WARRICK COUNTY RECYCLE CENTER

BOONVILLE, INDIANA

Jerry Aigner Construction, Inc. provided full-service design-build leadership for the Warrick County Recycling Processing Center, delivering the project from initial concept through final completion. The facility was planned to meet the county's long-term waste-handling and sustainability needs, with careful attention given to site layout, traffic flow, material handling efficiency, and durability of construction. By performing all architectural and engineering work in-house, the team was able to maintain tight coordination between design intent and real-world constructability, ensuring that each phase progressed smoothly and efficiently.
