RELIGIOUS EDUCATION & FAITH FORMATION

SAINT CARLO ACUTIS

"To always be close to God, that's my life plan." These words of St. Carlo Acutis capture the depth of a heart beating with vibrant faith. He wanted to be a bridge between Christ and young people, especially for those who, like him, longed for answers in a digital world.

Carlo was a catechist for three years. This beautiful aspect of his life is perhaps one of the least publicized so far. As a catechist, his advice to young people was deeply rooted in the Church's tradition, in his own spiritual journey, and in the example of saints he took as models, especially St. Francis of Assisi and St. Anthony of Padua. Inspired by the poor man of Assisi and Franciscan spirituality, Carlo developed a love for nature and a deep respect for creation, values he later transmitted to other young people.

His method reflected the call of Pope Francis in Christus Vivit: "Young people need to be respected in their freedom, but they also need to be accompanied... The mentor does not put conditions on his gift". Carlo embodied this model: he accompanied by praying the Rosary with friends, explaining the Eucharist in the schoolyard, and listening without judging. His catechesis was not monologue, but dialogue, inviting others to ask good questions about the meaning of life.

Carlo showed that the most credible catechesis comes from one who embraces his fragile humanity without hiding it. As Pope Francis's Christus Vivit further states: "Young people want a Church... that gives them space and entrusts them with tasks". Carlo was that space made flesh.

In a world where young people are searching for authentic role models, he shines like a burning candle: a young saint who accompanied youth, from fragility, towards Joy. His famous phrase, "We are born originals, but we die as photocopies", showed, in his short time on earth, that he tirelessly sought God's Truth in his life. Carlo lived as an original, ran the race of life as an original, and returned to the Father's house as an original.

May his intercession inspire a new generation of young catechists and missionaries who, like him, dare to be original.

St. Carlo Acutis, pray for us.
