How to Promote Sexuality in Intellectual Disability Services

Presenter: Shawn McGill, MSW, LSW

A practical training designed to help support staff understand and uphold the sexual rights, well-being, and autonomy of people with intellectual disabilities.

Participants will explore how to create safe, respectful, and empowering environments where individuals can learn about relationships, consent, boundaries, and healthy sexual expression.

The session provides clear guidance on best practices, communication strategies, and organizational responsibilities to ensure sexuality is supported ethically, with confidence, and with dignity.
