ENGAGING IN EU POLICYMAKING: UNDERSTANDING PATHWAYS AND PROCESSES

It can be challenging for scientists to know how and when to engage with the political process to ensure their expertise is heard and scientific evidence can be used. This plenary session will introduce participants to the competences and skills that they need to effectively engage with policymakers and create policy impact. European policy practitioners will then provide insights into key institutionalised processes in both the EU Commission and EU Parliament, outlining the steps that scientists can take to participate in these processes.
