

Saint Ignatius of Loyola, the founder of the Society of Jesus (a.k.a. the Jesuits), was truly a master of the spiritual life. In particular, St. Ignatius taught how we can discern “spirits.”

Ignatian discernment is the spiritual practice of noticing the movements within our heart and soul. It helps us to identify the thoughts, desires, and emotions that motivate the heart and soul, and use these insights to decide where God is leading us.

Ignatius believed that these interior movements were caused by “good spirits” and “evil spirits.” Talk of good and evil spirits may seem foreign to us. I find it useful because it recognizes the reality of evil. Our hearts are often divided between good and evil impulses. To refer to them as “spirits” simply recognizes the spiritual dimension of this inner struggle.

God’s spirit, for example, comforts us; whereas, Satan’s spirit worries us. If we find that we’re comforted – by the words of a friend, the presence of a supportive community, or by reading the Bible – we’re actually listening to God’s voice. On the other hand, if our heart is habitually full of worry, we can rightly discern that we’re NOT following a good spirit but, rather, an evil one.

God’s spirit convicts us while Satan’s spirit condemns us. That is, God’s spirit prompts us to recognize our sin and turn to Him for forgiveness; whereas, condemnation leads us to feelings of shame and despair.

God’s spirit encourages us, Satan’s spirit discourages us. God clarifies, Satan confuses. God leads, Satan pushes. God reassures us, Satan frightens us. God invites us to be patient, Satan wants us to rush.

God strengthens us, Satan weakens us. God heals us, Satan hurts us. God gives, Satan steals. God instills hope, Satan causes despair.

God forgives, Satan accuses. God induces peace, Satan induces stress. God is kind, Satan is cruel. God is gentle, Satan is harsh.

Simply by paying attention to our current disposition we can discern which spirit is leading us!

God bless you,
Father Matthew Guckin

The Building of a New School

It was natural that after 100 years the parish of OLMC would grow, especially in such a thriving community as Doylestown. This created a serious problem in St. Bernard's School. The lack of enough classrooms. Even though St. Bernard's had been expanded over the years from the small frame building of its beginning, there was a dream of a new modern school. That dream was finally realized in 1950. The new school consisted of seven classrooms, a principal's office, dispensary and cafeteria. This was considered Unit 1 of a 3 Unit plan, and the students were enjoying their new school by the Centennial Anniversary of OLMC.

Lady of Mount Carmel School, was constructed facing Ashland St. to allow for more expansion in the future. Those expansions came in 1958 when a new auditorium, cafeteria, 4 classrooms, and parking lot updates were completed. The Jubilee Wing was added in 1975 and Neumann Hall in 1993. The Sisters of Saint Francis were here through it all, giving their time, talent and energy, into making OLMC School one of the finest leaders of an excellent Catholic education.

This new school, now called Our
