2nd Collection this weekend for SEEK 2027

Good Morning/Evening Our Lady of the Lake parishioners and visitors.

My name is Hayley Gruenewald and I am a junior at the College of the Ozarks studying Early Childhood Elementary Education. Myself along with several other Catholic students are provided with the opportunity to attend the SEEK 2027 Conference in Columbus, Ohio this upcoming January.

SEEK is an annual five-day experience where thousands of Catholics come together to encounter Christ through prayer, Adoration, the sacraments, and inspiring speakers. It's a wonderful chance for young adults to take a break from their busy lives and focus on what matters most, while growing in an authentic community, and becoming transformed in the Catholic faith.

This year we are taking 10-15 members of our Catholic Community and we would appreciate all support and prayers for our trip.

There will be a second collection when the Mass is ended by the entrance doors, and we would be happy to get to know you and talk with you in the lobby as well.

Thank you again for supporting us, may God Bless you!

Hey Deacon!

Sacred Labor: Labor Day, Saint Joseph, Dorothy Day, and the Gospel of Work

Each September, the United States observes Labor Day, a civic holiday honoring the contributions of workers whose labor sustains families and communities. For Catholics, the day offers a deeper invitation: to reflect on the meaning of human work and why the worker must never be reduced to a mere instrument of production. The Church's teaching on labor is rooted in Scripture, the example of Christ, and the lived witness of saints and modern disciples such as Dorothy Day.

Work in Service of the Human Person

Catholic social teaching begins with the dignity of the human person. Work is important, but the worker is more important than the task performed or the economic product created. Saint John Paul II expressed this clearly:

"The basis for determining the value of human work is not primarily the kind of work being done but the fact that the one who is doing it is a person."

This principle challenges any economic system that treats people as tools of production. The Church values economic activity yet insists that the economy must serve the human person. Workers deserve just wages, humane conditions, adequate rest, and the freedom to organize for the protection of their rights. When rightly ordered, labor unions contribute to justice and the common good.

Saint Joseph, Patron of Workers

The Church's vision of work is inseparable from Saint Joseph, the carpenter of Nazareth and guardian of the Holy Family. Joseph's labor was quiet, faithful, and ordinary. He served God through daily work, responsibility toward Mary and Jesus, and perseverance in his vocation. His example reveals that holiness is found not only in extraordinary achievements but in the steady rhythm of honest labor and family care.

Jesus Himself spent most of His earthly life working alongside Joseph. Saint John Paul II described Christ as "a man of work," teaching that through His labor, Jesus proclaimed the dignity of all human work. Because the Son of God worked with human hands, no honest labor is spiritually insignificant.

Christ and the Sanctification of Work

Work, whether in a workshop, classroom, field, office, or home, participates in God's ongoing creation. When united to Christ, it also participates in redemption. The Church teaches that work can become "a means of sanctification and an enlivening of earthly realities with the Spirit of Christ." Yet work can also be unjust or exploitative. For this reason, the Church insists on social structures that respect workers and uphold the conditions necessary for a dignified life.

Dorothy Day's Witness

Dorothy Day gave concrete expression to Catholic social teaching. When she launched The Catholic Worker newspaper on May 1, 1933, she intentionally chose International Workers' Day to claim the public square. For her, the struggle for workers' rights was deeply rooted in faith. While unions used rallies to fight exploitation, Day used her pen to highlight a spiritual patron who embodied the ultimate laborer: Saint Joseph.

"We want to show that the Catholic Church has a social program, that there are men and women working for social justice who are motivated by the love of Christ." — Dorothy Day, The Catholic Worker (1933)

Labor Day and Catholic Reflection

Labor Day is not a liturgical feast, yet it offers a moment to consider whether our economic life truly serves the human person. It invites gratitude for workers, remembrance of the unemployed, and renewed commitment to justice. Viewed through the lens of Saint Joseph, Christ the worker, and Dorothy Day, Labor Day becomes an opportunity to honor every worker as a bearer of God's image and to remember that work is sacred when it serves human dignity and the common good.

Matthew
18:15–20

A few summers ago, my family had a big reunion. It included my parents, my four siblings, and all their many children. One of my favorite moments was simply watching my parents' contented faces as they took in all of us together, laughing, sharing food, singing, telling stories. They loved seeing their children happily together with each other.

That is something like the heart of God we see in today's Gospel message about Christian reconciliation. These verses come right after Jesus' parable of the lost sheep. He is not giving the disciples a cold formula for dealing with conflict. He is revealing the Father's longing for children who love and reconcile with each other. His heart aches when his children are divided and isolated.

So when Jesus says, "Go and tell your brother his fault," He is not deputizing us as morality police. He is inviting us into his mission of reconciliation. When he adds, "If he listens to you, you have won over your brother," we glimpse the real goal. Not winning arguments, but reuniting a divided family.

These days, we often think religion is just between God and me. But the Father's dream is about a lively family, one in which His children forgive, gather, and rejoice together.

Lord Jesus, give me the courage to seek reconciliation where it is needed. Make my heart resemble the Father's heart, longing and working for unity among His children. Amen.

— Father John Muir

Back-to-School Blessing

Dear God,
We ask that You bless the students in our congregation, giving them inspirational teachers, studious habits, solid friendships, and Your grace in every moment of this school year. Bless the teachers and school staff in our congregation, too. Fill them with Your love and care so that, as they teach and minister to our young people, Your wisdom and light may be known, encountered, and shared.
Amen.

Virtues, Explained!

Most commonly, we understand the term “vindication” in a very legal, argumentative context. We say someone is “vindicated” when they are proven innocent, or when their good name is defended from an accusation.

This isn’t so far from what vindication means in the sense of virtue, either. Vindication is related to the virtue of justice, which demands we honor our duty to God and to one another. Justice seeks to ensure the fairness of human interaction. It seeks to safeguard truth against those who would co-opt it for their own purposes.

If we truly put our trust in God and seek to do His will, we may not always have popularity, but we will have truth: “Commit your way to the Lord, trust in him and he will act, and make your righteousness shine like the dawn, your justice like noonday.” (Psalm 37:5-6)

Sunday’s Readings

First Reading

But if you warn the wicked,
trying to turn him from his way,
and he refuses to turn from his way,
he shall die for his guilt,
but you shall save yourself. (Ez 33:9)

Psalm

If today you hear his voice, harden not your hearts.
(Ps 95)

Second Reading

Owe nothing to anyone, except to love one another;
for the one who loves another has fulfilled the
law. (Rom 13:8)

Gospel

Amen, I say to you,
whatever you bind on earth shall be bound in heaven,
and whatever you loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven. (Mt 18:18)

Inspiration of the Week

Christ tells us that “where two or three are gathered in my name, there am I in the midst of them.” Our faith compels us to be in community with one another. No one should be a Christian alone. How can you draw closer to others who love Christ?
