on proposals.

Other days franchisees may be delivering client solutions including facilitating a variety of different workshops.

At all times, franchisees are fully supported with unlimited access to Acentia's complete range of facilitation guides, training resources, sales scripts, templates and thousands of resources to facilitate the best possible experience for franchisees and their clients.

THE IDEAL FRANCHISEE

At Culture by Design, we are seeking franchisees that match a very specific profile. In addition to someone whose values align with the brand and share our passion for culture, franchisees will need to have extensive experience in strategic HR management or organisational development.

Ideally, we are seeking franchisees who hold a tertiary qualification and have been or are currently in the consulting industry, with an established client base.

Alternatively you may have operated in senior Exec HR or OD positions. Franchisees must have an executive presence, should be well-presented, personable, and confident sitting with board members and CEOs.

Franchisees should have a strong understanding of the region they operate in and be well networked within their local market.

Strong emotional intelligence is a requirement of the job along with a motivation to grow, as franchisees will be required overtime to recruit, train and lead a team of Culture Specialists.
