

PUTTY PADS

Putty pads are flexible, fire-resistant sheets that are designed to safeguard electrical socket boxes installed into plasterboard walls. They are made from silicone-based polymers, and they are applied inside or around the electrical socket boxes to restore the fire rating of the wall. When exposed to high temperatures, the pad expands to for a protection, sealing off gaps and preventing fire and smoke from spreading.