Getting There
 From Kigali, Nyungwe National Park is approximately 225 Km, easily four to five hours drive. While the road to Huye is good, there are many sharp turns and winding areas. The road in the park will take time to drive and you should allow yourself extra time to drive it.
Directions from Kigali Drive SW to Muhanga, then turn southwards to Nyanza, which leads into Huye. From Huye, turn west to Nyamagabe which is very near to the National Park entrance.

There are a number of interesting historical sites to see on the way, such as Nyanza King's palace at Nyabishindu, the reconstructed King's place which gives the insight into the royals of the Rwanda Kingdom, the National Museum, intore dancers, craft shops, the arboretum, and the Cathedral all in Huye and Gikongoro's Genocide Memorial along the way to Nyungwe.

The Kigali-Kamembe road cuts through Nyungwe National Park, this means you could use public transport to get here, however you will need your own transport to access facilities within the park.

Most Travellers book through Tour Operators and the RDB Tourism Reservation Office, however there are self drive and public transport options available. However you are advised to either self-drive or be guided by a Tour Operator to access park facilities.
