

“The Goodbye Door” (Dramatic)

Character: Morgan, saying goodbye to a best friend who's moving

Setting: Standing in their friend's now-empty room

[Quiet, emotional]

You said this room would always be yours. That even if you left, a part of you would stay. But it's empty now. Just walls... and dust... and this door.

We made so many promises in here. To stay friends. To never change. But now you're gone, and I'm still standing at this stupid door, hoping you'll walk back through it.

I didn't even get to say everything I wanted to. Like... thank you. For being there. For knowing when I needed someone—even when I didn't.

So... this is it, I guess. Goodbye. I'll keep this door open a little longer. Just in case.
