To Whom It May Concern,

I have worked with Aigner Construction on a revitalization project in Boonville, IN for the past 2 years. The quality and professionalism that the company produces is excellent. The experience that Aigner Construction has in the SE Indiana area is unmatched.

There are several unexpected things that happen during most construction projects. Aigner's experience is priceless when issues arise that could alter the path of a construction schedule or construction budget. They have experience they can lean on to understand the issue and plan a way around it or through it.

I worked closely with Jordan Aigner and Darren McClellan. Both are good people with the customer's interest in mind from the start of the project to the end. In my experience, many construction companies have leaders who do not communicate important things clearly. This will lead to misunderstandings and disagreements. Both Jordan and Darren are excellent communicators and are true to their word. They have the experience to be able to see problems in advance and communicate that to the customer before it becomes a bigger problem.

I recommend Aigner Construction for anyone who wants a professional project with outstanding quality and a realistic budget. They have the expertise to deliver what is promised and the integrity to follow through with that promise. If you would like to discuss their qualifications further, please contact me.

Respectfully,
