Opportunity Overview

A Rare Opportunity to Acquire a Legacy Resort in Stowe, Vermont

Originally constructed in 1963 and thoughtfully expanded in 1998 and 2003, the Stoweflake Mountain Resort & Spa offers a refined blend of classic Vermont charm and modern luxury. Spanning approximately 29 acres in the heart of Stowe, the resort comprises 116 hotel guest rooms, a well-appointed four-bedroom rental residence, and 32 privately owned townhomes—up to 64 additional rental units—currently with 28 participating in the resort-managed rental program.

The standalone rental home features four bedrooms (one king, two queen, and one with two doubles), four bathrooms, a fully equipped kitchen, a spacious dining area, a welcoming living room with a fireplace, and an additional sitting room with a pull-out sofa and fireplace—ideal for families or private group stays.

This property boasts a robust suite of amenities, including a 40,000-square-foot Spa and Sports & Wellness Center (currently not open), three dining outlets (currently not open), both indoor and outdoor pools, two tennis courts, and a racquetball/squash court. The 22,000-square-foot conference center, IACC-certified, offers premier event facilities for weddings, corporate retreats, and special events.

The spa, added in 2003, but is currently not open, featured 30 treatment rooms, hydrotherapy waterfalls, a mineral soaking pool in the Aqua Solarium, a 10,000-square-foot meditative garden, a seven-circuit Zen Labyrinth, a full-service salon, steam rooms, saunas, and daily fitness classes.

With its rich operating history, upscale offerings, and four-season appeal, the Stoweflake Mountain Resort & Spa presents a compelling value-add investment opportunity in one of New England's most desirable resort destinations.

Stowe, Vermont: A Top New England Leisure Destination

Set between the majestic peaks of the Green Mountains, including Vermont's highest—Mount Mansfield—Stowe is a quintessential four-season destination, revered for its breathtaking scenery, charming village atmosphere, and upscale leisure offerings. With its blend of timeless Vermont elegance and vibrant alpine energy, Stowe draws discerning visitors from across the Northeast and beyond.

Strategically located just 45 minutes from Burlington, under 2.5 hours from Montreal, and within a 3–6 hour drive of Boston, Hartford, and New York City, Stowe offers unmatched accessibility for regional and national travelers alike.

A cultural and recreational gem, Stowe is home to boutique shops, celebrated farm-to-table dining, art galleries, and iconic brands like Ben & Jerry's and Cabot. It boasts a year-round lifestyle that appeals to both adventure seekers and those seeking a refined escape. The area enjoys a strong base of affluent residents, second-home owners, and loyal visitors—reflected in a six-month average home sale price nearing $1.5 million.

Recognized as the "Ski Capital of the East," Stowe is anchored by the renowned Stowe Mountain Resort, now operated by Vail Resorts. Beyond the slopes, Stowe captivates with world-class mountain biking, hiking, fishing, kayaking, and golfing in the warmer months. Its stunning fall foliage draws travelers along Vermont's famous Route 100, while local breweries like The Alchemist and Von Trapp Brewing elevate the region's artisan appeal.

Located just minutes from the historic village center, the resort benefits from proximity to seasonal events like the Stowe Derby, Vermont Renaissance Faire, and Traditional Christmas celebrations—further solidifying its status as a distinguished leisure destination in New England.

Lodging Demand Overview

Vermont welcomes over 13 million visitors annually, bolstered by a strong base of second-home owners and loyal repeat guests. Demand is driven by nearby affluent markets—including New York, Massachusetts, Connecticut, New Hampshire, and Quebec—as well as in-state destinations like Burlington and the capital city of Montpelier. These travelers frequently seek out Vermont for leisure getaways, seasonal recreation, and cultural escapes. With the majority staying overnight, the result is steady, year-round lodging demand. In 2022, travel spending in Vermont totaled $3.2 billion, reinforcing the state's position as a high-performing hospitality market with strong investment potential.

Just 40 minutes from Stowe, Burlington is Vermont's largest city and a key economic engine for the region. The city attracts over a million annual visitors and supports a thriving year-round tourism industry anchored by Lake Champlain's vibrant waterfront, a popular bike path network, and a full calendar of festivals and events.

Burlington's educational institutions—University of Vermont, Champlain College, and Saint Michael's College—enroll approximately 16,000 students annually and serve as catalysts for innovation, workforce development, and steady economic growth. Its strong demographic and economic profile enhances the investment appeal of nearby hospitality assets like Stoweflake Resort, offering access to a high-income population, robust visitation, and long-term regional stability.
