Effectively engage different segments of the population is one of the key aspects of successful science activism. In this session, experts working on the interface of science-policy and activism will outline some key tips and tools to help you to increase your societal impact by engaging with those around you.