

HIRING AN INTERIOR DESIGNER? WHAT YOU NEED TO KNOW

You’ve got a renovation project in mind and want to hire an interior designer to help guide you through the process. Sounds like a smart plan - but how do you find one you trust and feel comfortable working with?

A great place to start is by asking for referrals from people you know and by checking out some local designer’s websites and portfolios.

An interior designer will help guide you through the renovation or build process and make sure you are comfortable with the choices being made.

SET UP A MEET & GREET

Once you have a list of potential interior designers, plan to set up in-person meetings so you can explain your project and the vision for your space. Learn more about their process and experience and be clear about your expectations and goals. If you think they will be a good fit, don’t be afraid to ask for references and call them. This is a great way to hear about past projects, learn how concerns were handled and discuss any issues they may have had. Save yourself stress later by doing your research now.

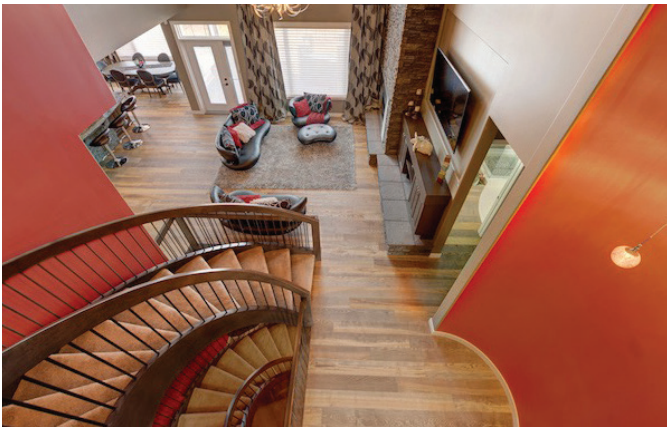

SIGN A CONTRACT

The final step in the process is to sign a contract with the designer you have chosen. This will help set clear expectations for your project so you can move forward with the fun part - planning your new space.

DESIGNER TIP 1

Great designers do not have a style and can work with anyone’s style. That’s what makes them a great designer. They are educated and talented. They appreciate elements of every style and can make any space look great.

DESIGNER TIP 2

Many people think they know what they like and what style they want, but when it comes down to it, there are some discrepancies. Designers expect this and approach new clients and projects with an open mind. If you like the designer’s work and are comfortable with them, chances are they are a good fit.
