400 Years in 60 Minutes:

A Whistle-Stop Tour of the Collections at Bristol Central Library

Sophie Evans, Heritage Development Librarian, Bristol Central Library will be our speaker and she will provide a tour of the Bristol Central Library Collections.

Bristol Library is one of the earliest public libraries in the country and was among the first to develop a systematic approach to collecting local history materials. This talk offers an overview of the library's rich and varied holdings.

Whether you're researching medieval manuscripts, the politics of nineteenth-century Bristol, or the history of your local area-the library offers valuable insights and resources for all. This talk will explore the collections, their relevance to a wide range of research interests, and the library's role in preserving Bristol's printed heritage.
