

Kitsap Environmental Coalition Presents:

Living with finite water

We face another year of drought in Washington state.

On May 17 we'll explore Kitsap water sources, regulatory protections, the impact of increased development, and what you can do to Keep Kitsap Green.

Joe Lubischer will give the lowdown on how the State Environmental Policy Act (SEPA) and the County's Critical Areas Ordinance (CAO) are applied in Kitsap County. Ben Harrison, Environmental Scientist for the Port Gamble S'Klallam Tribe, will discuss watersheds, and Don Fenton, Island Lake resident, will share the history of dropping lake water levels and the aquifer below, considered a local "canary in a coal mine" for water health in Kitsap. Two local artists, John Williams, and Edward Frodel will also be featured. Learn more on our site.

This is a family-friendly event - kids' crafts and refreshments will be available. Please feel free to bring something to share!
