Is your community losing land to lake bank erosion?

Seabreeze
Healthier lakes. Stronger shorelines.

A one-page note to share with your board or property manager.

What's happening

Lake and pond banks in Southwest Florida communities wear back a little with every rainy season. Left alone, the drop-off at the water's edge grows, the community loses usable land, and the edge becomes harder to mow and less safe to walk. The longer it waits, the more fill it takes to put back.

Why it's a board decision

Lake banks are usually common property, maintained by the HOA, CDD or stormwater district rather than by each homeowner. Repairs are planned for the whole lake, not one lot, so the request needs to come from your board or manager.

How Seabreeze restores lost shoreline

- Banks rebuilt to the slope in your community's original permit, using shell or rip rap with native littoral plants.
- Lifetime workmanship warranty.
- Board-ready proposals and phased plans that fit the community's budget.
- Florida state-certified contractor serving Marco Island to Sarasota.

The next step for your board: a free site visit

We walk the lakes with your board, manager or engineer, measure the drop-off and map every problem bank, then send a free lake erosion report. There's no cost and no obligation.
