

Patient-285

Patient-285 went to Sunrise Hospital for issues relating to diabetes. Absolutely horrified. Hospital was filthy, dirty. Patient was injected with something unknown in her IV. Then she was given a pain medication which knocked her out, and they left her in the waiting room for 12 hours. Security started poking her, telling her to call for a ride or wait outside (when it was 112 degrees).

I was absolutely HORRIFIED,

I was brought in by ambulance, for health issues from uncontrolled diabetes that have recently surfaced. (SEVERE symptoms).

The paramedics were very attentive to me. However, once I got to the emergency room, the nurses and attending physician in the ER (Emergency Room) DID NOT listen to what the paramedics & myself told them when they asked "what was the reason for me to be brought in".

The paramedics had started an I.V. on me, and when I was put in a ER room in a chair, another nurse came in with a syringe 3/4 full of something. I was told it was antibiotics, but I explained that I just got here, and no tests had been done, no one has come to take blood, and I had not seen a doctor yet.

The nurse explained to me that it's standard procedure. I asked, for what, and she said that there was sepsis running rampant in the hospital.

Then without my permission, she put what was in the syringe in my IV line.

I told her to STOP. SHE DIDN'T STOP.

Then a doctor came in and asked me what were my symptoms, I explained it's my diabetes, ketoacidosis, and 30 mins later I was discharged with having a UTI (urinary tract infection). What????

I was also given some kind of pain meds in my IV that left me knocked out cold in the waiting room for 12 hrs.

It was filthy dirty.

I remember security was poking my arm and legs telling me to get up and call for a ride.

If I didn't have a ride coming I would have to leave and wait outside. It was 112° outside.

Patient-285 went to Sunrise Hospital for issues relating to diabetes. Absolutely horrified. Hospital was filthy, dirty. Patient was injected with something unknown in her IV. Then she was given a pain medication which knocked her out, and they left her in the waiting room for 12 hours. Security started poking her, telling her to call for a ride or wait outside (when it was 112 degrees).

This is a stock photo of something being injected into a patient's IV.

Just say NO to Sunrise Hospital

FAIR USE NOTICE: This site may contain copyrighted material the use of which has not always been specifically authorized by the copyright owner. We are making such material available in our efforts to advance the understanding of environmental, political, human rights, economic, democracy, scientific and social justice issues, and to provide a public service to consumers so they can make informed decisions about their choice of hospitals and surgeons. We believe this constitutes a 'fair use' of any such copyrighted material as provided for in section 107 of the US Copyright Law. In accordance with Title 17 U.S.C. Section 107, the material on this site is distributed without profit to those who have expressed a prior interest in receiving the included information for research and educational purposes.

DISCLAIMER: The contents of this website (including text, graphics and images) are for informational purposes only and do not constitute medical advice. The content is not intended to be a substitute for professional medical advice, diagnosis or treatment. Always seek the advice of a physician or other qualified health provider with any questions you may have regarding a medical condition. Never disregard professional medical advice or delay in seeking it because of something you have read on this website.

@2026 All Rights Reserved