In most areas of the country, state or local law does not require that you buy a container to surround the casket in the grave. However, many cemeteries require that you have such a container so that the grave will not collapse. Either a grave liner or a burial vault will satisfy these requirements.

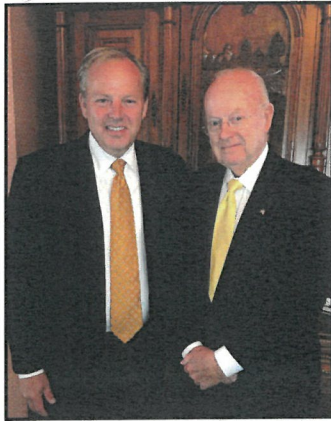

Most families choose a vault that is designed specifically to protect the casketed remains in a subsoil environment. This vault is constructed of a concrete shell covered on the outside with an asphalt sealant, and on the interior a lining made of copper, stainless steel, a thermoplastic material called A.B.S. (which is used in football helmets, telephones, etc.), or a strentex plastic liner. In all these vaults there is a butylene tape sealant that will give an immediate seal when the cover is put in place.

Each vault weighs over 2,000 pounds, so special equipment is used to transport and place the vault in the grave. Depending on the cemetery, a vault handling fee is charged. It will vary in price up to $300.00 and in most cases will be collected by the cemetery.
