We Belong to Him Above All Else

Today's readings remind us to be mindful not only of who we are, but also Whose we are.

In today's Gospel, the Pharisees attempt to trap Jesus by asking whether it is lawful to pay the tax to Caesar. Their question is meant to force Him into choosing sides. But Jesus refuses to be drawn into their narrow way of thinking.

Instead, He asks whose image appears on the coin. When they answer, "Caesar," Jesus responds, "Repay to Caesar what belongs to Caesar and to God what belongs to God."

Those words remind us that while we have responsibilities in this world, our first allegiance belongs to God. Everything we have comes from Him, and through Baptism we have become His sons and daughters.

Our time, our talents, our treasure, and our very lives are gifts entrusted to us by the Lord. May we use them each day in grateful response to His goodness, remembering that we belong to Him above all else.

From the Desk of Father Justin

This is now the third weekend of Respect Life month. I may or may not preach in this general direction next weekend, but if I do it's only because of the importance of this part of the overall Pro-Life stance as a whole.

To be Pro-Life is not an explicitly religious thing – many not-so-religious people have taken this stance throughout history. When we proclaim being Pro-Life as Catholics, we add on our faith as an additional facet. The religious element of the argument is that we are all children of God and made in His image. We are all masterpieces and therefore must be treated with the same respect we'd show to the literal Son of God. People who do not share our Christian faith are not likely to see humanity in that way (although it's certainly not impossible). If you are Pro-Life precisely because of your faith, have no fear of shame – that absolutely works! After all, it's not really your responsibility, as a regular Catholic, to have an expert understanding of these kinds of matters.

However, I would like to bring to your attention that the Pro-Life stance is ultimately grounded on reason rather than faith. I do not write that as if faith is inferior to reason, as the two are meant to co-operate in our minds and hearts. As the Church has proclaimed for many centuries, ours is a “faith-seeking-understanding”: our faith leads to reason, and our reason leads to faith. Anyway, to be Pro-Life is to be reasonable, rational, and logical. What follows is the short version of the argument.

Morality is the study of human acts: why do people do what they do? We operate on the assumption that people make choices out of a belief that one given choice is better than the rest. We order pizza instead of sandwiches because we believe we'll enjoy the pizza more. Or we order salad instead of pizza because a healthy meal is more important than delicious greasy cholesterol. Although different people make difference choices all the time, we still make the decisions we believe are best: the maximum goodness in that moment.

What are the basic goods that provide the foundation for these choices? The list varies from thinker to thinker, but there are at least three that always make the list: life, friendship/community, and truth. All people know, by the power of basic reason, that life is better than death, that having friends is better than having enemies, and that truth is better than falsehood.

These fundamental goods may be lost to us due to events in the world. Friendships end for any variety of reasons, and truth can be very elusive at times indeed. Even life can be lost in the case of military service or a medical complication that cannot easily be treated. Our reason teaches us that overall goodness can arise from the loss of these fundamental and universal goods. If your life comes to an early end, your donated organs can help other people in need, and the money you saved can be inherited by your loved ones. Goodness can certainly arise from the loss of a particular good. In fact, truly holy people are often willing to put their very lives on the line for something good that goes beyond them and their earthly existence. There is room for that in the Pro-Life stance. However, we must never intentionally act against one of those basic goods, because to do so is to trade an ultimate good for an inferior good. To trade a life for a political cause is like trading gold for plastic: it's the trade of something immensely valuable for something substantially less valuable. The fundamental goods of the world must always be protected, nurtured, and encouraged – and life itself is automatically on that list. To intentionally act against life is to intentionally act against fundamental and essential goodness. This is not faith, it's reason... reason that anyone of any particular culture is capable of understanding.

I apologize if even my short version is too much for you. I love this stuff, and it can be hard to summarize in a few hundred words. If the above argument is simply too much philosophy for you, I hope you'll forgive my attempt to try to boil it down to 800 words. Nevertheless, I can still leave you with the major takeaway of this article. To be Pro-Life does not explicitly require faith. It is an exercise in reason, to which our faith naturally attaches itself with very little difficulty.

May you all have a blessed remainder of the month of October, and may God bless you all... for you are indeed made in his image and you are loved by Him and cared for by Him. Always.

Peace,
Father Justin

MEN'S SILENT RETREAT

St. Joseph & St. Agnes Parish Men — You Are Invited!

February 25-28, 2027

Join us for a silent, preached retreat with a Jesuit Director at the Jesuit Retreat House on the shores of Lake Winnebago, just south of Oshkosh.

The main feature of this weekend is the SILENCE we keep—an opportunity for men who want to continue living a significant, examined life in a wonderful, quiet setting. Throughout the weekend, our Jesuit Director will lead us through the Spiritual Exercises of St. Ignatius with eight preached conferences. You'll have your own private room, great meals, and plenty of time to make the retreat your own—to pray, reflect, rest, walk the grounds, or meet privately with retreat staff. The weekend also includes Daily Mass, Reconciliation, an Anointing and Healing Service, Rosary, and Stations of the Cross.

Time away with God can challenge us to become better versions of ourselves—better husbands, fathers, parents, friends and workers. KNOW YOU ARE INVITED. Is this the year you finally take another step closer to the Lord?

DO JUST THE ONE EXTRA THING

(from .. Matthew 22) The guests were invited but they refused to come. Some ignored the invitation and went away, one to his farm, another to his business. So, the servants of the parish went out into the streets and invited all the men they found, prince and pauper alike, saint and sinner alike. Still, many took no particular interest in attending The Men of Saint Joseph-Tosa.

➡ Be among those chosen to learn more-- among parish friends-- about our Catholic Saints, Catholic Scripture, Catholic History, the Catholic Faith -- Thursday mornings and evenings for just 90-minutes per week, 6:30-8:00 (am and pm) Saint Joseph Room. Videos with discussion format. Light refreshments.

➡ It's simple; just show up.
God bless you for doing just this one extra thing in thanks to God.
