26th Sunday in Ordinary Time – YRA 2026

Some years ago, a young man told me about something that happened to him after Mass one night in Phoenix. When he got to his car, a man asked if he had jumper cables to help him start his car. Even though the young man had jumper cables, he said “no” because he was afraid it might be a ruse to steal his car. Not far down the road from the church his conscience began to bother him, so he went back. When he returned to the parking lot the man was at his car with his wife and kids. His entire family was stranded. Needless to say, that young man was glad he had changed his mind and went back.

Just like the young man in that story, and the young man in our gospel passage had changed their minds and said “yes” after initially saying “no,” so does God give us the opportunity to say “yes” to Him after we say “no.” Both our first reading and our Gospel passage tell us that. We hear lots of stories about people who change their lives. Jesus came to save sinners. Thus, those who initially said “no” to God can still go to heaven if they repent of their sins and then do their best to live according to God’s will.

We know from last week’s gospel passage, the parable of the Workers in the Vineyard, that God persistently invites us to enter His kingdom by repenting of our sins and changing our lives. God created us to be with Him in heaven. However, He cannot make us come into His kingdom. Thus, just because someone says “no”, does not mean God accepts that as their final answer. Just as the landowner in that parable repeatedly went out to find more workers, so does God repeatedly keep inviting us to come into His kingdom. He will not stop inviting us until we die. God will persistently try to change our “no” to Him to a “yes.” That is why Jesus spent so much time with the publicly known sinners.

Conversely, those who initially said “yes” to God, and then later in life ignore God’s commands and teachings, without repenting before they died, will find that they are prevented from going to heaven. Some people think that we build up good points with God, so that we can spend those points later by doing immoral things. That kind of thinking demonstrates a lack of commitment to God. Christians desire to follow the teachings and commands of God all the time, and repent when they fall into sin.

Some people live a virtuous life for most of the year, but sometimes purposely live contrary to the moral teachings of God and the Church. They live by the slogan that “What happens in Vegas stays in Vegas.” When no one they know is around, they indulge their desire for sinful pleasures. That is a hypocrite. That is a person who would not want to go to heaven because they would not want to live according to God’s will for all eternity.

That sounds harsh, so let me explain. The only people who can go to heaven are those who love God’s commands and want to do His will all the time, and in fact, they want to live according to God’s will for all eternity, nonstop. In heaven we cannot take a vacation from love and virtue. God gives us time here on earth to decide if we want to spend an eternity with Him in heaven. Thus, one way to look at our time here on earth is practice for heaven.

Two weeks ago, we heard the parable of the unforgiving servant. He was forgiven a debt of 200,000 years of wages. Jesus was telling us that God’s love and mercy are infinite. If we could pack 200,000 years of sins into one lifetime, and sincerely repent of our sins, God will forgive us. In the parable last week, Jesus taught us that those who come into His kingdom late in their life will receive the same reward as those who lived in His kingdom for all their life.

Imagine if one of the worst sinners in human history had a conversion a few days before he died. Rudolf Höss was the commandant of Auschwitz, the notorious World War II prison camp, from May 1, 1940 until December 1, 1943. At his trial in March 1947, he admitted that he was responsible for about 2.5 million deaths at the prison camp. On April 2, 1947, he was sentenced to death by hanging. Two days later, on Good Friday of that year, he asked to see Father Wladyslaw Lohn.

Rudolf Höss was raised in a devout Catholic family, but in 1922, at the age of 21, he renounced his Catholic faith after hearing one of Hitler’s speeches. He asked to see Fr. Lohn because that was the only priest he knew. Fr. Lohn was the only surviving member of a community of Jesuit priests in Krakow. In the early 1940’s, they were all arrested, except for Fr. Lohn. He went to Auschwitz to find out what happened, and he was taken to Rudolf Höss, who allowed him to leave without being arrested. That’s why five years after their only previous meeting, Rudolf Höss asked to speak with Fr. Lohn, who heard his confession on April 10, 1947, and the next day gave him Holy Communion as Viaticum (Last Rites). Here’s what Rudolf Höss wrote to his wife the next day:

Based on my present knowledge I can see today clearly, severely and bitterly for me, that the entire ideology about the world in which I believed so firmly and unswervingly was based on completely wrong premises and had to absolutely collapse one day. And so my actions in the service of this ideology were completely wrong...My turning away from my belief in God was based on completely wrong premises. It was a hard struggle. But I have again found my faith in my God.

The day after writing to his wife, he wrote this:

My conscience compels me to make the following declaration. In the solitude of my prison cell, I have come to the bitter recognition that I have sinned gravely against humanity. As Commandant of Auschwitz, I was responsible for carrying out part of the cruel plans of the 'Third Reich' for human destruction. In so doing I have inflicted terrible wounds on humanity. I caused unspeakable suffering for the Polish people in particular. I am to pay for this with my life. May the Lord God forgive one day what I have done. I ask the Polish people for forgiveness. In Polish prisons I experienced for the first time what human kindness is. Despite all that has happened I have experienced humane treatment which I could never have expected, and which has deeply shamed me. May the facts which are now coming out about the horrible crimes against humanity make the repetition of such cruel acts impossible for all time.

He was executed four days later, on April 16, 1947. For most of his adult life he was one of the worst human beings to ever walk on this planet, but it appears that he had a conversion a week before he was executed. Where is Rudolf Höss's soul? We don't know. However, based upon what Jesus has taught us, there is a possibility that he could be in Heaven one day. If God permits that, my guess is that he has a long time in Purgatory. By the way, where was Fr. Lohn when he was told that Rudolf Höss wanted to speak with him? He was praying at the shrine of Divine Mercy in Krakow, Poland.

Last week in our first reading, we heard God say to the prophet Isaiah: "For my thoughts are not your thoughts, nor are your ways my ways...As high as the heavens are above the earth so high are my ways above your ways and my thoughts above your thoughts." God's ways are to try to save everyone from the fires of hell. Those who have sinned against us, those who are our enemies, those who persecute us are loved by God with an infinite love, so God will keep inviting them to say "yes" to Him, and "no" to sin.

Keep in mind, our "yes" to God, assumes we want everyone else to say "yes" to God also. God wants all of us to be in heaven, so we must want that too. We must want those who have sinned against us to say "yes" to God. Jesus asks us to love our enemies and pray for our persecutors because God will keep inviting our enemies and our persecutors to come into His kingdom. Do we want to spend an eternity in heaven with those who have sinned against us, but later said "yes" to God and changed their lives? God does.

Thus, it turns out that our "yes" to God and His kingdom has conditions. We must be willing to forgive all those who have sinned against us, and we must love God's commands so that doing His will in heaven is not burdensome, but something we want to do all the time for all eternity.

Fortunately for us, there is a place called Purgatory. Most of us will need a pit stop in Purgatory after we die because even though we desire to spend all eternity with God in heaven, we still have to be purged of any inclinations to do our will instead of God's will, and we may still need to be purged of any unforgiveness in our hearts.

A Christian loves God's commands, and strives to live them all the time. A Christian may fail at times to live out God's commands, but their goal is to live them all the time. May we strive always to live and to love what God commands, and may we strive to forgive those who have sinned against us so that we can make heaven present on earth, and enjoy living for all eternity in heaven loving what God commands and doing His will.

Sacramental Listening Session

The sacraments are among the greatest gifts of our Catholic faith. They are moments where we encounter Christ, experience His grace, and become more deeply united as the Body of Christ. Each of us has a story to tell—one shaped by joy, hope, questions, challenges, and moments of profound encounter.

The Diocese of Phoenix is currently hosting a series of listening sessions on the sacraments. Whether you just entered the Church at Easter or you've been a practicing Catholic for 85 years, Bishop John Dolan invites you to take part! Your experiences are of value to the Church. All are invited to come and share honest experiences on topics such as being welcomed (or not welcomed) in parishes when you approach the sacraments and how the sacraments serve as a moment of encounter with Christ, who sends us forth to bring Him to others. Hearing real, lived experiences will help the diocese understand what is working well, what support is still needed and how the Church can continue to walk alongside and support individuals and families in the ups and downs of daily life.

Sessions will be on the Sacraments of Initiation: Baptism, First Communion, Confirmation and Reconciliation (Confession).

Each listening session will include:

- An opportunity to hear Bishop John's vision for the sacraments in the Diocese of Phoenix.
- Prayerful small-group conversations where everyone is invited to share their personal experiences and listen respectfully to others.
- A dedicated note-taker in every group to ensure that every voice is heard and faithfully shared with the bishop as part of the diocesan discernment process.
- These sessions are not debates or town halls. They are opportunities to pray together, listen deeply, and speak honestly in a spirit of charity and hope.

Everyone is invited. Whether your experiences with the sacraments have been life-giving, difficult, or somewhere in between, your perspective is valuable. If you are willing to share your story and listen to the experiences of others with an open heart, these listening sessions are for you.
