6.23am

I cannot believe it's Thursday again and next Wednesday is Ash Wednesday. Where has the time gone. Ash Wednesday is a day of fast and abstinence. It also starts the Season of Lent. A time of giving up or doing something for Lent. So whatever we decide to do, we are doing it to help us prepare for the death and resurrection of our Lord.

This Weeks readings

The Sermon on the Mount continues as the focus of the Gospel readings during Winter Ordinary Time, and today's passage from Matthew chapter 5 contains some of the most challenging verses in the Gospel. Before turning to that teaching, however, let's consider the other readings. The First Reading comes from the Book of Sirach, also known by its Latin title Ecclesiasticus, or "Church Book," so called because the early Church made extensive use of this wisdom text in moral instruction for catechumens and the faithful. Sirach reflects powerfully on moral freedom: If you choose, you can keep the commandments; they will save you. Before you are life and death, good and evil; whichever you choose shall be given you.

Freedom of the will is one of God's greatest gifts. God places before us the choice between good and evil and invites us to choose life. What is equally clear is that God does not choose sin or injustice on our behalf. The responsibility for our moral choices rests with us.

The Second Reading continues from Saint Paul's First Letter to the Corinthians. Writing to a Christian community surrounded by moral confusion, Paul reminds them that true wisdom does not come from the world, but from God: What eye has not seen and ear has not heard... what God has prepared for those who love him, God has revealed through the Spirit.

This reading complements Sirach beautifully. If the First Reading emphasizes our freedom to choose, the Second reminds us that God does not leave us unassisted. Through the grace of the Holy Spirit, God prepares us to live according to divine wisdom rather than worldly standards. Together, these readings lead us into today's Gospel. Jesus makes it clear that he has not come to abolish the Law, but to fulfill it. He then calls his disciples to a righteousness that surpasses that of the scribes and Pharisees - not through legal technicalities, but through holiness of heart. Jesus' striking examples - equating anger with murder and lust with adultery - may sound harsh to modern ears. Yet Matthew presents these teachings to a Jewish Christian community still shaped by strict legal interpretation. Jesus' strong language is meant to awaken his listeners to the truth that holiness requires more than outward observance. It calls for an interior conversion, where the heart itself is transformed by God's grace.

Ash Wednesday 18th February

What is Ash Wednesday?

Ash Wednesday is the first day of Lent—and a wonderful opportunity to make yourself 100% available to God! How available to God are you? 50%? 75%? 96.4%? No matter what your answer, Ash Wednesday is the perfect time to decide that you will spend this Lent increasing that number. On Ash Wednesday, you can get your forehead blessed with ashes at Mass or a prayer service. These ashes are a reminder that we need to repent.

Repentance is a powerful invitation. When John the Baptist first appeared in the desert of Judea, this was his message: “Repent, prepare the way of the Lord” (Matthew 3:2). Later, when Jesus began his ministry, he led with this message: “Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand” (Matthew 4:17).

But what does it mean for us to repent, here and now, more than two thousand years later? It means the same as it did to the people walking around the dusty pathways in their sandals, trying to inch closer to Jesus as he passed through their town or village. Repent means “to turn back to God.” We all find ourselves needing to turn back to God many times a day, in ways small and large. It is not a matter of guilt and it is not a shameful thing. It is simply that we are a better version of ourselves when we return to his side!

The parish programme for Lent will be given out at the end of all the Masses this weekend. Please take one home with you.

SCIAF WEE BOXES will be given out this weekend.
