The Good News About Thirst

BY ALICE CAMILLE

An interesting contrast presents itself in our two big Bible stories this week. On the one hand we've got the grumbling nation behind Moses: reasonably thirsty, yet decidedly unpleasant about it. These are the same folks who've been recently delivered from a generation of slavery, miraculously led across a divided sea, and granted the unlikely gifts of quail and manna from heaven, right there in the Sinai wilderness. You'd expect a little show of faith from these people, an air of courtesy mixed into their request for water. But all we see is an ugly, snarling mob of ingrates.

On the other hand we meet the woman from Samaria, obviously thirsty, too, or she wouldn't be visiting the well at this difficult, sun-drenched midday hour. She also has reasons to be unpleasant: It's hot, there's a strange man hovering over her destination, and what's worse he's a traditional enemy to her community. Yet this woman chooses to keep the dialogue civil, calling the stranger "sir" and demonstrating, once more, a delightful spunk that is the signature characteristic of a biblical hero. Whereas the nasty mob around Moses repels us—we don't want to be in the midst of these people more than necessary and are grateful they remain an anonymous sea of hostility—we find ourselves befriending the woman of Samaria. We want to know her name. We'd like to follow her home and find out what happens to her after her privileged encounter with Jesus.

We know in general terms that the fates of the participants in these two stories couldn't be more distinct. The nation behind Moses, ever wielding a blade of mistrust that could wind up in their leader's back, gets their spring of water and miraculous rescue once more. But does it change anything? Won't they be just as angry, aggrieved, and thirsty again tomorrow? The rock at Horeb provides them with water for a day, or a week. Still the place remains defined by the spirit of the people: Massah and Meribah, quarreling and testing. In the deepest and most real sense, the community remains parched and unsatisfied.

By contrast watch what happens to our heroine of Samaria. She leaves her bucket unfilled by the well, no longer in need of the kind of water that lasts a day. She leaves her grievances by the well, too, running back to the community that has judged her behavior in the past with news too good to withhold. Living water has changed her, turning a notorious woman into a reliable witness. Once defined by a wearily eminent marriageability, she's redefined in a sterling new relationship as the first apostle to the Samaritans. Thirst is not a bad thing, we realize. It can lead straight to our heart's desire.

CATHOLIC Q&A

QUESTION

If we are all meant to be united in Christ, why is there so much division in the Church?

ANSWER

Each Sunday, we profess that we believe in “one, holy, catholic, and apostolic Church.” The Church is indeed one because her source is the Trinity, and she is founded by Christ. The Church also exists in the fallen world and is made up of fallen people. Some-times, there are tensions over what we believe as Catholics. Who is Jesus really? Are we affected by original sin? How do our traditional sexual ethics play out amidst medical and technological developments? Doctrinal disagreements are rarely just about ideas ... they occur within a context.

Tensions are influenced by various social and polit-ical factors of the time period. For example, Martin Luther’s attempts at reform gained followers, in part, as a reaction against poor moral practices within the Catholic Church. When the schism between the Eastern Orthodox Church and the Catholic Church occurred in 1028, tensions between the two culturally different regions had been brewing for centuries.

Division still occurs within the bounds of the Church today. Oftentimes, this is about pastoral or practical matters. These Questions can vary. Should we incor-porate Latin back into the liturgy? What is the best way to reach the youth in our parish? These may not be articles of faith, but people have strong opinions about what ought to be done. We can remember the prayer of Christ — “that all might be one” — and do what we can to grow in understanding and respectful dialogue.
