Our Mission

"To follow Jesus by sharing God's unconditional love as the Spirit empowers us."

Our Vision

We will follow Jesus...

- By being a local Christian church within the United Church of Canada; a community anchor for spiritual exploration and growth where life, worship, knowledge, service and song all contribute to our larger story.
- By welcoming and involving people of diverse faith, ethnicities, abilities, ages and stages of life, economic situations, sexual orientation and gender identities.
- By caring for all members with compassion, empathy and joy.
- By acts of service, reaching out to engage and support our community, the country and the world.
- By building bridges within our community, as a congregation recognizing the variety of religions and spiritualities in the most diverse city in the world.
- By using our facilities for religious, social, cultural, educational, or other programs that reflect our values.

Hunger by Dan Bissonnette

Never have I needed,
to worry about food.
I always find a nibble,
when I am in the mood.

We have turkey at Thanksgiving and again on Christmas Day.
I give it not a second thought,
this simply is our way.

My tummy sometimes grumbles,
but I quickly find a fix.
I grab some bread and butter and add things to the mix.

I've never been so hungry,
that I'd eat most anything.
I am amongst the lucky ones,
I've never felt the sting.

When I was just a youngster,
of the hungry I knew not.
Of people living on the street,
I gave no second thought.

When I reached my teenage years,
I saw them while downtown.
Arm stretched out and begging,
on their face the saddest frown.
That frown it would turn upright,
when a quarter I would give.
They knew that with a few more,
they'd find a place to live.

A humble place to hang their hat and food to fill their gut.
If even for a short time,
they have escaped their rut.

Now food banks for the many,
soup kitchens left and right.
People sharing...people caring,
to relieve the hunger's might.

Autumn Fires

by Robert Louis Stevenson

*In the other gardens
And all up in the vale,
From the autumn bonfires
See the smoke trail!*

*Pleasant summer over,
And all the summer flowers,
The red fire blazes,
The grey smoke towers.*

*Sing a song of seasons!
Something bright in all!
Flowers in the summer,
Fires in the fall!*

Matthew chapter 22: verses 15 ~ 22

"The Image We Carry"

Jesus once held up a coin and asked, "Whose image is this?" The coin carried the image of Caesar. But the book of Genesis reminds us that we carry another image - the image of God.

That is something worth remembering. Our worth is not measured by how much we accomplish, how busy we are, or how much we are able to do. There is something of God's image woven into our humanity, through every season of life.

Perhaps autumn offers us a beautiful reminder of that. We don't look at a tree losing its leaves and decide that it has lost its value. We understand that it is entering another season. Its beauty looks different, but it is still there.

Maybe we can offer one another that same generosity - to recognize the gifts in every season of life, to treat one another with dignity and kindness, and to look for the image of God in the people we meet.

As you enjoy these beautiful October days, notice the colours around you. But perhaps notice the people too. Some of the most beautiful things in this world are found in the lives that touch our own.

2026 Annual THANKSGIVING FOOD DRIVE

at
The Donway Covenant
United Church
in support of
The Community Share
Food Bank

The Outreach Committee is once again asking for your financial support this Thanksgiving for our local foodbank, The Community Share Food Bank.

It is true that every year I say the same thing: "food bank usage has increased, more families are struggling with food insecurity, the cost of groceries has increased, our support is needed more than ever. 1 in 10 people in our city use a food bank, and many of those are children!" This is our present reality.

The Donway Covenant United Church joins with other churches and community organizations to support The Community Share Food Bank which relies heavily on community financial support. Please donate this Thanksgiving, anytime in October through the church office. A monthly donation through your envelope giving is also appreciated.

Please make your cheque out to The Donway Covenant United Church, and mark it FOOD BANK.

Jesus taught that we must care for our neighbours, and the Food Bank lives this mission.

Thank you for your generous support!!

FROM the KITCHEN

at this year's Fall Sale was a great success! Thanks to you over 150 jars of preserves - jams, jellies, marmalades, syrups, chutneys, relishes, and beets - were sold and we didn't have to buy any jars!

So, if you are enjoying your purchases, and we sure hope you are, remember to save the jars, and the screw rings, and return them to the church. You can leave them in the church kitchen. If you happen to buy "goodies" in mason jars from another source, (we don't mind !!), bring those jars along as well.

Minutes for Mission

A CIRCLE OF TWLEVE

Morogoro Women's Training Centre in Tanzania is helping mothers of children with disabilities build confidence, skills, financial independence, and community.

There's a particular feeling that comes with visiting longtime companions in ministry, a sense of stepping into a story that began long before you arrived and will continue long after you leave. I felt it immediately on my first trip to Tanzania. Since 1979, The United Church of Canada has been accompanying the work of the Morogoro Women's Training Centre (MWTC), a unit of the Christian Council of Tanzania, in Tanzania, supporting their locally-led efforts that empower women.

One of those efforts, run in 2023 with the support of Mission and Service, included a holistic training for mothers of children with disabilities. The program wove together self-esteem and confidence building, small business and entrepreneurship skills, financial literacy, emotional support, and practical knowledge about caring for children. It was a space where women learned, but also where they were seen, heard, and held by one another.

Many of the women spoke of the 'before'. Of years marked by isolation, stigma, and the heaviness of carrying their child's needs alone. Some described shame that kept them hidden, or fear of being misunderstood by neighbours, their church community, and even family. Their love for their children was unwavering, but the loneliness was real.

What's grown after their time at MWTC is something far more powerful than what any single training session could offer: they found one another.

They found language for their experiences. They found community where shame once lived, and possibility where isolation once closed in. The relationships they built became an ongoing source of strength.

There were twelve women in the training that week - twelve stories and twelve journeys being strengthened in community. I couldn't help but notice the echo of another circle of twelve. God has always used small groups of ordinary people to carry hope into the world. These women, too, are bearers of that hope.

Among the twelve, three shared that their husbands had left after their child was born with a disability. It was a quiet grief woven into their stories, shaped by the stigma that still surrounds disability in many communities. In the absence of that support, the women leaned even more on one another, finding in community what had been withdrawn at home.

Agness Mduma

Agness carries a vibrant, steady strength. She is a widowed mother of four, and for sixteen years she has been raising her youngest child, who lives with a disability, largely on her own. When her husband died, that baby was just over a month old. The grief, the responsibility, the uncertainty of how she would provide for her family all arrived at once.

Before she connected with MWTC, life pressed in from every direction. Her income-generating activities brought in very little. Markets were limited. Opportunities were scarce. And like so many mothers of children with disabilities in Tanzania, she carried the weight of it alone.

The training she received didn't erase the hardship, but it opened a door. With startup capital and new skills, Agness began selling charcoal, at first in small amounts. She added local chickens and started selling eggs. Then she opened a small grocery shop, and started baking cakes. Each step was modest, but each one widened the circle of possibility.

What struck me most was not the list of businesses she now runs, but the way she spoke about herself. The training gave her tools, but it also strengthened her confidence. She talked about learning to save, to plan, to trust her own decisions. She talked about raising her child with renewed courage.

Her efforts have allowed her to support her children's education, meet daily needs, and even renovate her home. She is still navigating challenges. Her child's medical needs are high, and health insurance remains out of reach, but she is no longer standing on unstable ground. Her story is one of resilience unfolding in real time.

These stories are reminders of what accompaniment makes possible. Not quick fixes. Not tidy narratives. But the slow, steady work of walking together. The kind of work that honours dignity, nurtures resilience, and allows women to discover strength in one another."

Tales from our trip to Scotland

In one of the friendly conversations I had a wee while ago I was reminded, gently, that I never finished my "Tales from Scotland". I had meant to. In fact the following pages on the part of our trip to the Highlands I wrote in July. Just never got around to finishing them off.

Well, here is the Highlands part of our trip. Next week I'll complete our final two days in Edinburgh.....at least that's the plan!

Here's another funny thing. It's been a little over four months since we returned. Because we talked a lot to friends about the trip, and share conversations on social media, AI has picked it up and I am getting videos upon videos of Scottish places to go, foods to eat, songs to listen to.....Does it annoy me? Not in the least!

Joanie and I took a lot of photos, but not many videos. The videos that come pouring through my iPad trigger the memory bank of our trip. I could simply skip over them, but I don't! I watch them, and smile, an dream about goingback!

So here is our five day trip to the Highlands, including the Isle of Skye. We took a mini bus (seats 16) tour so that we could both enjoy the sights and not have to watch the road! It couldn't have beet a better group.....we had an Australian, a New Zealander, two from Taiwan, two from Japan, two from Ecuador, one from South Africa, two from the US, one from Scotland, two from Canada, and us. Amazing chats in the cafes and restaurants as we went along!

The Highlands Tom Joyce

Tales from our trip to Scotland

Away we go on a five day tour of the Highlands and the Isle of Skye! Although I spent many years driving in the UK, we elected to take a mini-bus tour (16 passengers). After traversing countless single lane roads, it was confirmed this was the best decision of the whole trip!

The Highlands - Day One

Firth of Forth

There are three bridges across the Firth of Forth - a train bridge, 9 miles long completed in 1890; a road bridge, refurbished in 1964 and now limited to public transport; and the newest road bridge, complete in 2017. The picture above is the 1964 bridge which is the one we took.

Loch Morlich, Cairngorms National Park

Loch Ness

No monster to be seen!

Dunkeld

Dunkeld is a cathedral town on the banks of the river Tay. We were surprised to see the ties to Canada!

Tales from our trip to Scotland

Clava Cairns (near Inverness)

The Clava Cairns were built over 4000 years ago to house the dead. The circle of standing stones are the inspiration for Craigh na Dun in Outlander, a popular TV series (2014/22)

Ullapool

Ullapool, a beautiful sea-side town on the shores of Loch Broom.

Many restaurants offering fresh seafood - we chose the Seaforth, and fell in love with Cullen Skink (a fish chowder)!

Sheep are everywhere in Scotland. There are estimated 7 million sheep for a population of 5 million people

The Highlands - Day Two

Ardvreck Castle

Built in the 1500 c by the Macleods on the shores of Loch Assynt. The Macleods betrayed the Marquess of Montrose, a royalist, handing him over to the Covenanters.

The Mackenzies captured the castle in 1672 with the feud between the Macleods and the the Mackenzies lasting over 150 years!

Joanie looking for ghosties!

Tales from our trip to Scotland

Achmelvich Bay

Achmelvich Bay lies on the west coast of the mainland looking out over the body of water known as the Minch. Amazing sand beaches, and the roar of the ocean.

On the day of our visit there was a gale! It didn't stop me going down to the shore and face into the wind and rain. It was mystical!

May & June 2026

Lochinver

A pretty sea-side town, famous for Lochinver Larder Pies (meat pies)! Unfortunately the line of customers was out the door, so we went down the road to a smaller cafe!

The Highlands - Day Three

Corrieshalloch Gorge

The gorge is 1½ km long and 60 metres deep. The Abhainn Droma flows through cascading down the 46 metre high Falls of Measach.

Bealach na Ba

The road over the historic mountain pass was built in 1822 and is engineered similarly to roads through the great mountain passes in the Alps, with very tight hairpin bends that switch back and forth up the hillside and gradients that approach 20%. It has the greatest ascent of any road climb in the United Kingdom, rising from sea level at Applecross to 630 m in about 6 km, and is the third highest mountain pass in Scotland.

The town features an iconic 18th-to-19th-century pastel-colored harbourfront designed by Thomas Telford, making it one of the most photographed spots in the Scottish Highlands.

Couldn't resist buying this pair of 'hieland coo' salt & pepper shakers!

Portree the main town and largest community (a little over 2,000) in the Isle of Skye. In the 1700s, the town was a popular point of departure for Scots sailing to America to escape poverty. This form of use repeated during the famine in the 1840s

Tales from our trip to Scotland

The Highlands - Day Four

Quiraing (Cuith Raing in Gaelic)

Fairy Pools

The Fairy Pools (Gaelic 'Glumagan nan Sithichean') are a series of natural pools and waterfalls in Glen Brittle. They are in Coire na Creiche ('corrie of the spoils'), on the Allt Coir' a' Mhadaidh ('burn of the corrie of the wolf/dog'), at the foot of the Cuillin mountains. The pools are a vivid aqua blue and are a popular place for wild swimmers who brave the frigid waters.

Talisker Distillery

No trip to Scotland could be complete without at least one distillery visit.

FYI, that is a sample flight of 3!

Tales from our trip to Scotland

Neist Point

Neist Point (Gaelic: Rubha na h-Eist) is a viewpoint on the most westerly point of Skye.

There are 5 million Scots and 7 million sheep living in Scotland!

The Highlands - Day Five

Eilean Donan Castle

Memorial to Lt Col John
McCrae,
Canadian soldier
and poet
"In Flanders Fields"

Eilean Donan castle is the ancestral home of the Clan McCrae. Named after the Irish Saint Bishop Donan who came to the island in 580 AD to establish a small religious community.

We passed by Ben Nevis, the highest mountain in the British Isles as we arrived at Fort William. Unfortunately, it was shrouded in cloud!

Tales from our trip to Scotland

Hielan' Coos

Hielan' Coos are the oldest cattle breed in the world, appearing in the 6th century in the Outer Hebrides. Thankfully, the coos you see nowadays aren't that old. In fact, their lifespan is up to 20 years. That may not seem like a lot, but that is a longer lifespan than most other breeds of cattle. Must be that fine Highland air.

Glencoe

The Kelpies

We passed by Stirling Castle and The Kelpies on our way back to Edinburgh. The Kelpies statues pay tribute to the heavy horse that drove Scotland's agricultural heritage.

Back in Edinburgh for the last three days of our Scottish adventure. Then home, with memories to last a lifetime!
