ALTERNATIVE CHRISTMAS

Continues each Sunday through December 21, from 8:50-9:30 a.m. Everyone is encouraged to join in this time of fellowship and enjoy the Alternative Christmas displays. Using the MCC 2025 Christmas Giving Guide choose a project or projects you would like to support, fill out the form and give it to Ed at the welcome center or drop it into the offering basket. Use an ornament off the tree to give to the person in whose name you have donated.

The following are successful masonry business some answers to commonly asked questions about the MCC Christmas Giving program: you will receive charitable donation credit that will be included in your end of year donation report from the church treasurer.

Your gift will make a difference for someone in need in one of the more than 40 countries where MCC works. MCC partners work with the local community to identify who is most vulnerable. Each person's story in the giving guide is representative of MCC's work. Your donations will support similar projects.

When you choose a gift of livestock, you are providing nutrition and a source of income for someone in need. MCC sources the animals locally and provides training for the person receiving them.

Each gift is the average cost to purchase that item. In cases where donations exceed what is needed, or where local conditions prevent program implementation, MCC will redirect funds to similar activities to help people in need.

This Week in Anabaptist History ... On December 7, 1875 Weaverland Mennonite church called Jonas Martin to the ministry, and six years later, on May 3, 1881, he was chosen as bishop of nine congregations. He served in the ministerial capacity for nearly 50 years until he passed away on July 3, 1925 at the age of 86.

Jonas Hershey Martin, b. January 15, 1839, was one of seven children born to Jonas S. and Nancy (Hershey) Martin. He spent most of his life as a farmer in East Earl Township, Lancaster County, Pennsylvania as did his ancestors for several generations. In 1865 Jonas Martin married Sarah Witwer (1845-1889), and after her death he married Annie Wenger (1852-1927). Eleven children grew to maturity. Martin embraced the Mennonite faith of his forebears and was baptized at 20 years of age in the Weaverland church.

Jonas Martin is best remembered for his conservative position in his work as bishop. He opposed modern church practices, especially the introduction of Sunday schools. Two other issues he identified were Mennonite bishops officiating at the marriages of non-members, and the incorporation of the Kauffman Mennonite Church, allowing it to receive and administer property.

In the fall of 1893 he led his conservative followers out of the Lancaster Conference to found his own Weaverland Conference (often called the Martinites). Most of his followers were from north-east Lancaster County, although ripples of that division were felt over many counties as well as in all the major settlements of other states. His group merged with the Wisler groups of Ohio, Indiana, and Ontario. The Weaverland Conference, the Groffdale Conference, and the Reidenbach Mennonites all originate from the Martinites. The 1987 estimated total membership of these groups is 8,700. They are often known collectively as Old Order Mennonites.

Jonas Martin was a likeable and sociable man. He was remembered as an interesting speaker who held the attention of his audience. He often quoted scripture from memory, and stayed close to scripture in his preaching. Tradition holds that he knew the Dordrecht Confession of Faith by memory. The last five years of his life were frail ones, as he showed symptoms of a stroke. He is buried at the Weaverland Old Order Church cemetery.
